

SPORTOGRAPHS

Apparently the Superbas have picked up a demon long hitter in Lee Jeune. Last season he was credited with twenty-four doubles, nine triples and eighteen home runs.

Roderick J. Wallace, who has been connected with the St. Louis Browns ever since their organization, has been appointed manager of the team for next season.

Fur ought to fly when Topeka's new third baseman gets busy. His name is Katz, and he was only recently signed by the Kansans.

The Red Sox are going to travel in the best style they can, when they go to California on their spring training tour. Twentieth Century Limited, luxurious sleepers, etc. Some class, eh?

When the next season opens, the New York Giants will sally forth in swell new uniforms in Colonial cream. The boys are as proud of their uniforms, for which they have already been measured, as a country lass of a silk frock.

President John I. Taylor of the Boston Red Sox has signed Harold Jabrin, a Boston high school boy, and the youngster will get a tryout at third base or short stop. He is one of the few ball players who have stepped from a high school team into the major league. Jack Knight, the Yankee shortstop, was taken from a high school team by Connie Mack and made an immediate hit on the Athletics.

A cruel scribe remarks that as the government fixes a heavy penalty for using the mails with intent to defraud, magnates who are trying to make trades via the correspondence route, should send their letters by express.

Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond a doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken and shall always have my endorsement." Koeppe Bros.

ERRATIC GENIUS.

Handicaps of Hard Luck Great Minds Have Overcome.

Sentimental readers, and even many critics, are wont to spend a good deal of time lamenting over the ill luck of many of the world's great poets, dramatists and artists. It shocks them to recall, as Kipling did in that little after-dinner speech of his, that perhaps the finest literature we know came from a midnight stabber (William), a sheep-stealer (Shakespeare), a roving tinker Bunyan, and a dissolute plowman (Burns).

It is still more grievous, one might say, that frowiness and poverty and squalor should haunt the steps of other geniuses—such as poor Chatterton, who was forced to suicide, or Keats, who died heart broken by hostile criticism. Think, too, of Byron sodden with brandy in his last few years; or of Poe, who was so poor that when his wife was dying he was obliged to cover her with his great coat because he could not afford a fire, and who himself died half starved in Baltimore, the victim of a gang of roughs.—The Munsey.

THE NEW SPEAKER.

What Champ Clark's Elevation to Power Means to Congress.

As a member of the House, Champ Clark early demonstrated special aptitude for tariff studies. When John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, became democratic leader, he made Clark his first lieutenant and leader of the minority of the Ways and Means committee. From this Clark naturally succeeded to the democratic leadership when Williams was elected to the senate; and now, in turn, he is to come into the Speakership, "the second greatest office under our government."

When Champ Clark is sworn as Speaker, next December, he will be the fortieth Speaker of the national House. He will come to the position at a time when the political situation will give it a significance it has seldom compassed.

The House is in a crisis of its parliamentary development. For years there has been growing misgiving as to whether the popular branch was making the full contribution to national affairs that ought to be expected from it. The senate has overshadowed it in power and prestige. Under a succession of Speakers armed with almost dictatorial authority, the House has become less and less a free moral agent, more and more a mere reflection of the mind and purpose of its presiding officer.

Champ Clark, in the speaker's chair, will be the exponent of the new purpose of democratizing the house. The place he will take in history will largely depend on the success with which he shall carry forward the purpose of restoring the house to its proper participation in legislation. In proportion as he shall be willing to be shorn of the petty powers of parliamentary dictatorship he will gather to himself the vastly greater and more effective authority of big, broad, true leadership.—The Munsey.
