ALLEGED SLAYER OF PERRY IS INDICTED

T. R. ELLEXSON CHARGED WITH UNION MURDER

Man Captured in Echo and Accused of Murdering Deputy Assessor of Union County, Will Be Tried Soon—Great Interest Is Manifest.

La Grande, Oct. 6.—There was considerable excitement in this city Tuesday evening when it became known that the grand jury had indicted T. R. Ellexson for the murder of Waldo Perry at Union a short time ago. Ellexson will be tried at the present term of court and his trial promises to attract such crowds that the court room will not hold the people.

Perry was shot down in his home by some unknown party and his body was not found for more than a week when neighbors broke into the house. They knew he was at home and feared he might be sick. They were greatly shocked to find his body with six bullet holes in it, lying at the foot of the stairs. Not a clue was found that would lead to the identity of the murderer.

Ellexson had been working for Perry and a couple of weeks before the crime left for Union and went to Baker City. He left Baker on Saturday and the crime is supposed to have been committed on Saturday or Sunday night. Ellexson was arrested at Echo, his whereabouts having been ascertained by a letter which he wrote to Mrs. Perry. He was brought to La Grande and placed in jail to await developments.

The fact that the grand jury returned an indictment against Ellexson leads to the belief that more evidence has been found to implicate the accused man. The public is familiar with the circumstances surrounding the case and it is not thought that the grand jury would return an indictment on such flimsy evidence.

The trial will probably be one of the most sensational in Union county, as Perry was well known all over the Grand Ronde valley. He was a young man and very popular with all who knew him. The atrocity of the crime has aroused great public feeling and people from all over the valley will be in attendance at the trial.

HAZING AT UNIVERSITY EFFECTUALLY ABOLISHED

University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.—Hazing at the state university seems to be effectually abolished. Not only is hazing done away with, but also largely the desire for hazing. The drastic measures taken last year by the president in expelling from the university several second year men who indulged in a slight hazing of some freshmen, coupled with the severe disapproval of all the faculty, alumni and older students upon all forms of the practice of hazing seem to have accomplished its stamping out. Moral suasion this year alone is the rod of iron with which freshmen are ruled. Obstreperous members are fast learning to walk uprightly from the simple reason that they respect the opinion of their fellows. This opinion among upper classmen that the least form of hazing, besides being thoroughly undemocratic, un-American, wholly at variance with the theory of American institutions, and above all, extremely dangerous to the university, is so strong that its quiet haven is working fast in the ranks of the 250 freshmen. Freshmen who are best absorbing the new spirit do not care to invite criticism and disapproval by foolishly tempting and daring upper classmen to retaliate. Thus, it is being demonstrated in the miniature republic at the university that the most effective weapon of administration is quiet suasion.

For Over Three Decades.

Foley's Honey and Tar has been a reliable household medicine and the "children's children" find it today the same safe and sure remedy for coughs and colds that their grandfathers did. Mahala Stockwell, Hannibal, Missouri, writing under date of August 28, 1910, has this to say about this great medicine. "I have recently used for the first time Foley's Honey and Tar cough medicine. To say that I am pleased with it does not half express my feelings. It is by far the best I ever used. I had contracted a bad cold and was nearly sick in bed, having a terrible headache as well as a cough and was threatened with pneumonia. I used but one bottle of your Foley's Honey and Tar and was completely cured. It beats all the remedies I ever used and I have used many different kinds." A. C. Koepfen & Bros.

CZAR WALKS UNGUARDED.

Newspaper Stories of Close Surveillance Untrue. Berlin.—Columns have been printed in the democratic press about the precautions taken to ensure the safety of the czar during his visit to Hesse and a reader would get the impression that the Russian ruler never left the precincts of Friedberg Schloss except in the middle of an impenetrable ring of detectives. So far is this from being the case that the measures adopted do not even suffice to protect his majesty from the intrusive curiosity of the holiday-making public. The German authorities waxed indignant and sent this outburst to the newspapers: "As the czar sat yesterday on one of the benches of the promenade at Bad Nauheim he was recognized by some of the visitors, and molested in a manner that was positively scandalous. People stationed themselves directly opposite him, stared and surrounded him, and pointed at him with their fingers. It was only with difficulty that the czar could escape these annoyances. If such occurrences should be repeated, it would be made

TIME TO PLANT WINTER GRAINS

PROMINENT AUTHORITY GIVES FEW POINTERS

F. D. Farrell Before Dry Farming Congress Tells Best Time of Planting Winter Grain on the Dry Lands.

In speaking before the Dry Farming congress at Spokane, F. D. Farrell, director in charge of the southern Idaho agricultural extension at Boise, said in part:

A large number of factors must be carefully considered in connection with the time-of-planting problem. Positive time rules advocated as the result of experiments conducted in a single locality cannot be relied upon in places where the conditions are not similar to those obtaining where the experiments were carried on. If the behavior of the crops planted at different times has been carefully observed, however, certain facts can be made to assist farmers operating in widely different localities.

