REVIEW OF THE LEGISLATURE

General revision was made of the insurance, banking and irrigation laws, promising greater efficiency in the regulation of insurance companies, better protection for the bank depositor, and correction of defects in irrigation rights. The office of the state engineer has been strengthened and $20,000 a year for two years provided for a topographic survey of the state, which is invaluable to investors.

Numerous amendments have been made in the game laws, the most of them local. The most interesting general amendments are the reduction of the deer limit from five to three and the absolute protection of the Chinese pheasant for two years.

Livestock interests received attention by the passage of the Burgess and Hawley bill establishing a livestock sanitary board, providing for the state wide test for tuberculosis, and appropriating $50,000 for its purpose.

Naval Militia Measure.

The military arm of the state has been strengthened by addition of a naval militia, which will be trained on the United States cruiser Boston. The militia was allowed $25,000 and the national guard, in addition to its regular maintenance, has been provided with $40,000 additional for new armories.

Senator Miller's flat salary bill is claimed by its author to assure the saving of $100,000 in four years by the change it will make in the state printing office. This change will not be effective until the expiration of State rinter Duniway's term, however.

County division by vote of the people of the counties affected and annexation of territory by the same method is provided in Senator Wood's bill. This will take such questions from the general state ballot.

Educational interests were well cared for in the liberal appropriations made for the state university and the agricultural school at Corvallis.

University Gets $753,000.

The university receives $753,000, the agricultural college $570,000, providing two new buildings for the university and one for O. A. C. The Monmouth normal school, sole survivor.

Carnival at Manila.

Manila, P. I., Feb. 21.—Manila's annual carnival opened today, has this year taken on an international character, the steamship companies having brought thousands of visitors on special excursion vessels from Hong Kong, Kobe, Yokohama and other points in China and Japan.

In connection with the festival, a national exposition of Philippine products, the most complete show ever attempted of the industries of the islands, will open today.

Victor of the normal school fight of former sessions, was voted $50,000 for a girls' dormitory. County school supervisors are provided for in all counties of the state where there are more than 10 districts. Standardization of normal schools, colleges and teachers' certificates is made by another bill.

All circuit judges of the state were placed on $4000 per year, and with one new judge in Multnomah county, the total increase in salaries for the judges will be $48,000. Circuit judges are now paid $3000 by the state, but Multnomah and many other counties pay $1000 more from county funds, so the bill does not mean an actual increase of salary for most of the judges.

A prosecuting attorney for each county in the state is provided by another bill, the only exception being that Union and Wallowa were left in one district. The idea is to strengthen the individuality of each county and let one choose the prosecutor it wants.
