E. CARUSO SHATTERS LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM

GREAT TENOR INVOLVED IN ANOTHER SCRAPE

Stalwart Italian Maiden Adds to Singer's Troubles With Breach of Promise Suit.

Rome.—Enrico Caruso's accidents on the stage at Munich are trivial affairs compared with the latest love troubles of the tenor, which have filled the newspapers for several days and which bid fair to secure an airing in the courts.

While his troubles with Mme. Giacchetti are far from being over, his reported intention of marrying a young stenographer of Milan has caused his friends to gasp.

The young woman's name has not as yet been made public but inasmuch as a breach of promise suit is threatened the name will sooner or later be revealed. All we know now is that the tenor met the young woman last summer soon after his return from the United States. With the tenor it was a case of love at first sight, but the girl, who is of a serious turn of mind, informed the tenor's friends if Signor Caruso really loved her he must ask her hand of her father.

Engagement Announced. It seems as though this time the tenor was really in earnest, inasmuch as he secured the father's consent, and the engagement was officially announced to a limited number of trusted friends. According to the tenor's plan, the wedding was to take place next summer after the Metropolitan season, by which time he would have settled his troubles with Mme. Giacchetti.

This action on the tenor's part convinced the girl that he loved her, and when he left to fill an engagement at Berlin there was a promise that she should join him there. The girl, escorted by her father, went to Berlin, where an elaborate dinner was given in her honor. Two hundred of the tenor's friends were invited, and many of them toasted to their future happiness.

What happened next is quickly told. For some time after her return to Italy the girl kept up a correspondence with her fiancée, but one day she received a letter that shattered everything. Caruso, after calling her the most endearing names, informed her that he would certainly make her unhappy if he married her; that anyhow he could not marry for several years to come and that inasmuch as he did not want her to wait so long he gave her back her freedom. Inclosed in the letter were several thousand francs.

Will Begin Suit. The girl's father at once put the case in the hands of Lawyer Jarrac of Milan and a suit is to be started soon.

Meanwhile the girl, who is of the tall, powerfully built, black eyed, black curly haired, dark complexioned variety, has gone to Sicily to escape the unwelcome notoriety of her short lived romance.

MILLIONAIRE CUTS OFF SON'S DEBTS PUBLICLY

London.—Quite a sensation has been caused in society by the announcement in the public press by Sir Julius Wernher, the South African diamond millionaire and director of the DeBeers diamond mines, that after Wednesday next he will not be responsible for his son's debts.

Young Derrick Wernher, who is the heir to his father's vast fortune, only came of age on June 7 last, which occasion was celebrated by Sir Julius and Lady Wernher in the most lavish style.

That the young man's progress has been very fast is certain from the fact that Sir Julius, who is averse to his name appearing in the press, should have advertised the notice in the newspapers from Bath House, his palatial residence in Piccadilly. What the exact escapades are that young Wernher has been guilty of cannot be ascertained at present as all the friends of the family have been enjoined to keep their own counsel, but it was never thought for a moment that his father would make the family troubles public. Friends admit that even the restraining hand of Lady Wernher was powerless in dissuading him from publicly repudiating his son's liabilities.

It is assumed from this that young Derrick must have been showing the way to even the most gilded youths about town. The disclosure has created not a little gossip and society is wondering whether the irate father will cut his son off with the proverbial shilling.

SHEEP PREMIUM LIST.

All Preparations Ready for National Convention of Woolgrowers.

Portland, Ore.—Premium lists of the National Mid-winter Sheep Show, to be held here in connection with the 47th annual convention of the National Woolgrowers' association, January 4, 5, 6 and 7, have been issued and show a fine lot of prizes for exhibits of blooded sheep. Premiums cover all classes and the show promises to be the largest and best ever held by the organization.

The forestry situation in the West will receive considerable attention at the forthcoming convention, this is certain. To say there is a very wide interest in this subject among sheepmen is putting it mildly. The administration of the national forest areas is said to be reducing the large flocks and it is taken to mean the quitting of sheep breeding by the large flockmasters or they must turn their attention to rearing smaller and better bands on the farms.

