OREGON FOOTBALL SQUAD IS HARD AT PRACTICE
 University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore., September 27.—Headed by Coach Warner, the Oregon football team is now in the preliminary practice of the year, such as falling on the ball, catching punts and improving the wind. Coach Warner believes in hard work and plenty of it and the veterans of the team find the early practice of the same length of time and strenuousness as the mid-season grind.
 With eight old men in line, Warner has a nucleus to work around. Graduation cut deeply into the ranks of last year's team. Perhaps the greatest loss is that of Dud Clark, the punter of the last four seasons. His absence leaves Oregon without a punter and Coach Warner has his work cut out to fill Clark's shoes.
 The assistant coaches this season are Gordon Moores and Hunt. Moores is too well known in northwest football circles to need introduction. He is playing on the Oregon team for four years, was consistently brilliant. Moores has the reputation among football men of being one of the craftiest who ever played in the northwest. His choice of chief assistant to Warner is a timely one.
 Hunt, of Cornell, is also a good football man and comes with a football reputation.
 Louis Pinkham, one of the greatest tackles known in the northwest, will also assist during the season.
 The physical condition of the squad will be in the keeping of Bill Hayward, the greatest trainer of the west.
 The squad at Oregon this year consists of some 50 men. From this bunch of material will be formed three teams, the varsity, the second team and the freshman.
 The varsity will play the following games:
 Alumni, October 15, Eugene.
 Willamette university, October 22, Eugene.
 Idaho university, October 29, Moscow.
 O. A. C., November 12, Corvallis.
 Whitworth, November 19, Eugene.
 M. A. A. C., November 25, Portland.
 The second team will probably meet Albany college Chemawa and other secondary teams. The freshmen will meet the O. A. C. "babes" and probably some high school teams.

WOMEN CHINAMAKERS WORK AT FORGE IN SQUALID HOMES
 London.—The women chinamakers of Cradley Heath are "locked out," and 500 of them have no employment even at their pitiable wages of 5 cents per hour. They are women who by 60 hours a week of the hardest kind of physical toll can never hope to make more than $3 and $4.

 The question of the trouble is an intricate one perhaps. It may best be summarized as follows: The board of trade three months ago fixed a minimum wage of 5 cents an hour. The probationary period allowed for objections has now expired, but any employer who can show an agreement in writing by his workers to continue at the old wage is not obliged to pay the official minimum wage for another six months.
 The majority of the employers profess themselves ready to abide by the new rate if the smaller employers will do so, but the latter, in most cases, refuse and have been pressing the workers for signed agreements. It is because of their refusal to sign these agreements that the women are now idle.
 In all England you will find nothing to beat the sheer sordid squalor of Cradley Heath. In its slums practically every house has its chinshop, with forge and bellows, wherein men, women and children toil feverishly forging china. In one of these a woman was turning rods of iron into plough chains. A baby hung in an improvised cradle from the ceiling, and two other children, sickly and stunted, sat in a heap of cinders on the floor. The chain-maker, without stopping her work for an instant, contrived to keep an eye on her children, and 10 or 11 hours a day she could make about $2 a week, but out of that she had to pay 50 cents for fuel, or, as she called it, "breeze." Then she had to pay 12 cents a week in rent for the forge, which was not her own. Altogether it was rarely she cleared $1.25 a week. She began work at 7 in the morning, taking an hour for dinner and half an hour each for breakfast and tea, and never knocked off until 7.
 All the time she was talking she went on busily with her work, heating the red red-hot, bending it into the shape of a staple with two or three quick hammer strokes, and then, having cut off the staple and passed it through the last made link of the chain, hammering the two glowing ends together.
 Sweat poured from her face and arms as she labored. Her hands and arms were covered with burns from flying sparks. Occasionally she would straighten herself, gasping for a fraction of a second to let a little air into her congested lungs.
 Asked why she did it, "To pass the time away and keep myself warm," she laughed bitterly, and added more seriously, pointing to the children, "I've 'em to keep and feed somehow, you know."
 Your complexion as well as your temper is rendered miserable by a disordered liver. By taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets you can improve both. Sold by all dealers.

GARDENER AT WHITE HOUSE LEAVES CASH FOR CHURCH
 London.—The old parish church at Chatteris, Cambridge, has been restored through the generosity of a man who had long been a gardener at the White House grounds, Washington, D. C. In this connection there is an interesting story told by his relatives.
 Robert Wright was sexton of the church in the first part of the last century, and his son William was a helper. The lad, however, set out for America, where he obtained a position at the White House.
 Years after he paid a visit to his old home, and found the church crumbling away. He returned to America, tending the White House gardens under the presidencies of Hayes, Garfield, Grant, Cleveland and Harrison.
 Eventually retiring he came back to Walthamstown, where he spent the remainder of his days.
 In his first will he left 500 pounds for the repair of Chatteris church, later he left the residue of his property to the restoration fund, and in all the legacy amounted to nearly 5000 pounds, and now, six years after his death, the object of his ambition is completed.
