PLAMONDON CASE STIRS.

Bowerman's temper was probably not improved by the one-minute speech made by Ben Selling in taking the chair. Selling, declaring he did not regard his election as a personal compliment, said he hoped the end had come to machine politics in this state.

President Selling is not inclined to punish those who opposed him, but he is not likely to put the Bowerman element in control of important committees, where they might foment trouble. Bowerman has been spoken of for chairman of the judiciary committee, but the best information is he will not be chairman, although he will receive a place on the committee. Dan J. Malarkey will be chairman, and the progressives will control.

Pays to Advertise.

Last week the Eagle advertised for the return of a lost road. It has been found. Two men hunting ducks along the John Day river found it in a marsh. Its backbone was broken, the vertebra being mortally twisted. It showed symptoms of dropsy, was run down at the heel and as it coughed up a little of last summer's liquified dust incoherently murmured "lead me kindly to the hovel of good Rhode Nocker, as we want to die together." Canyon City Eagle.
