MOUNTAIN ARTILLERY PROBLEMS TACKLED

SPECIAL BOARD TAKES UP THE DIFFICULT TASK

Famous Army Mule Plays Important Part in Attempt to Secure Solution of Difficulties.

To study the problems encountered in mountain artillery work, a special board has been created by the secretary of war which will give its entire attention to this phase of artillery studies in the United States army.

The board consisting of three artillery officers, has been ordered to take station at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, and will act as a sub-body of the general field artillery board. At Fort D. A. Russell, the army has two companies of mountain artillery and the topographical environment is especially adapted to this practice.

Considered tactically, the problems of the mountain artillery service are identical with those of field artillery. The distinguishing feature is the problem of transportation. Guns and equipment must be provided which can be taken into places that are inaccessible to the usual light and heavy artillery batteries.

The much abused army mule plays a leading, if not the principal role in mountain artillery operations. Gun, gun-carriage, ammunition, and all parts are packed upon mules, and the field of a mountain battery's operations is practically unlimited; a mule can reach places almost inaccessible to man.

The gun used almost universally is of 2.95 inch bore, and fires two sizes of shells, weighing 12.5 and 18 pounds respectively. The gun is short and stubby, being only 31 inches in length. It is effective at 4000 yards, which, considering the shortness of the barrel, is a remarkable demonstration of the advance in artillery since the civil war.

In level country, this gun may be hauled by a mule, but in the hills it is always "taken down" and the various parts divided between four mules. The gun barrel is loaded on one mule, being placed on a specially constructed saddle. Upon a second the cradle of the gun is placed, while a third carries the trailer of the carriage, and a fourth the wheels and paraphernalia for loading and cleaning the gun. Other mules are loaded down with boxes of ammunition, usually twenty rounds to a mule. The loads are so divided that each mule carries a weight of about 330 pounds.

Soldiers assigned to mountain artillery batteries become highly proficient in packing and unpacking guns. The feat of unloading the parts of the gun from four mules, assembling them, loading the gun, and firing it has been performed in less than twenty-five seconds. Packing upon mules is an art in itself and requires long study.

Mountain artillery has been put to practical use in the campaigns against the Moros in the Philippines. The Moro country is a succession of mountains and swamps. Officers who have seen the necessity for mountain artillery are enthusiastic over the possibilities of the usefulness of the present experiments and are watching with interest the progress in its development as indicated by the creation of the special board.

ENTIRE COLLEGE CLASS LEAVES SCHOOL IN BODY

One of the most unique strikes ever launched by a body of college students took place in North Texas a few days ago and resulted in the migration of an entire class from a school in that section of the state to one in Houston. The senior class of the state dental college charged that they were not given proper facilities for study and practice and after a period of negotiation they knocked at the door of a dental college in Houston and following a meeting of the faculties of the two schools, the whole senior class migrated in a body to that city and these budding dentists will be graduated there with the members of the regular spring class, every senior having remained steadfast to the student agreement to hold out in their strike against the institution which they entered as freshmen two years before.

It is the first instance on record of an entire class leaving their alma mater in a body successfully negotiating for entrance into another institution and receiving sufficient credits to enable them to receive diplomas without the loss of a school year. All the strikers underwent a rigid examination before being admitted to the Houston college.

TEXAS TO HAVE A SHELL PAVED HIGHWAY

John W. Gates has been extremely active in advancing the interests of various improvement enterprises in South Texas and his latest move in this direction was to accept the presidency of a good roads organization formed at a meeting held in Houston a few days ago. Mr. Gates has large investments at Fort Arthur and he desires to connect that town with Houston by means of a shell paved highway and incidentally is doing all in his power to forward the good roads movement throughout the district.

At the Houston meeting several counties were represented and the Gulf Coast Good Roads association was formed, officers elected and a general secretary appointed who will be commissioned to go over the state preaching the gospel of paved highways.

Every county that joins the organization will be charged a $500 membership fee and the building of a highway from Sabine river to the Rio Grande and a road from the Texas line east to New Orleans will command the early attention of the organization. The association will also urge the construction of a road running north and south through the state from Galveston on the gulf to Denison and the Red river in northern Texas.

"NICE" WOMEN CRAZY FOR NAUGHTY STORIES

"Nothing succeeds like naughtiness, if it is kept within proper bounds," said a New York newsdealer. "And it is true that those who are most eager for a little 'spice' are the nice, respectable women. Or so it seems to me. Just now one of the magazines is running a serial which deals with an unconventional theme, and which has for a heroine an artists' model who poses in the nude. Since that story was commenced the demand for that particular publication has jumped to ten times what it was previously. Probably eight out of ten of my new patrons are women. Not a day passes that I do not have to send away disappointed women who want back numbers, which it is impossible to secure. Women books certainly do fall for that sort of thing."

TRUSTS FIND LITTLE FAVOR IN AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Australia, March 1.—The government today is on record as an opponent of all kinds and manners of trusts in Australia following the declaration of the minister of trade and customs that the administration will "not permit a repetition of the scandals and mercenary methods of monopolies in other countries." It is authoritatively stated that every trust in operation in the commonwealth would be proceeded against immediately. The announcement was made shortly after the minister had said semi-officially that several American trusts including the meat trust, had begun operations on the island continent.

GETTING EXACT TIME.

A Very Simple Matter, According to This Man's Idea.

There is nothing like having one timepiece to correct the mistakes of another. Those people who keep a clock in every room of the house will no doubt be glad to learn of the expedient adopted by an old colored janitor in an office building in Chicago. One day a man whose office was under this janitor's charge asked him if he had the exact time. "Just a moment, sir," he said and pulled out a battered silver watch from a vest pocket, looked at it, put it back and then took a pencil out of another pocket and jotted down something on the back of an envelope.

Next he produced a second silver watch from his trousers pocket, looked at it and began to figure out something on the paper. By and by he said:

"When you asked, sir, it were just twenty-seven minutes past 3—that's exact."

"Much obliged," said the other, who had been fingering his watch nervously. "But will you please tell me what you were doing all that arithmetic for?"

"Why, you see," said the old man, "this watch that I carry in my vest is a mighty good watch, only it gains ten minutes every day. And this one is a mighty good one, too, but it loses ten minutes every day. So I just look at them both and then strike an average. You'd be surprised, sir, to see what a simple matter it is."—Exchange.

THRASHING SERVANTS.

Domestic Life in England in the Time of Henry VIII.

In that remarkably minute chronicle of domestic life in England in the time of Henry VIII., Tussor's "Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry," the learned and pious author seems to take it for granted that the only way of dealing with maidservants is to thrash them unmercifully.

He tells us in his inimitable doggerel that "a maid must be forged to be cleanly" or she is to be "made to cry creek." Mistresses are advised "to cry about with a holly wand in their hand, although they may not always have occasion to use it, and to pay home when they fight"—that is to say, thrash—"but not to be always childing." As regards the laundry, the domestic serfs are "warned to take heed when they wash or run in the lath and to wash well, wring well and beat well, so that if any lack beating it will be themselves."

As for the unhappy Cleely, the dairymaid, she is to cry "creek"—that is to say, to be thrashed—if her cheese is "hoven" or puffed up, and if the cheese be tough Cleely is to have "a crash." If the cheese be spotted Cleely is to be amended by the bays, and if it be too full of whey the wretched dairymaid is to have "a dressing." Finally, if any maggots are found in the cheese, "mistress is to be Cleely by and by."

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

Kansas City Southern's new refunding and improvement 5 per cent bond issue will be used in extensions which, it is said, will result in larger earnings.
