AT THE PICTURE SHOWS

The Orpheum.
1. An Arcadian Maid. Biograph, 1000 feet long. Woo to him who will prey upon those of pastoral and bucolic innocence, for fate is sure to wreak vengeance and that vengeance is terrible. Such was the lot of the conscienceless villain who imposed upon the trusting innocence of the little country maid.
2. The Detective's Dream. Pathe, 1000 feet. A bit of comedy which represents, possibly, the feelings of a detective who prides himself on ability to make important captures.
3. John Graham's Gold. Lubin, 1000 feet. A love story in which a woman who lost heavily on margins, sacrifices her daughter to an old miser to cover her debts and hide her from disgrace.
4. On the Ethiopian Frontier. Pathe. An excellent production showing some of the most interesting of that distant and almost unknown land.
5. Song—Blue Feather.

The Pastime.
"A Daughter of Dixie." Kalem, drama, 1000 feet. A love story with incidents of the civil war as a background. It is an interesting picture, but underlying the interest is a sentiment that is worth remembering and cultivating even now.
"The Desperado." Essanay, comedy, 1000 feet long. This subject is an exceptionally thrilling one, quite out of the ordinary.
"Manon." Pathe, drama. A drama adapted from Abbe Prevost's celebrated work of the same title.
"Catching Lobsters." Educational. A picture of exceptional interest, as it always the case when sea views of merit are introduced.

The Pastime.
A fine program for Tuesday's change:
"Mazepa." Selig drama, length 1000 feet, or the Wild Horse of Tartary. The sensation of the age in motion pictures. From Lord Byron's poem. A romantic love story of a wild race. The entire story is given in a manner sensational in the extreme and is sure to please all who demand high class film productions.
"The Thief." Essanay, 1000 feet long. A novel detective story. The picture is made interesting by showing the thief at a reception, showing how he steals the jewels and the detectives at work.
"Getting Even with the Lawyer." Comedy. A lively comedy.
"Breaking Up Ice in Finland." Educational.

For Sale Cheap or Rent.
A five acre tract in Riverside Park. Good house, barn and out buildings. Two miles east of city. Apply to Bentley & Leffingwell.

TELL THEM GEORGE IS KING.

Lord Roberts Official Announcer of Royal News.
London.—There will be a warm welcome and a cordial greeting waiting for Lord Roberts when he arrives in Berlin late this month to apprise Emperor William formally of King George's accession to the British throne.
Field Marshal Lord Roberts is acting as the special envoy of King George to the crowned heads of Europe, in giving official notification that George is now the presiding ruler of Great Britain and her allied territory.
Although no intimation has been given, I would not be surprised if the Kaiser insists upon Lord Roberts remaining for the annual maneuvers of the entire German army early in September. If the English soldier is able to take advantage of this invitation he will be the emperor's guest upon the field.
Lord Roberts and his suite will be received at Wilhelmshohe on August 27.
Emperor William does not hide his intense admiration for England's two great soldiers—Lord Kitchener and Lord Roberts.
Under ordinary circumstances Prince Arthur of Connaught would have taken part in some of them, but his royal highness can not be separated from his military duties with the Scots Greys in the middle of the training season. Earl Roberts will proceed to Russia, Turkey and the Balkan states on a similar errand.

COUNTESS IS NOT OF NOBLE BLOOD

Berlin.—One of the most romantic domestic stories that could be imagined has been unfolded in the German courts in which a countess of supposed noble birth was exposed as a foster daughter and the real child of a carpenter. The case has just been concluded in the imperial court at Leipzig.

In 1859 Count George von Voss, a member of one of the oldest families of the North German nobility, married in Galicia a woman of humble origin named Debaska. Their union proved childless. The count, however, felt deeply the absence of some being on whom he could lavish paternal care and affection, and in his sorrow he betrothed him that one of his sisters-in-law who was married to a carpenter, had four children, for whose bringing up too plentiful resources were not available. The family was approached on the subject and eventually consented to abandon all claim to one girl, who was taken over by the count as his own daughter. To put the business on a thorough stable legal footing from the outset, he subpoenaed a reprobate priest to issue him a forged birth certificate to the effect that the girl, Helen by name, was, in fact, his child and as such she figures this day on the court calendars. When the child was 13 her aunt and adopted mother died, and the count took a second wife from his own worldly station. The new countess was invited therefore and was initiated into the secret of Helen's origin, but was threatened with death in case she should reveal it to another.

Countess von Voss had, however, reckoned without her host. Captain von Grone, far from shunning the revelations as to his wife's parentage, took the initiative in litigation, and before the widow knew where she was she found herself defendant instead of claimant in the action. The captain's case was that he had been induced to marry his wife by representations that she was the child, an heiress of Count von Voss, and that consequently a fraud had been practiced upon him. He therefore, urged that the Countess von Voss, as her husband's heir and herself a party to the deception, should be compelled to pay him the sum of 18,000 pounds, to which he would have naturally been entitled had his wife really been the count's daughter. The action has now been finally decided in the captain's favor by the imperial court, so that Frau von Grone will, at any rate, suffer no pecuniary loss through the disclosure of the secret of her birth.

Day by Day

The maiden priced a diamond ring.
It sparkled like the SUN.
She liked the diamond very much.
But didn't have the MON.
The maiden had no time to lose.
And folded up her ones and TUES.
I've got a scheme she coyly said.
I'll go and find a man and WED.
She bundled up in clothes and furs.
And hissed I'll sharm the noble THURS.
She didn't have so long to try.
For she found him at an oyster FRI.
And on her dimple finger fat.
He slipped the diamond while they SAT.

Married Prussian Officer.

The girl was married to a Prussian army officer, Captain Udo von Grone. Later the count died. The widow was sorely tempted, because the count neglected to leave a will, and, had she exposed the fraud of the girl's early life the entire estate would have gone to herself. The supposed mother succumbed to temptation. She threatened a law suit if the supposed countess should try to make trouble.

THEY ALL DEMAND IT.

Pendleton, Like Every City and Town in the Union, Receives It.
People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relier is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve but do not cure. Here is evidence to prove that Doan's Kidney Pills cure, and the cure is lasting.
Mrs. Wesley Adcock, 414 E. Webb street, Pendleton, Oregon, says: "About a year ago a member of our family was in bad shape with kidney trouble. This person had such severe pains in the back that work was an impossibility and the least lifting or any quick movement caused sharp twinges through the loins. Sound sleep was out of the question and on arising in the morning the patient had no energy and felt very lame and sore. Doan's Kidney Pills were used on a friend's advice and the contents of five boxes effected a cure. This preparation is worthy of the highest endorsement."
