POINTS OUT EVILS OF FARM RENTING

CHARLES S. BARRETT URGES POSSESSION OF LAND

President of Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America Decries Present Conditions—Advocates Scientific and Diversified Farming.

Pendleton members of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America have received copies of a letter from National President Charles S. Barrett of Georgia, in which he decries the evils of farm renting and calls upon all members of the union to acquire possession of the land from which they make their living. Scientific and diversified farming are also urged upon the members of the union.

The letter follows: One of the greatest evils America is facing today is feudalism in the country districts—in other words that condition which many millions of farmer tenants upon the land from which they must earn a living.

Americans have fought to the last ditch for their homes. It is a humorous axiom that no man ever stood in the last ditch for his boarding house, and it is certain that no farmer is going to discharge his duty, in times of peace or war, if the roof that shelters him is the property of another man, and the acres that feed him are simply rented for a year or a term of years.

The entire nation is more or less wrestling with the problems of tenancy. But it is probable the southern states are called upon to face it in its most aggravated form.

I know of, not one, but scores of instances in which southern farmers actually rejected proposals by which they might easily have acquired their own farms. They preferred instead to rent the land upon either a system of "cropping" or of money payments which, in a few years would aggregate more than the entire cost of the place.

BUTTERLESS FRUIT CAKE.

Many housewives say it is impossible to make a good fruit cake without butter. The recipe below will give you as rich, flavory a fruit cake as you ever tasted; yet there is no butter in it:

Mix four cups sifted pastry flour, one level teaspoon soda, two level teaspoons mixed spices (except cloves), one-fourth level teaspoon salt and two cups seeded and quartered raisins. Add also one-half cup nuts chopped fine, if you like. Blend one-half cup Cottole with one cup brown sugar and one cup white sugar, add one cup molasses, one cup milk and then the flour mixture. Beat well and bake in two pans.

Such a policy, and it is pursued in the south to a ruinous extent, leads nowhere save to dependency or indifference to prosperity.

So that one thing the Farmers' union has endeavored to encourage, has been personal ownership of the farms of its members, against that vicious system of "cropping" by which the tenant is little better than slave to the land holder.

The man who does not own his farm is likely to be almost constantly in debt to his land lord. From one year's end to another, his obligations are perpetual and self-renewing. He must consult his landlord regarding what crops and how much of each crop he shall cultivate. Often he is under debt for the very necessities of life, and in a few cases I have known his type to drag out a hand-to-mouth existence.

I found this warning now, so far as regards the south as well as every other section of the nation, that at the galloping rate lands are enhancing owning your own farm a few years hence will be a luxury. Today, only a certain amount of enterprises, self-denial and thrift is essential. The process is open to the humblest and poorest farmer in America.

Hand in hand with home-owning, should go the policy of scientific and diversified farming.

During the panic of 1907 I know several wise farmers in the immediate neighborhood of my home, who raised on their places every product necessary to the sustenance of man and beast.

These men weathered the roughest part of the panic almost in ignorance of the existence of such a thing. They would not, in face have known of the existence of a panic had it not been for the straightened circumstances of their less wide-awake friends, many of whom had to borrow money with which to buy food brought from outside the state when that food should have been raised upon their own acres.

We are not yet immune to panics in this country. The visitation of 1907 will sooner or later be repeated.

If you raise your own food supplies as well as food for your cattle and stock you will not feel the pinch of panic.

In this connection, it is hardly necessary for me to say that diversified agriculture means you shall make cotton largely a surplus crop.

The farmer who "single shots" on cotton is putting all his eggs in one basket. He is paying tribute to the western cattle and grain dealer out of his cotton money for the supplies with which to raise his cotton crop.

He is mortgaging his main money crop before the latter goes in the ground and that is the worst economic fallacy that could be perpetrated.

I know that it will require self-sacrifice for a time, the denying one's self of small luxuries, both to own one's own farm and, perhaps, to practice diversified farming. The game is worth the candle.

GIRL LIVES IN BOX, SEEMED LIKE SPOOK

London.—Nothing stranger has been related recently in the London police courts than the escapade of a young girl in a house in West Kensington.

The girl, Anna Belman, aged sixteen, appeared before the West London magistrate, charged with being "a suspected person."

Behind the formal complaint lies a strange story, which was related by Mrs. Edgar and her daughter, who live in the house in question. The house is a large three-story one, in a quiet neighborhood.

"For a fortnight," said Miss Muriel Edgar, "we have heard noises in the house, but we were not nervous, and we assumed that they were only the ordinary sounds one hears on a windy night, the creaking of doors, and other slight disturbances. We had noticed, however, that the bread had been going for a fortnight past, and we could not understand its disappearance."

"One afternoon the maid came rushing downstairs and said there was somebody in her room. I went up, taking a police whistle with me, and looked under the maid's bed. No one was there, and I opened her trunk with my foot. I could see no one there, but I noticed a movement in the trunk. I screamed and ran downstairs."

