SOCIETY EVENTS

The 75th anniversary of the birth of Lot Livermore was made the occasion Thursday evening for a surprise which was perpetrated by a number of his Odd Fellow friends. Livermore organized Eureka lodge No. 32 in this city, early in the year 1871. At that time he was a member of the lodge at Umatilla, but three months later, July 1, he transferred his membership to the Pendleton lodge and has been an active member since that time. Altogether he has been an Odd Fellow for 59 years. With the exception of Dr. T. M. Henderson, who is the present Noble Grand of the lodge, all those present were Past Grand Commanders. Every one present made short talks but the principal addresses were delivered by John Halley, Jr., and R. Alexander. On behalf of the members of the lodge, Mr. Alexander presented Mr. Livermore with a beautiful gold handled silk umbrella while Mr. Halley gave a complete history of the local lodge from the date of its founding by Mr. Livermore up until the present time. There is not one of the charter members living. Those who participated in the surprise Thursday evening were R. Alexander, Dr. T. M. Henderson, Judge T. G. Gilliland, R. F. Kirkpatrick, J. H. Lawrey, George W. Beadlow, H. C. Craig, H. J. Taylor, M. J. Carney, J. H. Gwinn and John Halley, Jr.

One of the important social events of the last season was the miscellaneous shower given Friday evening by the Misses Ivy Hill and Edna Thompson for Miss Hazel Nolen who is to be one of the early fall brides. The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by Miss A'Lillian Stanfield of Echo. Many beautiful and useful presents were presented to the guest of honor, delightful refreshments were served and a modernized game of "truth" afforded much amusement throughout the evening. Those present were the Misses Ivy Hill, Edna Thompson, A'Lillian Stanfield, Hazel Nolen, Sidney Somerville, Elizabeth Sawtelle, Sybil Cole, Laura McKee, Nona Johnson, Edna Storie, Edith Johnson, Irene Shea, Gene Holten, Edna Wissler, Norma Alloway, Edna Thompson, Ivy Hill, Bertha Anger, Gertrude Campbell, Genevieve Clark, Pauline La Fontaine, Edna Zimmerman and Gertrude Jordan.

A party of Pendleton people made a trip to Elk Creek this week which was very delightful. The following were included in the number: Mrs. F. B. Clifton, and daughter, Sibyl, Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Earl Judd and son, Harry; Mrs. Charles Smith, Miss Gwendolen Smith, Mrs. Dale Slusher, Mrs. J. F. Raley and Mrs. C. P. Bishop.—Seaside Notes in Portland Oregonian.

Mrs. Henry Waldo Coe and children are home again after some time spent on the Coe ranch in eastern Oregon.

Midsummer Love

By Beatrice Fairfax.

I wonder how many captains will bring their little ships safely home to port these midsummer days.

Girls may pass the winter season without sweethearts and beaux, but very few girls go through the summer without at least one sentimental episode.

It's a sort of midsummer madness which gets in the blood.

Many of you, my girls, will fall in love this summer.

With some it will be the great and abiding love of our lives; with others it will be but a passing infatuation—but with all it will be real enough, while it lasts. And, in either case, it should be looked upon seriously.

If it is real love, may God bless you and help you to steer your boat of happiness into a safe harbor.

Avoid This Danger, Girls. If it is imitation love, may God grant you sense to distinguish between the false and the true, and to avoid the worst fate that can befall any girl—a loveless marriage.

A moonlit summer evening puts a great glamour on commonplace things. It can glorify a flirtation into a very good imitation of real love.

Try to keep your wits, girls, even when your hearts are pounding madly and the whole moonlit world is singing of love.

Ask yourself if what you feel is love, or some mere physical attraction, which quickly wears off.

When you fall in love, you want it to be the love of your life, for you know, dears, this falling in love is a strange, perplexing sort of joy, as troublesome as it is sweet.

There are doubts and fears, as well as joys.

I once heard a woman say: "Thank goodness, I am married to John; I love him devotedly, and hope to all my life; but I could not stand falling in love with him over again. It nearly killed me."

