AEROPLANE ANTIDOTE FOR THE SUBMARINE

SO SAYS PROMINENT FRENCH NAVAL OFFICER

Will Act on That Theory and Will Equip Military Defenses With Both Things With Them It Would Be Impossible to Blockade a French Port.

Paris.—The aeroplane is the only antidote for the submarine, according to Vice-Admiral Besson of the French navy and accordingly France is protecting herself along these lines. Within a short time this country will considerably outnumber, in point of submarines, England, mistress of the sea that she is. Great Britain has 63 submarines in actual service. She is building 11 more. France already has 60 in use and 20 are in the ship building yards at Breteuil, Toulon and elsewhere. As again England's 74 under sea fighting machines France will have 80, and this does not take into consideration this country's program of coast defense apparatus which includes many more submarines.

According to Vice Admiral Besson it would be practically impossible to blockade a French port. Aeroplanes and submarines working from shore bases, could play havoc with any navy in the world. The aeroplane could very well be launched from a battleship and it is only at a great height that the limpidity of the sea will allow one to see a submarine far below the surface. The submerged machines of the enemy, says Besson, could therefore be discovered while the submarines to the home government would remain invisible.

M. Fabre, on Lake de Barre, in Provence is experimenting with an aeroplane which rises from the water. His machine actually does rise very gracefully from the lake's surface—but there is a big difference between an inland lake of small proportions and the open sea, or even a bay, however enclosed. So the invention of Fabre will scarcely be of actual naval service.

"But," continues Besson, "taking flight from the shore itself an aeroplane may fly far out to sea, discover while it is still afar the fleet of the enemy, and return in ample time to give the exact number of ships, their character, almost the number of guns each carries. With such data in hand a blockade would be extremely difficult to maintain even at a great distance from the shore. Battleships might form a semicircle about a port and so far away as to make shore fighting impossible, but while unable to do a great deal of harm themselves they would be constantly menaced from overhead and under keel."

The submarines of the French navy have a tonnage varying from 70 to 400 tons and the accident which cost 27 men their lives aboard the Pluviose which sank near Calais, May 26, will have no bearing upon the number of similar vessels to be laid down in the future.

HOW TO GET FAT.

Use Samose, Says Druggist Koepen and Put on Good Flesh.

The almost universal interest in physical culture is the best evidence that can be offered as to the need of a simple and scientific method of making thin people fat, increasing strength and restoring health. Athletes, when carried to an extreme, often result in straining the vital organs. How much better it would be for the average person to regain health, strength and flesh by using Samose. This flesh forming food is assimilated as soon as it enters the stomach.

CURES HIS ENNUI BY VISITING SALOONS

Washington.—Inspecting saloons in the District of Columbia for his health is the undertaking of F. Oden Horstmann, clubman, society man and champion golfer.

While the nature of Mr. Horstmann's work is to guard the health of those who patronize barrooms, it is literally true that he has accepted the position of inspector for the excise department for the benefit of his own health. Instead of paying doctor's bills he will receive $1000 a year and he hopes, a cure for ennui by watching for the government the drinking emporiums of the city.

Mr. Horstmann does not have to work, but when he consulted a physician recently concerning the condition of his health, the man of medicine prescribed "work in regular doses."

"Hahn't thought of that," the Washington clubman told the doctor. "I'll try it."

Suiting action to the word, he sought a government position and has been assigned to saloon inspection. He will forsake his clubs and golf links and daily see to it that the saloons of Washington are conducted according to regulations.

RED SPIDERS DAMAGE WESTERN OREGON HOPS

Salem, Ore.—Standing between two evils, a record breaking drought in the Willamette valley and an unprecedented scourge of red spider, the hop crop of the state of Oregon has suffered immensely the past week or 10 days and the yield, conservatively estimated from the standpoint of both the "bulls and bears," will fall approximately 5000 bales below that of last year. The yield of last year was about 84,000 bales, and the latest estimate for this season ranges between 82,000 and 100,000 bales.

The market has taken on a considerable stimulus as a result of the effects of the weather and increased ravages of the vermin within the past week, in consequence of which the growers began to assume a decidedly optimistic attitude and little trading in futures is the result. Thus far there has been no remedy presented to combat successfully the ravages of the red spider scourge, which is gaining impetus with each succeeding year, and unless there is a visitation of a good drenching rain within the next few days (the only thing that will check the destructive work of the spider), the loss to the growers cannot be estimated.

Much complaint was received from the brewers on account of the laxity or apparent indifference on the part of the growers last season in respect to the harvesting of their crops as a result of which the Oregon crop, which ordinarily brings the top price in both the eastern and English markets, suffered a severe slump in the quotations and a serious setback in demand. The early deliveries were such an inferior grade in point of picking that brewers refused to bid upon the offerings and paid the greater price for the California and North Yakima crops.

