ARCHDUKE'S AUTO HAILED.

All Cars Looked Alike to Tyrolean Officer.
 Vienna.—Archduke Ludwig Victor, brother of the Austrian emperor, has had an unpleasant experience while attempting to ascend the Kazer lake from Bozen, in the Tyrol, via Eggenthal, in his powerful automobile. At the village of Walschenoffen the burgo-master and all the villagers turned out armed with scythes and pitchforks to stop the car.
 This narrow, dangerous route is prohibited to motor cars, and the archduke gave no notice of his ascent. The burgo-master being informed of the identity of the traveler, he replied, "It is all the same to me who the traveler is, and even an archduke must respect the law."
 The archduke's aide de camp telephoned to the governor at Bozen, who offered the car to be passed, and the archduke, amid insults, continued his journey.

TO FORTIFY IRISH COAST.

English Government Installs Huge Cannon.
 Dublin.—The vulnerable ports along the Irish coast are to be provided with modern guns by the English government.
 Steamer Wolsley arrived in Lough Swilly with the first of the new guns, for Leenan fort. These guns will have a carrying capacity of about 18 miles. Leenan fort is at the east entrance to Lough Swilly, and would, in time of war, play an important part in the defense of vessels running for shelter.
 This is believed to be the result of the german war scare.