Despair as Well as Bliss. "Weren't you happy?" I asked, in surprise.

"Yes, of course, I was; but I was also miserable. One day in the height of bliss, the next in the depths of despair—now I am in a heaven of peace. I love him and he loves me; all we have to do is to hold each other's love."

During the summer time a girl meets many strange men. She goes away on visits or a vacation. She is among strangers and is compelled to judge these men for herself—that is, without the guidance of her mother's opinion.

There is one infallible rule to follow, girls, and that is: The instant a man gives you the slightest reason to doubt his honor and sincerity have nothing to do with him.

Remember, also, that men, as well as girls, suffer from midsummer madness. A man may lose his head over a pretty girl and pay her many attentions, but it does not always mean that he wants to marry her.

It Is Not Always Love. So don't rush to the conclusion that because your heart beats quickly when a certain man looks at you, you are in love with him.

Summer is summer, and youth is youth, and both are sweet, but together they sometimes make a sad potter of things.

So once more, little friends, if you are drifting into that sweetest of ports, keep your eyes open and be sure that the steady beacon of true love lights you on your way.—Portland Citizen-Star.

Spooning in Public

By Jean Dare.

A Minneapolis minister has recently stamped "spooning" in public as quite the proper method. His remarks are more or less startling: "Adam and Eve were placed in Eden to 'spoon' and their children have been at it ever since. Mingling winds, nodding flowers, hills that kiss skies, creeks that mingle with rivers and waves that clash each other, are but commentary on Solomon's words, 'Two are better than one.'"

The rich have palatial parlors or private parks in which to make love or they go to the ocean or mountain by automobile, train or ship, where they plan marriages, that often end in divorce and death. The poor walk or go in street cars to parks and lakes, where they read books on nature and learn lessons of repose, cheer, humility and economy. Love making, which is proper in the house and parlor, is just as proper in public parks. What is wrong is wrong everywhere, whether in public or private.

We have no information at hand as to the minister's standing in the community from which he hails, but his writing indicates that he belongs to the common and vulgar herd. A minister who stands for the lowering of the conventionalities rather than their strengthening, belies his name, and places himself in the category with the "spieler" for Madame Camille, the snake charmer. A minister who makes such vulgar statements in order to gain notoriety is one of the most despised of God's creatures. When it becomes necessary to profane religion in order to advertise your own wares, it is, indeed, a sorry spectacle.

My loving friends, the world at large is not at all interested in seeing the fond embraces with which you woo your various divinities. Affectionate demonstrations in public outrage all sense of propriety, and stamp the most beautiful love affair as common and vulgar. Love that finds its expression before the public gaze, whether on park benches, in the street car, or on the porch of the girl's home, or in the street, is a very poor sort of love. Keep your caresses for the privacy of your own home, and even at that discretion is a virtue. Love making should be handled gingerly on all occasions: indeed, it is well to preserve the greatest dignity, even in the presence of the adored one.

Always remember, little girl, that even the presence of that little engagement ring on the proper finger does not license you to a perfect abandonment of blisses and ecstasies. Sometimes that little band of love is subtly broken, and it is a bitter truth, that what has once been given, cannot be taken away. Kisses and embraces may well be saved for the one man or the one woman as the case may be. But we are wandering from our subject.

I suppose it is impossible for people who are in love with each other to live without expressing that love in various and sundry fashion, but I do wish they would refrain from that expression in the public thoroughfares. Absurdities should all be relegated to closed doors and drawn blinds. Else, when you have tired of Samuel and wish to make love to Archibald, you may find yourself the butt of much embarrassment, and then, who knows? No girl who has been cut up in a doctor's office and thrown into an old suitcase or trunk and tossed into the river ever thought she would end that way. She always "hated conventionalities."

The True Woman

By Jean Dare.