Splendid accommodations for exhibitors at the sheep show are promised. The spacious Armory will afford ample room for all purposes, both for the convention sessions on the upper floor and the pens of blooded exhibition stock in the drill hall down stairs. Intending exhibitors should write to Secretary Minton, 532 Hamilton building, for a premium list and entry blank.

The Hampshire association has provided $100 to be given as specials and the Rambouillet association has given $200. Other associations will take the matter up at their December meeting and it is expected a liberal appropriation from about every association will be given. The Angora Goat association gives $100 for specials, besides cups; the Pendleton and the Salem woolen mills are making special blankets for prizes and the Brownsville Woolen Mills have donated a suit of clothes.

The Willamette Valley Woolgrowers' association has made a nice appropriation, as has also the Oregon Pure Bred Livestock Growers' association. All of these, together with the fine cash premiums being offered by the Sheep Show committee, make it an attractive show for exhibitors.

The Oregon Woolgrowers' association is going to do its part to make the show a great success. Secretary Dan Smythe has written to Secretary Minton of the show that the executive committee of the Oregon organization has voted to present two cups, from the value of $35 to $50 each, one for the champion fine wool ram exhibited and the other for the champion coarse wool ram placed at the show.

The local committees in charge of the arrangements are receiving so many inquiries from all sections of the West regarding exhibit requirements, etc., that the officials feel assured of very wide interest and large showing of blooded sheep.

NOBLE PENURY SHOCKS TRADESMEN OF SURREY

London.—Next week there will be a scene of great gaiety at the beautiful little town of Arundel, in Surrey, where the Duke of Norfolk, the premier peer of England, reigns supreme as feudal lord of the manor. A tradesman of the town intends to give a big tea party and a general treat to all the children of the district, and behind this apparently tame announcement is a story of almost incredible stinginess or heartlessness which has aroused the little town to a wild state of indignation.

Some weeks ago the Duchess of Norfolk celebrated the birthday of her baby son, the Earl of Arundel and Surrey, and requested that all the school children of the district be given a half holiday. The liberated children were then invited to spend the afternoon at Arundel Castle. Many of the youngsters came long distances to attend the promised rare treat. After the children had played on the grounds for two or three hours the Duchess appeared and remarked: "Now, you can all go home and have tea and then come back here and run races."

The wretched children, tired, hungry and thirsty, were not offered even a glass of water. Of course many never returned, but the few who did run races. The Duchess, who had sent a footman to the bank to change a 10 shilling goldpiece into coppers, distributed the prizes, the first prize being sixpence.

The affair created such indignation in the town that the mayor of Arundel, a tradesman, invited all the same children to a party which cost him $50. This rather deliberate hit appears to have had no effect, hence a second tea party is organized for next wee k.

The Duchess was a daughter of the late Lord Herries and was raised in such general poverty that her friends say she cannot even now realize she is the wife of one of the richest peers in England at the present moment. The Duke, who is one of the simplest of men and very kindhearted, supports several of his wife's relatives. It is believed he knew nothing about the arrangements of his wife's famous children's party.

PROMOTER'S STORY OF A MINE'S FINANCING

St. Louis.—That the Afterthought Copper company had been floated solely on promises of a sale, was the testimony of ice President Thomas S. Henderson before Commissioner Wright in the company's bankruptcy hearing yesterday. Henderson testified that the company had borrowed $121,000 from the Shasta county bank at Redding, Cal., without giving either a note or a mortgage, when the bank's capital was only $100,000. The company's offices were suddenly shifted to Indianapolis after the receivership was filed.

The Afterthought Copper company was capitalized at $10,000,000, with its investments in California mines. It is an offshoot of the Western Gold company. Only $400 additional to the amount borrowed was used in its promotion, Henderson said.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous For Pendleton People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Pendleton.

J. D. Morrow, 517 Marle street, Pendleton, Oregon, says: "For about three months I had backache and if I did any work that required stooping, sharp twinges darted through my loins and over my right kidney. The secretions from my kidneys were unnatural and irregular in passage and pained me intensely when being voided. On a friend's advice, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they corrected my trouble. I gladly give this preparation my endorsement."