Oregon dealers in general have received warnings upon this score from the eastern factors, cautioning the growers to be more circumspect in the matter of picking, else the Oregon hop, which has heretofore commanded the highest price in the market, both domestic and foreign, stands in danger of losing its prestige.

PUNCH TIME CLOCKS AND EARN SALARIES

New York.—A new idea in nothing to do for a salary is in course of demonstration in the dismantled store formerly occupied by the Teft-Weller company in Broadway, where about 60 former employees of the firm which recently sold its interests and went out of business, ring in their time on the clock register morning and evening—and do nothing else all day.

If each of the employees can stand the strain of ringing in on a time clock a stated number of times every working day from now until December 31 he will receive his salary for so doing regularly and without diminution.

Each of the 60 has a large floor space to play around in, or if he feels so disposed he may occupy his hours between punching the time clock in seeking another job where there is real labor attached to the continuing monthly pay envelope.

It is said by some of those who now suffer the pangs of inaction with salary that probably the time clock will be in working order until December 31.

The Teft-Weller company sold out recently to the H. B. Clafin company. At that time the former company had verbal contracts with a number of its employes for service up to the end of the year. The retiring company honored the contracts in every instance.

FROM STABLE BOY TO RICH TURFMAN

London.—The probing of the roof of the late John Hammond, who rose from a stable boy to be one of the richest turfmen in England, recalls an interesting career in the racing world.

Mr. Hammond died enormously wealthy, but it was not until his will was published that it became known that he was worth $2,200,000 at the time of his death.

Mr. Hammond is one of the few men who made a fortune out of the turf. Usually racing is taken up by rich men and a means of getting sport at considerable outlay.

Hammond was the son of a blacksmith and he commenced his turf career as a stable boy.

He carefully saved his money and, with information that his place in the stables furnished, he became a heavy bettor. Luck favored him from the first. After half a dozen years of good fortune and economical living he was able to buy a small stable of his own.

From this time Mr. Hammond built up a great stable. His horse, St. Gatien, ran a dead heat in the derby and contended against the entries of King Edward and aristocrats of the realm. St. Gatien won the Caesars' whip. Another famous Hammond horse was Laureate II, who won the Cambridgeshire and Royal Hunt cup. Herminius of the Hammond stable won the Ascot stakes and the Manchester cup.

CLAIMED MRS. HARTJE MAY WED REPORTER

Pittsburg.—After sitting in the game of hearts between August Hartje, the multi-millionaire paper manufacturer, and his handsome wife, Mary Kenny Scott Hartje, whose marital troubles have filled the columns of the newspapers for the past five years with sensational disclosures, Charles Gillespie, a newspaperman who was assigned to the "story" when the trouble first broke, about five years ago will soon supplant the millionaire and become the husband of Mrs. Hartje.

According to the terms of the divorce which were agreed upon outside court, Mrs. Hartje will receive from her former husband the income from $100,000 during her life. A short time before the arrival at an agreement between Mr. Hartje and his wife, Gillespie retired from the newspaper business and is now said to be engaged in the real estate business.

Hartje says he has heard of the arrangements for the marriage. Mrs. Hartje evaded the question by saying, "I have had enough, anyway. Mr. Gillespie is a distant relative."

The first information that Gillespie's associates had of mutual interest between Mrs. Hartje and himself came after nearly two years of the court proceedings, when Mrs. Hartje went to Florida and Gillespie joined her there.

HE NEEDED GLAZIER NOT AN OPTICIAN

New York.—John Esmond of Orange, N. J., had acquired a black eye in a slight scuffle with a New York City man he entered Louis Schulman's drug store at 5 o'clock at night. When he insisted that he needed treatment for his right eye, a drug clerk proceeded to paint color scheme growing on that Jerseyman's cheek, temporarily ignoring the patient's requirements for other medical care.

Soothing lotions were applied and a neat bandage was fastened over the eye to prevent its further irritation by light, and Esmond was expressing gratitude for this relief when he suddenly clapped his hand to his face.

"Heavens!" he explained, apparently horror stricken, "I can hardly see out of this eye now."

The druggist examined the left eye which was not inflamed, and seemed strong and normal. He applied a lotion which Esmond, under instructions, vigorously winked into the convulsions of the eyelid.

"Now I can't see at all out of it," he announced, at the end of these ministrations. The druggist, alarmed, called Policeman Mahon, who landed Esmond in Bellevue hospital.

Esmond was taken to the surgical room, placed in a strong light and Dr. Drury prepared to make a complete inspection. He took one look at Esmond's eye.

"You need a glazier," he said, "not an oculist. That's a glass eye."

Esmond went to the alcoholic ward protesting that he did not believe his eye was glass.
