ALASKA COAL WORTH HALF CT.

Alfred H. Brooks, of the Geological Survey Gives Low Estimate of Present Value.

An advanced summary of an important article on Alaska coal by Alfred H. Brooks, of the Geological Survey, is published in this month's Alaska-Yukon Magazine. Regarding the value of the coal Mr. Brooks has this to say:

"Those unfamiliar with coal mining find it hard to understand why the value of a ton of coal in the ground should be so very small a fraction of its market price to the consumer. They lose sight of the facts that the coal in the ground is the raw material which the miner by his labor manufactures and the railway company transports, and that, as a rule, before the coal reaches the consumer several different individuals or corporations must have made a profit out of it."

"The writer has roughly estimated the accessible coal of the Bering and Matanuska fields as having a value of half a cent a ton in the ground. Exception has been taken to this valuation, but chiefly on the part of those who have given little consideration to the matter and who think of the value of the coal in terms of its retail price to the consumer. To these persons a valuation of half a cent appears another way of expressing the thought that these lands have no value at all. This is, however, far from being the case, for half a cent a ton is higher than the value, in spite of the fact that they are close to the centers of population, and hence to market. In fact, in some of the well-developed eastern fields good bituminous coal has recently sold for as low as one-thirtieth of a cent a ton in the ground."

"If this ton value is transposed to a basis of so much per acre, it will admit more readily of comparisons. Few tonnage estimates have been made in the Behring river and Matanuska coal fields, but the best information available indicates that these lands will yield between 10,000 and 100,000 tons to the acre. This means that some of the lands will yield only 10,000 tons of coal to the acre; others may yield as much as 100,000 tons. Multiplying this acre tonnage by half a cent (the estimated value of the coal in the ground) indicates that these lands are worth from $50 to $500 an acre. Such values are far above the average of the bituminous coal lands in the United States."

POINTS OUT INCREASE IN SCHOOL INDEBTEDNESS

Olympia, Wash.—Pointing out the alarming increase in school district indebtedness, and urging a general effort to remove the growing incubus, State Superintendent Henry B. Dewey has addressed a circular letter to the county superintendents, giving the figures of school indebtedness throughout the state for each child of school age. This has increased from $3.54 in 1899 to $33.86 in 1909. Superintendent Dewey makes the surprising statement that the districts of the state are paying out more money on the interests of indebtedness than the total interests coming in from the investment of the permanent school fund. The text of the letter follows:

"At present 7 per cent of all the expenditures for school purposes are for payment of interest. So far as the schools are concerned, this money is wasted. The net indebtedness (deducting cash on hand) per child of school age increased from $3.54 in 1899 to $33.86 in 1909; between 1905 and 1909 the net indebtedness per child of school age increased $4.67."

"Many districts are paying 8 per cent on warrants. In many cases this rate could be reduced to 4 per cent and the warrants be floated without discount."

"In districts having outstanding bonds, urge the county commissioners to establish a sinking fund, if possible, under the provisions of the code of public instructions. Then keep the sinking fund invested in school warrants."

"Note carefully the expenditures for incidental expenses of the districts. In 1909 the items included under this head (fuel, interest, repairs, free text books, libraries, etc.) required 22.3 per cent of the total expenditures for school purposes."

"I wish to call your attention chiefly to the levy for the current year. A large number of districts have outstanding warrants. Unless there is some reason for not doing so, it seems to me that these districts should include in their report to the county commissioners an estimate for payment of outstanding warrants."

DREDGING FOR HALF BILLION.

Big Operations on Seward Peninsula, Alaska, are After Rich Prize.

Placer mining on Seward Peninsula will receive an impetus this year by the installation of a number of new dredges. There is an abundance of gold in Seward Peninsula. The serious question has been how to mine it at a profit. Most of the placer gold in this part of Alaska is in what is known as unconcentrated gravel. There are vast gravel deposits in the various parts of the peninsula. All of them are auriferous. The placer gold deposits of Seward Peninsula have been variously estimated from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000. About $5,000,000 has been mined and the larger part of this has been taken from concentrated placers. Some of them are unusually rich, but the greater part of the placer gold is in low-grade gravels, which must be mined by dredging.—Alaska-Yukon Magazine.

Night Riders Raid Woman.

Glascow, Ky.—News has reached here that "night riders" visited the home of Mrs. Mary Buchanan of Gresham, in Green county, and demolished a mill owned by her, cutting belts, breaking pumps and in various ways damaging the property.

Later in the night the party, it is said, made an assault upon the home, knocking in doors and breaking windows. Mrs. Buchanan and little son frightened them away by firing on them.

BACK TO NATURE WITH A VENGEANCE

It is reported on good authority that there is a company of Eugene's prominent ladies who are spending the summer vacation in a somewhat secluded place, where they are putting into practice their "back to nature" fad for health's sake with a vengeance. They have not worn their shoes or stockings since they first struck their rendezvous and their feet have become so calloused and scaly that they now tramp it barefooted all around camp without flinching for sharp stones and ordinary ouches. One of the ladies carried barrels of sand from a bank in a sack on her shoulders and completely covered the floor of their domicile and the nearby ground so as to make it easy on their feet. They are getting their health, however, and as as tough and wiry as they were in their girlhood days, and their feet will be free from corns and bunions for the next year and their health better for it. While it may not seem just the thing among the ladies, we have no doubt it would do much to restore health if it were practised more generally.—Eugene Register.