Some varieties germinate more quickly than others; soft wheats, for example, usually sprout sooner after planting than the hard wheats do. Some varieties stool more extensively than others. Some are inclined to produce a heavy foliage, while others—the Turkey wheat, for example—produce very little foliage.

After considering moisture, seed and soil conditions, this summary is reached:

1. The best time to plant varies with the locality and with the season in each.
2. Different varieties behave differently when planted at the same time, some being quick and some slow germinators; some producing heavy foliage while others do not; some being heavy stoolers and others stooling very little, etc. The characteristics of the variety to be grown should be learned, and the time of planting decided accordingly, with due consideration for the moisture conditions.
3. The autumn behavior of the winter grain crop is strongly influenced by the moisture conditions in the surface foot of the soil. These conditions should be studied by the farmer and so controlled as to insure continuous growth after the seed has germinated.
4. The crop should be planted with regard not only for the autumn soil moisture, but also for the moisture to be used by the crop up to the time of maturity.
5. Grain planted early in a dry soil is likely to mould before germination; in soil with only a small amount of moisture, it is in danger of drought during dry fall periods; in wet soil, where the grain is planted early, an excessive amount of foliage is often produced, resulting in a large yield of straw, with a relatively small yield of grain, usually shrunken. In regions of summer rain this danger is practically negligible, but it should be remembered that we want grain and not a large yield of straw.
6. Grain planted late may not germinate until spring, and is likely to be crowded out by weeds; or it may be killed in the fall by low temperatures.

7. In a broad, general way, it is best to avoid extremes—very early very late planting—Medium planting being usually desirable, particularly in the mountain states. In the regions of abundant summer rains, early planting is generally advisable.

8. Farmers and experimenters should study the behavior of the different varieties under the varying conditions as mentioned above and apply their findings in such a way as to suit the peculiarities of each locality and season.

BRUIN IN AUTO HOLDS UP TRAFFIC

London.—The artist known as the little Georgia Magnet, Miss Annie Abbott in private life, has a black bear for a pet.

Going shopping in the Strand the other morning, she took her mascot with her and left him in the car when she got down to make purchases. A crowd rapidly gathered to see the strange beast, and a constable, finding the traffic going wrong, decided to summon the chauffeur, James Hook, for causing an obstruction.

The complaints were heard at a short distance away. Two constables stated that the small black bear sitting at the back of the car attracted a great crowd. The crowd both completely blocked the footway and interfered with the vehicle traffic. When the chauffeur was spoken to he drove away and then returned, saying, "I shall stay here as long as I like."

The magistrate said there would have to be an inclusive fine of 23 shillings, but he did not know that there was anything to prevent a bear having a ride in a motor car.

Extending Heligoland.

Berlin.—Germany has just undertaken the artificial extension of one of her most treasured island possessions—Heligoland—which was ceded to her by Great Britain in 1890. The sea's encroachments on the island have recently given some cause for anxiety, and as extensive dredging operations are being carried on at the mouth of the Elbe, the sand transported to Heligoland, and transported to Heligoland.

The new deposits are found to "grow to" the island in a very satisfactory manner, and already its bulk has been considerably increased. This "empire building" will be continued with all future dredgings from German North Sea ports.

impossible for the czar in future to show himself in public and go for walks."

That the emperor of Russia was not so much disturbed about the matter as his hosts is shown by the fact that on the day he left the Schloss on foot with his daughter, and followed the fieldpaths to the Ludwigsbrunn. Here they climbed the wooden steps, a hundred feet high, leading up to the salt works, which they examined. The czar and the princess walked back to Friedberg.

Medicines Made from Roots and Herbs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they depended upon medicines made from the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that standard remedy which is made from roots and herbs for woman's ills, had its origin in this way. For thirty years it has been redeeming its promises written on the label of every bottle by curing thousands of women of feminine ills. It's a good honest medicine.