A southern woman, Mrs. Alice Louise Lytle, has struck the true chord in the matter of woman's suffrage. Discussing sociological matters, in which she is deeply interested, she said: "I am greatly interested in children. I have one son 15 years of age, and he has been brought up under the only theory I have of raising children—that is, children should be brought up by the mother in every instance. He is not a molly-coddle, is accustomed to get in fights and scraps, but is a clean boy, and realizes that nature demands penalties for every one of her laws which he breaks."

"He is also imbued with the idea that one set of morals for men and another for women is wrong, and that I demand the same life of him that he will demand for the girl he may marry. If I have a hobby, that is it. I have no use for the suffragette, and I am teaching my son to voice my sentiments political when the time comes for him to vote. Here is woman's power to do and be the power that the political conditions of the day call for. All the street parades and banners will never get women the franchise, and if I have to share it with the negro women of the north and with the demimonde everywhere, I am not going to be able to wield as much influence as I can through the single vote of my son when he has reached the age of discretion."

What a fine, sensible woman! What splendid, wholesome ideas! Would there were more like her. It is such a womanhood that may be truly cited as the "Pillars of Society." She is the sort of woman who greets you with the phrase "Old friendships never rust." What a happy, good old world this would be, if all our young women, and old ones, too, for that matter, would take a leaf out of the book of Mrs. Alice Louise Lytle and confine their energies to the proper rearing of their children and leave the safeguarding of the nation to the men!

The women of today shrink from the sight of a cruel driver beating a horse, or cruelty to cats and dogs as exhibited on the streets. They are ready to begin a crusade to prevent cruelty to animals, and spend unlimited time and energy in such an undertaking. At the same time, these same good women are permitting their children to grow up with cruel instincts, are even teaching their children cruelty in the cradle. There is much fuss and fury at present over the smoking of cigarettes by young girls and women, and certain reformers are gaining much notoriety thereby.

The surest and easiest method of preventing the adoption of the cigarette is through the mothers. If such a lurid condition prevails, as outlined in the daily papers, it is motherhood that is responsible. If these same mothers would play less bridge, seek less social and mental amusements, do less gadding and gossiping, and turn their attention to their recognized duty in life, that is, to the education of their children, there would be less cause for reorganization of the universe by an army of graceless, racing, newfangled suffragettes.

According to the warden of the Connecticut state prison, who is a student of human nature, "If a child is properly educated to the age of ten, no matter what its inheritance, it never becomes a criminal." He did not mean that children sent to smart schools, and given tutors, et cetera, never become criminals. He meant that children guided in their thoughts and ideas by wise teachers and mothers, should have right ideas, right feelings and right desires.

When women overstep the boundary of her prescribed orbit, she is oftentimes a target for ridicule. Let the women of today look to the molding of the youthful mind, instruct it in the ways of the good and the virtuous; the universe will take care of itself.—Portland Journal.

FREEWATER TO ENTERTAIN THOUSANDS AUGUST 17

Next Wednesday, August 17, will be a red letter day in the history of Freewater and the whole valley, the occasion being the annual peach day celebration which was inaugurated there several years ago. Special rates are to be secured on the O. R. & N. from all county points in Umatilla and Walla Walla counties, insuring a record breaking attendance.

The principal speaker of the occasion will be A. W. Lafferty of Portland, candidate for congress. Senator Jonathan Bourne who was scheduled to speak will be unable to be present and cannot take part in the program.

D. C. Sanderson of the executive committee, wishes all those who can to donate peaches for the occasion, as it will take about 400 boxes to supply the demand. Also, persons coming should bring their lunches as far as possible, as it will be difficult for the stands on the grounds to supply all those present.

Among the entertainment features will be foot races, a baby show with a $5 prize for the best looking baby, ball game between Bed's Mixture and a Freewater team, a minstrel show in the evening and other things too numerous to mention. H. D. Howland will move his picture show to Freewater on that day, adding still another attraction for the entertainment of the many who are expected to attend.—Milton Eagle.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to void water and scalding pain in passing it, and bad effects following use of liquor, wine, beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Home of Swamp-Root, Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
