NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

C. S. Barrett at Colfax. Colfax, Wash.—C. S. Barrett, national president of the Farmers' union, was in Colfax today on his way from The Dalles, Ore., where he assisted in the organizing of a farmers' grange, to Pullman. Mr. Barrett was the guest at dinner of William Goodyear, publisher of the official newspaper of the farmers' grange for this state.

Coroner Would Quit. North Yakima, Wash.—Although he was recently elected county coroner on the republican ticket, Fred Shaw, undertaker and city councilman, is in favor of abolishing the coroner's office.

The work could be just as well done Shaw says, by justices of the peace, and a great saving thereby effected for the taxpayers.

Lewiston Elks Plan Home. Lewiston, Idaho.—Preliminary steps were taken by the Lewiston Elks' lodge yesterday for the temple on property recently purchased on Main avenue near the Temple theater. The incorporators of the Elks' company are C. V. Smith, exalted ruler; Victor Landquist, secretary, and Joseph Alexander, Henry Helfield and W. C. Mallary, trustees.

The lodge now occupies the upper floor of the Mounce block over the postoffice. The new building will cost $50,000.

Cruising Sumpter Timber. Sumpter, Ore.—Federal government agents have been in the mountains near Sumpter cruising the logged-off lands of the Oregon Lumber company, making an estimate of the amount of timber the company cut from the land. The land being cruised is that in the vicinity of Whitney, alleged by the government to have been obtained by the lumber company through fraud, and the work is the result of the suits filed against the Oregon Lumber company last February.

The result of the government's suit has been the suspension of work by the company, and its employees are going elsewhere to seek work.

Hood River Election. Hood River, Ore.—Two tickets are already in the field for the city election December 6. The issue is the much-tangled water question. Supporters of both tickets declare that the question can be settled and settled at once and that it is merely a question of method and procedure. At the coming election a mayor, three councilmen, treasurer and recorder are to be elected. The present administration is standing on its feet.

E. H. Hartwig heads the anti-administration ticket for mayor. C. A. Cass and J. W. Onthank are mentioned for treasurer and recorder, respectively, and the three men proposed for councilmen are C. K. Marshall, James Stranahan and H. C. Smith.

The holdover councilmen are Chas. Hall, S. W. Arnold and Joe M. Wright.

Indians to Get Coin.

"Indians who have sold their allotments will receive the money from the government the first of the year," said Hal J. Cole, register of the United States land office, yesterday. "While the matter will not be brought into this office, I have communicated with John McA. Webster, superintendent for the Colville and Spokane reservations."

"The Indians are not acquainted with the red tape in the government service and get overanxious for their money. This is perhaps the case with the Colville Indians, who are making the complaints and threatening to cause trouble. The settlement is to be made on January 11, 1911, and the Indians do not need to be uneasy about the matter."

Captain Webster, who will have charge of the funds, was formerly an Indian agent, but was recently appointed superintendent of Indian affairs.—Spokesman-Review.

Dayton Crop Outlook.

Dayton, Wash.—Crop prospects at this season were never more encouraging in Columbia, Garfield and Asotin counties, declare farmers who have tilled the soil for over a quarter of a century. Since harvest, weather has favored uninterrupted farm work and for the first time in several years the approach of winter finds plowing and seeding completed. Fall grain seeded soon after harvest, has attained a growth of four or five inches, depending on the locality, while late seeding has sprouted nicely and will present a hardy stand before cold weather prevails.

Several conditions are combined to bring broad smiles of sweet anticipation to the face of the southeastern Washington farmer. Chief of these is an abundance of fall moisture, which has put the ground in prime condition. A fall weed growth was prevented this year, heavy soaking rains holding off until late, thus discouraging these troublesome pests. The acreage of fall grain in Columbia county is larger than for many years, on estimate placing the acreage at 60,000.

Chautauqua Heads Named.

