

What Mrs. W. Peckham a Prominent Medford Lady Has to Say About the Fer-Don Medical Experts

Fer-Don's Medical Experts Offices Located at 637 Main St. Pendleton, Ore.

I take great pleasure in testifying to the successful results of the treatment of the Great Fer-Don's European Medical Experts. My son Frank Schofield, had been a victim of catarrh for a number of years, had been treated by a number of physicians and taken nearly all remedies known to the public, and all without satisfactory results. He called on the European Medical Experts at Pasadena, Calif., and was told he could be cured. He had little faith but was induced to make a last effort. Much to his, as well as his friends' surprise, he was cured and has had no return of catarrh for nearly two years. I earnestly suggest that any one suffering from chronic catarrh or any other chronic disease call on these doctors and place themselves under their treatment.

MRS. D. W. PECKHAM.
403 South Fir street, Medford, Or.
The reputation of the European Medical Experts is now established in Albany, Eugene, Pendleton, Medford, Salem and vicinity.
To Whom It May Concern:
Nearly five years ago I was struck with paralysis of the entire left side of the body, being unable to move even a finger. I have been under the care of three doctors and have taken a great deal of patent medicine, but was not cured. Three weeks ago I began treating with the European Medical Experts and the effects of their medicine and treatment are very wonderful, for I have improved more under their care in the three weeks than I did all the time before and I take great pleasure in recommending them to all sufferers. I walked over seven miles Sunday, May 15, the first time since I took down sick five years ago.

THE NUMBER OF PROOFS GROW EVERY DAY.

Fer-Don's European Medical Experts Effect Wonderful Cures—Testimony of Those Benefitted.

Reports concerning the wonderful success of the European Medical Experts in Medford, Eugene, Salem, Roseburg, Pendleton and Albany, grow more encouraging every day. Testimonials from men, women and children whom the European doctor have treated during his stay in these cities are readily forthcoming, it is claimed, and those benefitted and cured seem anxious to tell others of the good done by the European doctors.

The Great European Expert has written proofs of cures performed by the European Medical Experts in California and Oregon and among them is that of Mr. J. G. Lowe, of Vallejo. Mr. Lowe suffered excruciatingly from stomach trouble and had gone to several physicians for treatment, but without relief.

Case of Mr. Lowe.
Mr. Lowe heard of the remarkable skill of the European Medical Expert, and attended the talks given nightly by the great Fer-Don. At first, like many others, he did not believe in the European doctors, but when his friend told him of the benefits derived from the treatments given by the latter, and when he saw with his own eyes the almost miraculous works of the European Medical Experts he became convinced. He then consulted the European doctors. He was given a dose of medicine for a tapeworm. In three hours' time he had the monster in his home.

"I think," said Mr. Lowe, "that the treatment received is the greatest in the world, and that the remedies of the great European Experts are the best ever prepared for suffering mankind."

Mr. Lowe is a reputable business man in his community and is ready to tell others of the benefits derived from the treatment of the European Medical Experts.

There is nothing so painful, so dreadful, as cancer, Mrs. J. L. McKittick, of Coalinga, Cal., suffered for years with cancer of the mouth and nose, and tried many remedies, but failed to find relief from the agonies she endured. She is a young woman and has many friends and acquaintances in Coalinga, California.

She heard of the marvelous work of the European Medical Experts and submitted her case to them. Other physicians pronounced her all but incurable, but within a few treatments at the hands of the European doctor she is willing and ready at all times to tell the suffering public about her case.

Daily the number of patients waiting for treatment by the European doctor grows.

A few minutes spent in the waiting room of the European doctor, at 637 Main St., Pendleton, Oregon, will prove to the most skeptical the true merits and healing powers of this wonderful doctor.

The Great Fer-Don says: "What makes this European Expert so much in demand is that he has cured and benefited so many. He has filed in his office testimonials from hundreds who have been treated and greatly benefited by him, and who are glad to let others know of the good done by him.

"I will give the names and addresses of certain citizens of Redding, Chico, Los Angeles, Oakland and Sacramento, California, Roseburg, Eugene and Medford, Oregon, cured and benefited by the European doctor.

"I stand ready to post $10,000 that these names and addresses are genuine. I want the public to go and see these people who have been suffering from stomach trouble, liver complaints, tapeworms, gall stones, tumors, cancers, and other ailments and hear from their own lips what our doctor has done for them."

Why He is Successful.
There are only a few names and addresses. But they will serve to open the eyes of the skeptical, those who are crying "fake." Honesty is the best policy and that is the way we are successful.

He will not accept the innumerable case. He will not take a penny from anyone. He cannot cure or benefit. He makes false statements to no one but deals honestly with all who consult him.

The Fer-Don European Medical Experts have their offices at 637 Main St., above French Restaurant, Pendleton, Ore. Office and reception rooms upstairs.

They charge $1.00 for consultation and examination. Office hours: From 10 to 12 a. m., 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. Sundays, 10 to 12, noon.

IF TAFT SHOULD APPOINT HUGHES TO BE CHIEF JUSTICE OF U. S. SUPREME COURT

Washington.—Should Charles E. Hughes resign the governorship of New York to become chief justice of the United States it would prove that history, which repeats itself, also reverses itself, for John Jay, first chief justice of the United States, resigned that honorable job in order to accept the governorship of New York. That was back in 1795.

While the talk of Hughes in connection with the appointment is mostly favorable, there is also some opposition. One objection to Hughes is based on the claim that he lacks experience in the supreme court, having tried only one case before that great tribunal. His friends, however, point out that this should not bar him from consideration in view of the fact that Chief Justice John Marshall, whose decisions gave life to the constitution, had tried only one case in the court before he was chosen as its presiding judge.

