Coincidence in Names.

Wallace, Idaho.—A coincidence in uncommon names is said to be responsible for the romance of James E. Edmiston, a reporter of this city, and Florence E. But for this similarity both Mr. Edmiston and Miss Edmiston admit they would probably never have been Mr. and Mrs. Edmiston.

Elgin Acres Sell High.

Elgin, Ore.—The record price for raw land was made Tuesday when Newton Roberts bought of Henry Hug a five-acre tract at $150 an acre. This land could have been bought last year at $60 an acre and the whole 30 acres could have been obtained this year for $150 an acre. Mr. Roberts expects to make his home on the land. The tract, in recent years, produced 65 bushels of wheat an acre.

Attempted Suicide.

Portland, Ore.—J. T. Cosgrove, 32 years old, attempted suicide yesterday by turning the gas on in his room at 482 Hawthorne avenue and lying in bed, deliberately awaiting death. He had been lonely and despondent and several times had threatened to end his life. His purpose would have been accomplished had it not been for J. E. Ferguson, proprietor of the place, who had knocked on Cosgrove's door several times in the course of the day and the last time he tried to awaken the late sleeper detected the odor of gas. Ferguson summoned Patrolman Royle, who lives next door, and the two gained entrance to the room through an outside window. Cosgrove having taken the precaution to bolt his door before turning on the gas.

MILTON PEACHES DAMAGED BY FROST

ORCHARDS OF LOWER VALLEY AFFECTED BY COLD SNAP

Notice Was Sent Out by Weather Bureau—Only a Few Were Able to Do Anything to Save Their Trees—Some Had Smudge Pots.

Peaches in the Freewater-Milton district have been badly damaged by the frost, according to reports from that district, and the crop is so hard hit that it will be an almost total if not quite a failure. Apricots are also badly damaged, and the first visit of the frost since trees were liable to harm has hit them harder than for years.

Although notice was sent out from the weather bureau, there were few who were able to do anything to save their trees. Some few had smudge pots, and these prevented damage among their trees. Others improvised heavy smoking fires and were successful, it is said, in preventing the loss of their peaches.

In and around Walla Walla the damage was not noticeable. The peach trees are in full bloom, but the hand being higher than the frost was not as heavy. A light wind also aided in the protection of the fruit in this region. Some smudging was done in this part of the valley also, but little, as the mercury showed little danger.

The damage to peaches and apricots and other fruit not yet being in bloom. The weather has again turned warm and it is believed for the present the danger has passed. Apple trees are showing signs of life, and it will be but a few days at most, until the earlier varieties are white with blossoms.

The damage to peaches and apricots and the escape of apples and later fruit has led to the determination of many peach orchardists to put their ground to the safer crop, and it

BATTLESHIP OREGON READY FOR SERVICE

BULLDOG OF AMERICAN NAVY AGAIN PREPARED FOR ACTION

Salt Lake Paper Pays Glowing Tribute to Famous Warship and the State Whose Name she Bears.

A dispatch informed us the other morning that the battleship Oregon after having undergone costly repairs, would be ready to go into commission again in a few days. We all made a note of that, because it was the Oregon. Almost any other ship we would have read of and forgotten in an hour. Why the special interest over the Oregon? Because at a most eventful time the Oregon ceased, in thought, to be a mere fabric of woven and welded steel charged with thunder and seemed to be a live creature that thought and acted for herself and accomplished wonders.

There is no doubt that she performed was due to a most gallant commander and a most accomplished engineer; that she did but what they bade her do and painted no picture by her deed that had not before shone on the eyes of those two men; but while admiration for the men was and is very great, still the ship has a personality of her own. She was named in honor of a great state, but she by her performances exalted that state and gave it a dignity which she had never acquired for herself. A call came to her for help. To answer the call she had to speed away fourteen thousand miles. When the journey was half completed, she touched at a port to obtain a supply of coal.

There a message was received that great possible dangers were in her path, and instructions began to reach her how she should proceed; when they answered back: "Do not hamper us. The Oregon can take care of herself." Then after a few days she pulled into an obscure inlet on the coast and wired to Washington for instructions. She was ordered to join the fleet and in ten days was on the battle line. There she rose and fell on the ocean swell for six and thirty days until suddenly the battle (Denver Times.)

At the recent Mardi Gras Speed Carnival in New Orleans, Bob Burman in his Buick Bug won four events on the opening day. Burman attributes much of his success to the use of remounted rims and says with the improvements in the new Dorian rim and its simplicity of construction it will play a more important part in racing than ever before.

A. R. Pardington, who has been railroaded all over the automobile manufacturing territory for a month or so in the interest of the National Circuit of automobile racing and the Glidden tour, is now in the west perfecting arrangements for the two events. His time has been spent hitherto in canvassing the makers for these events.

Visitors to the plant of the Good-year Tire and Rubber company at Akron, Ohio, will be surprised at the apparent life in the rubber both before and after spending a month in the drying chambers. Any one watching a huge mass of crude rubber that has been thrown into one of the great "cracking machines" will become impressed with a sense that it is not inanimate. Says an official of the company, "Everything we do it seems to rob it of its life and strength to some extent, but it always recovers if given time. Operators say the same of steel—that it loses some of its life from too much handling, but recovers if allowed a few days rest."

Says an expert, "an error common among less experienced automobile drivers is to hug the side of the road and use its illuminated beading of turf as a steering guide. This error has two bad effects. Sooner or later, the car will slide up to some conveyance or other, the color of which blends readily with the roadway. Again it renders the driver less able to steer straight at night. If a driver takes notice when driving by daylight he will find he steers by and toward a point well ahead of the car and therefore steers straight. He can only steer straight at night by adopting the same plan, and consequently he should employ head lamps of ample power and steer by their light, not along the road edges lit only by the side lamps."

The tour book of the Automobile Club of America is nearing completion and will be ready in time for the racing season. A great deal of work in the way of revision, as well as in the way of preparing new routes is involved in the working up of the publication.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.
