of the Seattle champions of the Northwest league, says the Portland Journal Henkle, who is a Portland boy, will leave tomorrow for Seattle to join the Dugdale tribe.

According to information from Seattle, Dugdale will pay the college star the unusual salary of $200 a month for the rest of the season. The salary is considered unusual in view of the fact that Henkle has never had any professional experience and is an unknown quantity in faster company. However, it is an indication of the hard straits Dugdale is in regard to his pitching material and at the same time shows that the fat magnate is hardly so close on his purse strings as some people say.

Henkle has been the best college pitcher in the northwest for the last two years. He has good control and a splendid assortment of curves and a head that would do credit to an older twirler.

He has yet another year in college but the Seattle offer was so tempting that he felt he could not pass it up and will use his baseball salary in finishing his school work.

Portland friends of the young southpaw are hoping that he will pull out in good style, and if given half a chance among the professionals feel that he will develop into one of the best pitchers in the northwest.

CORBETT BARS SULLIVAN FROM SEEING JEFFRIES

Reno, Nev., June 24.—The air is uncomfortably frosty for John L. Sullivan around the Jeffries camp and may continue so. Sullivan arrived yesterday and went to Jeff's cottage to greet him.

"You can't see Jeff, because he doesn't want to see you," said Corbett. "You have been sailing around the country knocking Jeff and the fight in general and it is gall on your part, to say the least, to attempt to see him."

"But I want to shake hands with him," protested John L. "I want to tell him that I have been misquoted." Corbett refused to let the veteran enter. After exchanging some hot words with Corbett, Sullivan walked away and seated himself under a tree some distance from the cottage.

Corbett Scores a Knockout.

Reno, Nev., June 24.—Veteran Jim Corbett put another knockout to his record yesterday, and it did not come in a "sparring exhibition" either. It was a fight undisputed.

The victim was an enthusiastic Jeffries supporter, whortired to make a social call on the undefeated champion at his Moana Springs training quarters at night. Jeffries was not in an amiable mood and refused to receive the unknown visitor.

Manager Sam Berger told the man that he could not shake hands with Jeffries and the visitor declared that he would have his own way. He brushed Berger aside and started toward Jeffries.

But Corbett blocked the path. "I'm a fighter; look out!" threatened the stranger, striking a fighting attitude. That riled Corbett, and a fight was on.

The obstreperous visitor rushed the ex-champion and struck at him wildly. Corbett's science came into play and in a few brief moments the stranger was down for the count. A left hook to the jaw did the work.

The man was assisted away from camp, shaky in the knees and bleeding from the nose.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Fully one-third of the time of the United States Supreme Court at its next term, beginning in October, will be occupied with the consideration of cases in which the government is a party or in which it is interested because they involve the construction of federal laws.

According to a review of the situation made at the Department of Justice the court has advanced the date for hearing 53 cases between October 17 and January 3 of next year. Of these the government is interested in no less than 43.

They include the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases, those involving the constitutionality of the corporation tax, the New York World libel suit; the Buck's Stove and Range case against the American Federation of Labor involving the boycott question and the contempt proceedings against Samuel F. Gompers, the validity of the commodity clause of the Hepburn law as it applies to the coal carrying railroads; the Lehigh Valley, Erie, New Jersey Central and the Pennsylvania; the case against Augustus Helms, accused of misapplying funds of the Metropolitan National Bank of New York, and the Hippolyte Egg case which is the first to be brought under the pure food law.

In the first three hundred cases before the court on regular call the government has about one in every four. This not only indicates the activities of the Department of Justice, but emphasizes the tremendous interest which the government and the people have in securing a full bench. If all the cases set for argument for the first three months of next term should be decided within that term it would be the most important period in the history of the court.
