HERBERT ROESCH IS IN LIMELIGHT AGAIN

Because he refereed a prize fighting contest between two under classmen in his charge, Herbert O. Roesch, the Pendleton midshipman at Annapolis who won fame last year by proving himself the greatest rifleman in the world, was charged with having his diploma was held up pending an investigation by Action Secretary of the Navy Winthrop.

That official, however, has declared that the charge was "too trifling for consideration" and the Pendleton midshipman will be given the sheepskin which will entitle him to be an officer in the navy.

Will Enter the Ministry.
A pro re nata meeting of the Presbytery of Pendleton was held in the Presbyterian church at Freewater, August 5. The pastoral relations between the Valley church and Rev. G. L. Smith was principal of the Helix schools for two years and recently has been engaged in farming at Grass Valley. He is now preparing to go to San Francisco to enter the theological seminary of the Presbyterian church in that city. Those present at yesterday's meeting were Rev. G. L. Washburne, who is moderator; Rev. B. F. Harper, Sunday school missionary for eastern Oregon, Rev. Levi Johnson of Milton; President W. H. Bleakney of Pendleton, Rev. J. M. WHEAT PRICES SAME HERE AS GARDEN CITY

That there is no truth in the reports that Walla Walla wheat buyers are paying more for wheat than are the Pendleton brokers is firmly asserted by the local grain representatives. According to the buyers the reports of wheat sales from the Garden City are misleading. They say the seemingly higher prices paid at Walla Walla are due to the fact that some hold over wheat has been sold there and to the further fact that in eastern Washington the quotations are for wheat in the warehouse. This alone accounts for a difference of one and a half cents per bushel but it means no more money to the farmer. The old wheat at Walla Walla naturally brought higher prices than new wheat.

In support of the assertion that the actual prices paid are the same in both towns the buyers call attention to the fact that the Walla Walla brokers represent the same houses as do the Pendleton buyers. They also point to the fact that Walla Walla men having wheat in Umatilla county sell it to Pendleton buyers.

At this time there is no activity in the local market. Farmers are generally holding for an advance and the buyers are making no efforts to induce them to sell. Club wheat was quoted at 77 cents yesterday but the market is reported weaker today.

The society, though new in this city, is in its fourteenth year and has lodges in all the principal cities in this state and is also doing business in thirty three states. FORMER PENDLETON FAMILY IN TROUBLE

MR. AND MRS. A. A. HARDIN BEFORE YAKIMA COURTS

Woman Is Accused of Stealing Her Own Daughter and Man Is Charged With Stealing His Own Horses—Domestic Troubles and Otherwise.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hardin, former residents of Pendleton, have been occupying considerable space in the Yakima papers recently. In the Yakima Herald of recent date there appeared two different articles concerning the family. One charged Hardin with stealing his own horses after they had been attached for debt, while another story was under the glaring head lines, "Mother Steals Own Daughter."

The following accounts of the domestic and other troubles are taken from the above-named paper:

After soliciting the aid of the police to effect the rescue of her little child from what she was pleased to term "her cruel husband" no earlier than last Saturday night, and declaring that she was through with him for good, Mrs. A. A. Hardin, according to the police, was found to have returned to her home Monday, ready to forgive and forget. Captain Kelly announced that he was no less surprised than disappointed at finding that he had been made the goat in a family quarrel.

The captain explained that the woman appeared at the station Saturday night, saying that her husband had beaten her, forced her to leave the house and refused to allow her to take their baby girl with her. Declaring that she was afraid the man might become enraged and harm the little girl, she asked that an officer be directed to accompany her to the home while she made a second attempt to recover her baby.

Gives Her Escort.
Captain Kelly called a cab, placed Officer Perry and the woman within and directed that they persuade the pugnaic hubby to deliver up the little one if such a thing was possible. Before the cab drew up at the home the woman had thought out another plan. Fearing that another pitched battle was inevitable if her husband became aware of her presence in the house, she asked the officer to stop the cab a short distance from the gate and wait there while she attempted to enter the sleeping room and remove the little girl without awakening the man.

Officer Perry was agreeable and removing her shoes, the woman disappeared through the forbidden threshold, soon to reappear carrying the baby in her arms. After another interview with the captain, the mother and little girl were driven to a hotel, the officers taking all possible precautions to guard their whereabouts from the obstreperous hubby.

Happy and Contented.
This was the last seen of the protection seeker until Monday when a deputy sheriff had occasion to visit the home, where he found the mother and babe quietly enjoying all the domesticity afforded as though nothing out of the way had ever happened.

"This," said the captain, "is one of the many examples of where the police department is made the 'goat' when it is really trying to assist a lady in trouble. Cases like this one are about the hardest we have to deal with for the reason we have no way of telling who those really really in need of assistance from those who insist on dragging us into a every-week family quarrel."

Stole Own Horses.
Deputy sheriffs are engaged in the unusual task of looking for a man charged with horse stealing, accused of the theft of a pair of animals belonging to himself, A. A. Hardin, a more or less well known teamster about town, is the man for whom the officers are searching.

Following an order from the court, authorizing the seizing of the man's team in satisfaction of a judgment, Deputy Sheriff Rightmire visited the man Monday morning and returned with the horses which he placed as directed by the creditor's attorneys, in a barn on the west side.

Shortly after noon, the officers say, Hardin appeared and made off with the team laying himself, according to prominent attorneys, liable to prosecution for horse stealing. He had not been apprehended at a late hour last night.