"In answer to the call of the whistle, a policeman came, and he, my mother and myself returned to the maid's room. There was nothing in the trunk then, so we went down to the next floor. There is an ottoman box there and the policeman opened it. At first we saw nothing but a great mass of black hair. When the figure inside the ottoman moved and we saw that it was a girl. Poor girl she looked more like an animal than a human being.

"At first we saw only her eyes showing through her matted hair, and her toes sticking up at the end of the ottoman. When we got her out, she looked like a girl of 16, bigish for her age. Her clothes, such as they were, just a blouse and a pinafore and some rags, were very dirty. She was quite dazed when we got her out of the ottoman, and rubbed her eyes, as if she had just awakened from a long sleep."

In answer to the question of the astonished women and the policeman the girl said she had been in the house for a fortnight, concealed by day in a box and prowling around the house by night.

TRAIN TEN MILES LONG FOR WALLA WALLA FRUIT

Walla Walla, Wash.—Ten miles of fruit, the width of a refrigerator car, and packed solidly, will have been shipped from Walla Walla valley this fall, according to the most conservative estimates. Those more liberal place the length of the train that would be required to haul the fruit at 15 miles. The first estimate is based upon the estimate of 1200 cars of fruit from the valley, but this is considered low, and men who have made careful study of the situation say the shipments will go forward between 1500 and 1800 cars.

The prune season practically closed last week, and it is figured that some 250 cars of that fruit were shipped from the valley. The prunes have been a good source of revenue this year, and averaged some $28 to $30 a ton the season through. By the carload they netted about $500, a return of $125,000 from the prune orchards of the valley.

Apples will net much more, as the big orchards of the valley are planted to this fruit. Already shipments of fall varieties have begun, and winter apples are fast ripening. The weather has been ideal for apples, and the crop is estimated to be bigger by nearly a third than ever before. Few apples are damaged by worms this year, although codling moth appears to have been a hard problem this season. Four sprayings seem to have been too much for the pest, however, and for the most part the orchards are remarkably clean.

The other half of the fruit shipments are made up from cherries, pears, peaches and other fruits, which have been shipped in car lots and in part cars. The express companies have been doing a rushing business ever since the season opened, and report the heaviest year they have ever had.

Don't pose. The poet doesn't wear his hair long simply because there is no short cut to fame.

LITTLE NEWS BITS GATHERED IN ALBEE

(Special Correspondence.) Albee, Ore., Oct. 9.—The weather is fine since the big rains a week ago. Grass is growing good and all nature has taken new life. With another rain in a few days the fall range will be good. Most of the sheep have been driven down from the high mountains and are on their winter range.

S. B. Neil and George Hofer arrived home last Monday from the Powder river peaks where they have been working their mining claims the past three months. F. H. Wright, their partner, is in North Powder but will soon go to upper Butter creek to hunt and trap coyotes and other furs this winter.

Ed Brehm came in yesterday from Weston to look after his interests here. Mr. Brehm will probably be here most of the winter, as his brother, Y. F. Brehm, who has been running the farm, contemplates moving to the valley soon.

Joe Sturdevant the Ukiah farmer, and deputy assessor, took a load of porkers out to Pilot Rock the other day and returned home yesterday.

Jas. Scott, a former resident of the Prairie, was transacting business here this week.

Jas. Huston of Ukiah, went out to the Rock Friday and returned yesterday with a load of apples. Mr. Huston will commence work on the John Day bridge in a few days with George Hofer as boss carpenter.

H. G. Casteel passed through here today for Pilot Rock. Mr. Casteel will move to Ukiah as soon as he can close out his business in the Rock.

M. F. Dick and J. W. Ellis returned from the Rock yesterday with brick and lime for two chimneys for A. S. Quant's residence.

Mrs. H. C. Fisher left last week for a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Walla Walla and Chautauk, Wash.

Bert Livermore of Pendleton passed through here yesterday in his auto for a hunting trip at the Henry Lazinka ranch.

Wm. Welch stayed here Friday night with 175 fat cows which he expected to sell to Nate Hains.

James Jones, the cattle buyer, stayed here one night this week en route south to buy cattle.

"Hank" Arbogast of the Arbogast Bros' saw mill, went to North Fork yesterday to look after interests over there for a few days.

GRAPEVINES TO BE USED AS SNOW FENCE

Cadillac, Mich.—There is talk among G. R. & L. railroad men to the effect that next spring the company will commence the construction of a new kind of snow fence. Vineyards from Grand Rapids to the straits but without grapes on the vines are talked of. The present snow fences are inadequate to the demands made upon them in February and March.

Seeds of wild grape vines will be sown along the woven wire fences which they will climb, become a formidable barrier to the snows of the coldest and wildest months. Besides that the grape vines will be a pleasing thing to look at in the summer months.

Lost or Strayed. Left my place near Adams, one small bay mule 2 years, branded 7 with bar through it on left shoulder, tail trimmed, had halter on when last seen. Liberal reward will be paid for information leading to the recovery of above described animal.
