WHEAT DECLINES BY FRENCH BREAK

NORTHWEST MARKET FALLS WITH REST

Loss in Paris Brings Rest of the World Lower; Bluestem Differential Affected and is Smaller.

Lower prices have resulted in the wheat market here during the past week but the downfall of prices has not been early so marked as in the east and Europe, says Sunday's Journal. The decline in French wheat values was very heavy and this was the influence of most importance in bringing all other world's wheat prices down.

Contrary to expectations there was a very good selling movement at interior wheat points during the early part of the week although toward the close as during the preceding period; the activity was less marked but small lots continued to be taken here and there.

One of the features of special interest in the Pacific northwest market during the week was the continuance of the downward trend of the differential between bluestem and other grades of wheat. At the start of the season 10c more was being offered for milling bluestem than for club wheat but this week the differential was cut down to 7c and some were not willing to pay more than 5c a bushel additional for the better grade.

Much Depends Upon Outsiders.
Whether the differential between bluestem and other grades of wheat will be further contracted or widened again depends almost altogether upon the attitude of outsiders. To date France has not come into the market for as much bluestem wheat as expected and has taken fortyfold instead. This sells at an advance of 2c a bushel over the club.

California has been inclined to take some of our bluestem recently, and therefore has been bidding up high to get it. Quotations for southern account have therefore been the highest in the market during the week. Farmers are showing a disposition to let go of about half their wheat and are content to speculate upon the remainder.

Oats Steadier But Lower.
Although the price of oats dropped down to $28 a ton track delivery for No. 1 white during the past week; this being a decline of 50c to $1 a ton from last week's purchase; the market is really showing a steadier tone and buyers are more inclined to take hold at present values. There is an inclination among some oat growers to let go of a portion of their crop at the price offered but it is unlikely that any great quantity could be secured just now at prevailing figures.

Barley showed considerable steadiness and with an advance in California prices it is likely that the movement from that direction will subside and dealers will be forced into the local barley market.

Timothy Hay Scarce and Higher.
Higher prices due to the scarcity of offerings is shown by the market for the better grade hays during the past six days. Timothy of quality is exceedingly hard to get just now. Growers are not inclined to offer supplies and this has forced the bids of buyers up from 50c to $1 a ton during the week. At the close of the week as high as $20 a ton was bid track delivery for No. 1 Willamette valley timothy but even at the advance little was secured. The cheaper grades of hay are in good supply and heretofore the market for them has been weaker. With the increasing scarcity of timothy and the higher price therefore the market for cheaper hays is steady.

WOMAN WINS AS TWIRLER.

Opposing Players Unable to Hit Her Peculiar Pitching.
Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. Milton Lewis, a young St. Louis matron, would not permit the Chautauqua baseball club to forfeit a game to the Plasas team on the Chautauqua grounds recently, when the pitcher failed to appear, so she stepped into the box, took the "sphere" from the hands of the umpire, twisted her supple figure into a contortion much like that of twirlers she had seen and threw the first ball, but not over the plate. She pitched until the regular slab artist arrived.

Mrs. Lewis went to the baseball grounds to witness the game arranged between the Chautauqua club and the Plasas. Frank Hogan of St. Louis, the chautauqua pitcher, was reported missing.

The case seemed hopeless and it looked as though the Plasas would carry victory by default to their home near Godfrey, Ill. It was then Mrs. Lewis came to the front.

"You!" exclaimed the eight Chautauquans in unison.
"You need not be so contemptuous about it. I can pitch." Mrs. Lewis said with considerable emphasis on the "can." And Mrs. Lewis pitched.

The first ball indicated to the interested spectators she was neither a born nor a made pitcher, but all applauded her effort.

At first it seemed a shame to the Plasas to "take the money." Such a "cinch" never had come their way before. But they reckoned without their host. They couldn't hit. It was peculiar pitching, soft and easy, but elusive. Swish! bang! swash! went the Plasas' bats in vain attempts to line 'em out. Instead of hitting the ball they strained their backs.

did, proceeding to London by way of Paris.

Trustworthy information about the Duke of Abruzzi's movements and whereabouts has not been obtainable here. There is most excellent foundation, however, for the belief that whatever may be said to the contrary the rather sentimental relations between the young people have not been broken off.

Wherever Miss Elkins goes she takes with her a fine photo-portrait, which is the Duke's gift, and wherever she stops this picture is seen on her dressing table.

From Vichy comes the rumor that Mr. Hitt's sudden going is significant of his jealousy at the renewed advantage gained over him by the Duke of Abruzzi in the contest for Miss Elkins' hand.

BABY FALLS SIX STORIES.

Body Hits Man, But Both Escape Serious Injury in Accident.

New York.—Seven-year-old Pauline Weidman of 153 Seigel street, Brooklyn, while playing on the fire escape on the sixth floor, lost her balance and fell. She struck the fire escape at the third floor, rolled over, and then fell to the sidewalk. But there she landed on a man of generous proportions. He went down under the shock, but both he and Pauline were unharmed, except for a bruise of two.

Meanwhile, the tenement house district was thrown into confusion by the screams of Pauline and the members of her family. Several calls were made for an ambulance. Dr. Campbell of St. Catherine's hospital hurried to the scene.

At the sound of the ambulance gong 7-year-old Samuel Littowitz, who was visiting his aunt at a house opposite, 157 Seigel street, ran to the fifth floor window and got on the fire escape. He lost his balance and fell to the sidewalk and the shock killed him instantly.

PARIS GRAVE DIGGERS AND UNDERTAKERS CLASH

Paris.—A conflict between Paris grave-diggers and undertakers has resulted in singular scenes at the great cemetery of Pere Lachaise.

The undertakers have declared a lockout. Sappers were to be seen temporarily engaged in the grave-diggers' task. With views of preventing disturbances, parties of policemen were stationed here and there in the cemetery.

So far, the other cemeteries in Paris have not been affected by the undertakers' action.

The agitation began by an undertaker refusing to discharge a non-union marble-cutter. The union men threaten, if the masters persist in the lockout "a general strike of hewers of stone, both hard and soft, cemetery gardeners, municipal workmen, grave diggers and vault masons" in all the Paris cemeteries.

The sappers hitherto have done but little grave digging, their chief task having been to open vaults and lower coffins therein.