When President Taft names the new chief justice he will create a world figure. The position will confer that distinction on the man even though he be not renowned for his own talents. The appointment will place him at the head of one of the three co-ordinate branches of the government, a station more exalted in the minds of many men than the presidency itself.

The term of office will be subject to the pleasure of the chief justice. He may retire at the age of 70 years or continue in the service until death. Whether active or retired he will receive full salary, which under existing law, is $13,000 a year.

A duty prescribed for the chief justice, aside from those pertaining to the court, is that he shall preside at the impeachment of a president. That experience came to Chief Justice Morrison R. Waite, who was called upon to preside at the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson.

A salute of 17 guns is accorded to him by the military regulations.

He is a central figure every four years when, in the presence of countless thousands of his countrymen, he administers the oath to the incoming president of the United States. His presence there helps to dignify the inauguration ceremony, but it is not essential. An oath taken by the president before a notary public would be as binding.

Honors come to him in many ways. He is chosen to arbitrate controversies between nations and to assist in the negotiations of treaties. Great institutions feel honored by his patronage.

The oath subscribed to by a chief justice of the United States at his installation is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear that I will administer justice without respect to persons and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as chief justice of the United States, according to the best of my abilities and understanding, agreeably to the constitution and laws of the United States, so help me God."

It is an interesting coincidence that several of the chief justices have entered upon their duties at times when new questions of the greatest importance confronted the country. In the time of Marshall who became chief justice in 1801, the great problem was the construction of the constitution and his decisions shaped the course of the republic. It developed upon Marshall to place in effect the intentions of those who made the constitution. Some of the men who assisted in the construction of that great instrument differed with the judge as to what the intention of the constructors had been, but it was Marshall's opinion that counted.

It was Marshall who first asserted the right of the supreme court to declare invalid acts of congress that, in the opinion of the court were in conflict with the constitution. He created the American system of jurisprudence and assured the permanency of a government that until his time was an experiment.

Roger B. Taney of Maryland, became chief justice in 1836, a time when the country was about to experience a wonderful development. Railroads had begun to succeed, wagon transportation, coal mines were being developed on a large scale and public works of importance were placed under way. Aside from new questions arising in connection with these matters, however, Taney had to deal with the troublesome matters that preceded the civil war. He was the author of the Dred Scott decision which became a burning issue.

A court order by a chief justice is practically final, but one issued by Taney was an exception to the rule perhaps the only case in which a chief justice was ever overruled. A man was arrested on the charge of treason in Baltimore, where the operation of the writs of habeas corpus had been suspended by the army. The facts were submitted to Taney, who issued an order that the prisoner be produced in court. The officer in command refused to surrender the man and Taney demanded peremptory compliance with the order. The troubled officer put it up to the war department and the department asked President Lincoln to decide. Lincoln held that under the conditions that prevailed in Baltimore at that time it would be unwise to release prisoners on writs of habeas corpus or any other writs, especially in treason cases. As Taney had no army with which to enforce his order he was obliged to submit to the president who was backed up by the military power of the government.

Big problems presented to the court when Morrison R. Waite became chief justice in 1874 grew out of the war and were involved in changing conditions. The court was called upon to construe the new amendments to the constitution and to rule upon the liquor question, polygamy, federal control of elections and the right of states to regulate railroads. It was in Waite's time that the court decided that a woman was a citizen but without the right to vote.

The new chief justice will take part in the settlement of questions growing out of the corporation tax and the Standard Oil, Tobacco and Sugar trust cases, in which the decisions of the court, in the minds of many men, may have a most important influence on the future of the country.

The supreme court was established in 1789 with a chief justice and five associate justices. The number of associate justices was increased to eight in 1837.

At the first session of the court there were no records, no forms and no cases for trial. The place of chief justice was not an attraction to influential men, but from Marshall's time it has been regarded as one of the very highest honors in the country.

PRESIDENT OF BRAZIL WILL MAKE CALL UPON TAFT

Washington.—A fellow president soon-to-be, General Hermes da Fonseca of Brazil, will drop in on Taft at Beverly Hills in August to get a few points on the art of keeping people happy while taxed and other things that go with the job of chief executive.

General da Fonseca will be inaugurated November 15, 1910. He has been making the rounds in Europe and has been well-received by the heads of governments, especially William of Germany, whose people have large interests in Brazil. The general will round up what he has learned in the lands of royalty with information about "this perfectly governed country." He will visit Chile and other large cities where the civic authorities and commercial bodies will entertain him. The State Department is working for better trade with South America and the tour of da Fonseca may have a helpful influence toward that end.

General da Fonseca is 55 years old, a soldier and a statesman of marked ability. He is accompanied in his travels by Dr. Jose Carlos Rodrigues, editor of the "Journal do Commercio," the principal newspaper of Rio de Janeiro.

GRENZBOTEN THINKS OF AN ENGLISH WAR

Berlin.—The "Grenzboten," the well known periodical in which Bismarck used to take great interest, publishes an article on Bismarck's well known views on England, and says that if he were alive today the great chancellor would probably place the following alternative clearly before "nervous Britons":

"Either they submit to the inevitable and treat us Germans as a pair, by recognizing that the rapid increase of our armaments is absolutely necessary for the maintenance of the German Empire and its healthy development, or they must risk war which in spite of Bismarck's von Suttner, is still the ultima ratio."

"Five years ago," continues the Grenzboten, "the English might have checked Germany's development, Germany days, things are different, with the has had time to arm and will be able not only to defend her coasts, but to prevent, to a certain extent, the British practices that are to be expected in case of war."
