MANY POLITICIANS VISIT HERMISTON

(Special Correspondence.)
Hermiston, Ore., Oct. 25.—Many politicians are visiting Hermiston these days. Today A. W. Lafferty, candidate for congressman, is here shaking hands with friends. Tomorrow Senator George E. Chamberlain will be here and expound some of his doctrines to members of the democratic party. Yesterday County Judge Gilliland and Zoeth Houser, candidate for sheriff, were here.
P. A. Stover, who recently arrived from Alaska, left yesterday to visit friends in the Yakima valley.
A. C. Reeves, formerly proprietor of the Oregon, is here calling on friends.
G. H. Upherove, secretary of the Umatilla River Water Users association, spent yesterday in Pendleton transacting business.

Forced to Leave Home.
Every year a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. Its surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. Its positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, la grippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles, 50c and $1. Trial bottle free at Koepfen Bros.

PRETTY PRODUCTION OF PINAFORE PROMISED

Rehearsals Held Nightly at the Armory Are Becoming Interesting—Cast Strong.
Several excellent voices have been added to the chorus which is holding rehearsals every evening at the armory for the production of the comic opera "Pinafore" and much amusement and pleasure were derived from the practice last night when Director Robinson put them on the floor for their first stage work last night. It does not seem possible that such an opera as "Pinafore" can be committed and staged by a crowd of amateurs in such a short time but from the results of last night's rehearsal it was plainly demonstrated that in another week the entire opera can be rendered with a professional company. Much of the interest of the plot centers about the admiral, Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., who has risen to this important station without knowing anything about the duties of a sailor or the requirements of an officer. He is simply a figurehead, and seeks to strengthen his position among the officers of the navy by marriage with the daughter of the captain of the Pinafore. From his "official" wooing and the efforts of his cousin Hebe to capture the affections many amusing situations arise. That just the right persons have been selected for these important parts will be evident when the opera is given next week. Mr. Williams, the admiral, is a total stranger in musical circles in Pendleton but he has had considerable experience and excellent training in the east and is possessed of a rich baritone voice of unusual sweetness and will sustain the role of admiral in an excellent manner.

Miss Edna Zimmermann will be heard to advantage in the character of Hebe, Sir Joseph's first cousin, and a leader of the numerous relatives who always attend the admiral on his visits to the ships. Miss Zimmermann is a favorite in Pendleton and all will be glad of another opportunity to hear more of her excellent contralto voice.
Most of the other members of the cast have been selected and as it is an especially strong one a treat is in store for all who attend the opera in the Oregon theater next week.

AMERICAN PLAY POPULAR

Alexandra Carlisle Scores in "A Woman's Way" in London.
London.—Two plays—one of American authorship and the other which has come to London with a reputation from New York—have to be ranked among the very few successes of the newly-started theatrical season.
Thompson Buchanan's comedy, "A Woman's Way," which Charles Frohman presented at the Comedy the other day, is a somewhat unequal play which is likely to find salvation partly because of the brightness and witty wisdom of its dialogue, but mainly by reason of the altogether delightful acting of Alexandra Carlisle, an artist of great beauty who hitherto had won her popularity chiefly by her personal charm. In private life, Alexandra Carlisle is the wife of Joseph Coyne, the breezy, buoyant American actor, who for several years both in "The Merry Widow" and "The Dollar Princess," has under the management of George Edwards, become tremendously popular with West End audiences.
"A Woman's Way" will probably outlive the somewhat tepid character of its reception at the hands of the critics and if it does it will owe its success to Alexandra Carlisle's unexpected revelation of rare comedy talent. Her personal triumph is everywhere hailed with pleasure.

AT THE MOVING PICTURE SHOWS

The Orpheum.
1. The Three of Them. Drama, Vitagraph, 1000 feet long. A human heart story. How the longing of a childless couple found its fulfillment.
2. Tactics of Cupid. Gaumont, 1000 feet long. A finely colored film showing the methods employed by Cupid whilst pursuing his employment.
3. Sunset. Scenic. Gaumont. In this film some beautiful sunsets have been secured.
4. The Greenhorn and the Girl. Lubin, 1000 feet long. He was a greenhorn but he got the girl, he played the game rather well, too, and no one knew it was the boss' pretty niece until after the engagement had been announced. They thought it was an old maid sister and they left the field entirely to the greenhorn.
Song—That Italian Rag.

The Pastime.
"The Oath and the Man." Biograph, drama. A story of the French revolution. This picture shows the tyranny to which the peasant class of France was subjected. The lord held his tenantry in abject slavery, satisfying his capriciousness to whatever length his whims carried him. Here is an instance where he took possession of one of his tenants', brought her to his palace and made a lady of her.
"The Great Secret," by Roy Norton. A delightfully high class comedy, much of the action being on an ocean liner. A young and charming American girl is sent to Paris, mistaken for a spy and is followed to America by
