EXAMINATION FOR FOREST RANGERS

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION ANNOUNCES TESTS OCT. 24-25

Northwest States Included in List of Office Vacancies—Entrance Salary Is $1000 Per Annum.

The civil service commission will hold an examination for assistant forest ranger on October 24-25, 1910. The U. S. department of agriculture estimates that 400 eligibles will be needed during the field season of 1911. Assistant forest rangers are paid an entrance salary of $1100 per annum.

The examination will be held at national forest headquarters in Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming. No examinations will be held in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Utah, except at Kanab national forest. Since all of the national forest is in Arizona, residents of Arizona will, under the law, have preference in appointments for this forest.

Forest rangers must be, when practicable, citizens of the state or territory in which the national forest on which they are to be appointed is situated. In the states in which no examinations are to be held there is still a sufficient list of eligibles to make the holding of another examination unnecessary.

The requirements and duties of forest rangers are thus described in "The Use Book," which contains the regulations and instructions for the use of the national forests:

"A ranger of any grade must be thoroughly sound and able-bodied, capable of enduring hardships and performing severe labor under trying conditions. He must be able to take care of himself and his horses in regions remote from settlement and supplies. He must be able to build trails and cabins, ride, pack and deal tactfully with all classes of people. He must know something of land surveying, estimating and scaling timber, logging, land laws, mining and the livestock business.

"On some forests the ranger must be a specialist in one or more of these lines of work. Thorough familiarity with the region in which he seeks employment, including its geography and its forest and industrial conditions, is usually demanded, although lack of this may be supplied by experience in similar regions.

"The examination of applicants is along the practical lines indicated above, and actual demonstration by performance, is required. Invalids seeking light out-of-door employment need not apply. Experience, not book education, is sought, although ability to make simple maps and write intelligent reports upon ordinary forest business is essential.

"For duty in some parts of Arizona and New Mexico the ranger must know enough Spanish to conduct forest business with Mexicans.

"Where saddle horses or pack horses are necessary in the performance of their duty, rangers are required to own and maintain them. The forest service furnishes no personal or horse equipment.

"Rangers execute the work of the national forests under the direction of supervisors. Their duties include patrol to prevent fire and trespass, estimating, surveying, and marking timber, the supervision of cuttings and similar work. They issue miner permits, build cabins and trails, oversee grazing business, investigate claims, report on applications and report upon and arrest for violation of forest laws and regulations."

The examination will consist of questions regarding the use of the forest, supplemented by a field test to show the applicant's fitness to do the actual work of a ranger. Education and experience will be rated on the answers to the questions on those subjects in the application form and on the applicant's use of English in the written test. Horses for the tests in riding and packing will be provided by the forest service.

Details regarding the examination, including the names of the places at which it will be held, will be sent to anyone applying to the United States civil service commission, Washington, D. C.

SPAIN'S BATTLE WITH CHURCH GROWS SERIOUS

Berlin.—Political interest in Europe at present is all directed toward Spain, where the great struggle is still going on which is to mold the destinies of King Alfonso's kingdom for years to come.

Were the people of Spain as enlightened as the Germans the conflict would be short, for they would then realize, as the higher classes do, that the religious question is largely financial—a question to decide whether associations shall be allowed to exist which are uncontrolled by the state and which may thus carry on industries without paying their share of the taxes, of which the national treasury is so hard in need.

The industries of the religious congregations are far from being the only case in which the rights of the state are evaded in Spain; the estates of many private individuals are, for the purposes of taxation, assessed far below their real value, and statistics show that the years 1897-1906 the state received only 77 per cent of its recognized dues in industrial taxation.

But the simple peasants of the north understand only that the church and their religion are attacked—so the local press and their priests have told them—and the Basques, a noble, ancient, strongly conservative race, are as eager to protect their ancient religion as they were to protect their ancient privileges, or fueros. The Basques, however, have been disillusioned by two Carlist wars, which resulted in the loss of their beloved fueros, and today even those most inclined to take up arms will shake their heads wistfully and say: "The government is very strong."

The precaution taken by the government of sending troops to Tolosa, Alencun, Pamplona, Durango and other small towns was warranted, for the Basques and Navarrese make the best soldiers in Spain and are very formidable in their hilly, intricate country, where many peasants still record with pride the doing of Santa Cruz, the curacabecilla, who, they say, in the second Carlist war, "knew more than all the governments."

But the sight of the troops has apparently produced its effect, and through the Catholic juntas of the four provinces—Navarre, Guipuzcoala, Alava and Biscay—may continue to summon meetings and manifestations, they would certainly fail to organize a general rising, even were they to make the attempt.

Their energy will probably spend itself in publishing addresses such as that now issued by the junta of Biscay, which ends with the words: "Forward, inhabitants of Biscay! Let the impious revolutionaries learn that this is the land of brave men, that we despise their threats and can in a single moment of decision put an end forever to their ridiculous bravado."