Oregon City.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua assembly here today the following directors were elected to serve for the ensuing year: H. E. Cross, J. E. Hodges, O. D. Eby, George A. Harding, Mrs. Sarah A. Evans, C. B. Moores, J. H. Ackerman, C. Schuebel, John W. Loder, A. F. Parker, C. H. Dye, Dr. George Hoeye, W. A. Huntley. The directorate was increased from 12 to 13 and all the former directors were elected, with the addition of W. A. Huntley.

Annual reports of the secretary and treasurer and the audit committee show a balance on hand of $596.72, after paying a note of $31.50. The surplus will be expended in the improvement of the Chautauqua grounds.

Most of the talent for next year's session has already been engaged. The musical program embraces the Apollo Concert company of Chicago, for four days, and the Williams Jubilee Singers, of Chicago, for two days. Ex-Governor Hadley of Indiana, and De Witt Miller are scheduled for two lectures and many other attractive features will be offered next July.

URGES PATENTS BE ISSUED.

Borah Works in Interest of St. Joe Settlers.

Washington.—Senator Borah of Idaho, is endeavoring to obtain relief for a number of homesteaders who made entries in the St. Joe river country, in Northern Idaho, between 1902 and 1904. In 1906 the townships in which the lands are located were put in forest reserves and the forestry bureau protested the entries. About 25 or 30 settlers have appealed to Borah, who has taken the matter up with the interior and agricultural departments. He wants the blanket protest withdrawn, unless there is evidence to sustain it in individual cases.

Borah wants the timber on the lands which was killed by the recent fires disposed of before it rots. If the protests are dropped patents can issue and the settlers can sell the timber, or the government can do so if the protests are made good. Borah wants the lands excluded from the national forests.

On April 1, 1911, at 9 o'clock a. m., the secretary of the interior will throw open to entry a number of new farms on the Sun river irrigation project in Montana. The area for which water will then be ready contains some of the choicest land in the project, including, as it does, a part of the land formerly occupied by the Indian school. Some of these farms are just outside of the limits of the new town of Fort Shaw. The water right charge is only $30 an acre, payable one-tenth down at the time of filing and the balance in annual instalments over a period of 10 years, without interest.

ENGLAND SAID TO FEAR.

Ireland Pointed Out as Menace to British Government.

Dublin.—Arthur Lynch, member of Parliament for West Clare, speaking at Southampton on Thursday night at a meeting of the local branch of the United Irish League, said that one objection made by Englishmen to Home Rule was that it would be a great danger to England to have a hostile country on her flank, and England was haunted by the spectre of a great growing power across the North Sea. That danger existed now, he said. As long as Ireland was deprived of liberty, and her liberties were torn from her by a mailed hand, Ireland had every right to be hostile to each successive English government.

He himself had fought against England in the open field, rifle in hand. He would go so far as to say that, should unfortunately like circumstances ever occur, he hoped he would again be able to take the field and do the same thing again. He hoped the time would come, however, when perfect friendship would exist between Ireland and England, when they could wipe away all the rancorous feuds of the past and face the future in cordial sympathy together. That settlement demanded a price, and that price was justice to Ireland.

LOOKED AT SMOKING GIRL, LOSES FINGER

Harrisburg, Pa.—Minotti Polynyc, repairman in G. Dagostino's cobbler shop, pounded a finger today, and later it was amputated.

Tobacco and other smokers' supplies are sold at Dagostino's shop. A pretty woman, about 19 years old, bought a supply of "the makin's" and then calmly proceeded to roll a cigarette with the deftness which comes only with long practice. Then she lit it and proceeded to smoke before the astonished Polynyc.

All this so distracted the workman's attention that he hit his finger instead of the pegs he was driving into the shoe.

Public Exposed to Plague.

St. Petersburg.—A wooden box containing jars filled with human viscera was picked up in the streets of St. Petersburg recently and afterwards claimed by a doctor, who informed the police that the viscera had been obtained from the Odessa plague hospital from a patient who had succumbed to pulmonary plague, the most violent form of the disease. The official version, which is alone permitted to appear in the newspapers, asserts that the numerous persons who handled the remains have been duly disinfected, but trustworthy accounts declare that no such precautions were taken.
