

SOCIETY EVENTS

The following item taken from the Morning Astorian of Astoria will be read with considerable interest by Pendleton people: "Mrs. Fred Simington and Mrs. Oscar Simington were hostesses Monday noon at a pink and white luncheon at which the announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Irene Simington and Mr. Edgar William Smith of Pendleton. They will be married during the coming January." The announcement of this engagement is the culmination of a college romance, for the bride and groom-to-be first met at the University of Oregon where both were students. Miss Simington was a former member of the class of 1911 and was a member of the local Beta Epsilon sorority at that institution which has since been granted a chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta. She is an exceedingly popular young lady and is an accomplished vocalist. Mr. Smith is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith of this city and has made Pendleton his home since childhood. After graduation from the local high school he entered the University of Oregon in the fall of 1905 and was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity at that place. After a three year course in economics there, he entered Cornell University at Ithaca, New York from which institution he was graduated in the spring of 1909, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Since the completion of his college career, he has taken charge of his father's large wheat ranch near Vansycle station, where, after the wedding and honeymoon, the young couple will make their home.

Mrs. W. C. E. Pruitt was the hostess for an informal afternoon tea given at her home on West Alta street, Wednesday afternoon. Miss Mary Grady, who has been visiting Mrs. Pruitt for several days, was the guest of honor. Miss Grady visited in Pendleton several years ago and those who enjoyed Mrs. Pruitt's hospitality Wednesday afternoon were friends that Miss Grady made while on her former visit to this city.

During the past week there has been much interest manifest among the young men of the city in the organization of a dancing club for the purpose of giving a series of five dances during the winter. A sufficient number have identified themselves with the movement to assure its success, and it is probable that the first of the affairs will be given during the first week in November.

The conferring of the degree of Knight Templar upon two candidates was last evening made the occasion for an enjoyable social time by the members of the Pendleton Com-mandery. Following the conferring of the degrees an enjoyable social session was held which was terminated by a banquet.

The members of the Thursday Afternoon club will enjoy a musical afternoon next week. Mrs. W. A. Slusher and Mrs. W. C. E. Pruitt will be hostesses for the function which will be held at the Slusher home.

Mrs. T. D. Twohy, who has been spending a few weeks in this city and at the different construction camps of the Twohy Brothers company, expects to leave in a day or two on her return to their home in Minnesota.

Mrs. Anna Selkirk Norton of Walla Walla, spent Wednesday in Pendleton. She returned home Thursday morning and left that evening for Spokane for a week's visit with friends.

THE LITTLE OLD LADY AND BIG YOUNG MAN

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX.
A frail little old lady and a tall young man have just passed beneath my window. They are mother and son, and the little old lady gazes up at the tall young man as though he were the most wonderful production of the Twentieth century.
"Look at him," her looks say as plainly as words, "is he not bonny and splendid, this son of mine, with his six feet of muscle and his clean-shaven, honest young face?"
She leans on his arm and he pays her just as much tender deference as though she were the girl of his heart. That's the way a man ought to be with his mother—courteous, attentive and loving.
That's how she dreamed of him when she pilloved his baby head on her breast.
"Some day," she mused, "this little son of mine will grow into a strong man, and he will take care of me just as tenderly as I now take care of him. And he will be brave and honorable and I shall be proud of my son. Ah, little feet, may your path through life be clean and honest."
That's how every mother dreams. All the dreams are sweet, for all the babies are sweet and good, no matter how far they may stray from the right way in after years.
The mother love never changes, whether the dreams come true or not; steadfast, perfect, it endures through all things.
There are a good many young men who love their mothers sincerely, but the mothers have to take the love largely on faith.
Don't Be Ashamed.
Perhaps the young men are ashamed to show their love for fear of being thought silly.
They need not be for every one admires the young man who is devoted to his mother. There is no prettier sight than a young man taking tender care of his mother. How many sons who leave home make a practice of writing home every week? Not many, I am afraid, and yet most of those young men write to some girl once or several times a week.

I suppose they think the girl appreciates their letters more than their mother would, but she doesn't, not one-half as much. The son goes away to the city and he almost forgets the patient, loving heart he leaves behind him.
But the mother doesn't forget, and every night her last thought is a prayer for the faraway boy.
He will always be a little boy to her, even though he may be a great man of affairs in some far-distant city.
Young men come to this country from all over the world, and the mothers stay behind, knowing that they will never see their boys again. But, even though they may never see the dearly-loved face again, letters would be a great comfort.
I heard of one old woman the other day who had not heard from her son in twenty years, but she was still expecting a letter. Can you bear to think of those mothers watching and praying for letters that never come?
Don't let your mother wait for her letter; write, if it is only a few lines. It is not much to give her after all the years of love and service she gave you.
There is an old saying, "A daughter's a daughter all her life, but a son's a son 'till he gets him a wife."
A wife can do much to take her husband away from his mother or she can urge him to show her every attention. If she is a good and wise woman she follows the latter course.
Every mother has just a little cause to be jealous of her son's wife, but no wife has any cause to be jealous of her husband's mother.
He owes his mother a debt which can only be paid by a lifetime of tenderness and attention, and his wife should be the one to help him pay it and not hold him back because of petty jealousy.—In Fort Worth Citizen-Star.
