L. F. Anderson, the well known retired grain grower, has traded his East Court street residence property to John Kemler of Newberg for a farm near that place. Mr. Anderson said this afternoon that this did not mean they would leave Pendleton. On the contrary he said they would remain here for the present at least.

Alex Galloway Here.
A. B. Galloway former traveling salesman for the Blake-McMall paper company but who is now vice-president and house manager for that concern, is here today. The annual meeting of Pendleton Chapter, American Woman's league, will be held in the city hall next Monday, April 3, at 3 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a president, two vice presidents, secretary, treasurer and executive committee, together with such other business as may properly come before the chapter at that time. Reports of officers will be given. All voting members are requested to be present.

Ball Game Here Tomorrow.
The local baseball team which goes under the various names of the Delivery Boys, the Young Roundups, and the Second Pendleton team, will play a return game with the Indians of the agency tomorrow afternoon at Round-up Park. Last Sunday the young redskins were defeated by the score of 13 to 11, but they hope to return to their wigwams this time with the scalps of the palefaces dangling from their belts.

Look Out for Your Dog.
Yesterday was the last day in which dogs were at liberty to roam the streets without a license tag and today there are many delinquent canines in the city. Chief of Police Gurdane has announced his intention of beginning a crusade against these animals and declares that neither muzzled or thoroughbred will escape unless the tax is deposited in the city coffers.

Bicycle Riders Beware.
Chief Gurdane has declared war upon owners of bicycles who persist in riding upon the sidewalks and announces that no such offender whatever his race, rank, color or previous condition of servitude, will be exempted from punishment as provided by the city ordinance. The roads are dry and smooth now, he states, and there is no excuse for any man riding on the walks.

Many Brood Sows Arrive.
Three car loads of well bred brood sows from Kearney, Nebraska, arrived in Pendleton this morning over the O. W. R. & N. There were 150 head in the shipment of which 110 will remain in the vicinity of Pendleton while 40 will be taken on to Condon. The hogs were red duroc jerseys, berkshires, poland chinas and crosses between these three breeds. The animals were imported by Lee Teutsch acting in conjunction with President W. H. Daughtrey of the Portland Union Stockyards company.

Deny Drinking With Lawyer.
Jerry St. Dennis, Joe St. Dennis and Thomas Breden, three of the four plaintiffs in the famous St. Dennis-Watts case, which has caused such a stir in local legal circles, are in the city today and desire to state that the reports circulated to the effect that Attorney J. B. Perry got them drunk in order to get them to sign certain papers giving their power of attorney to him, are false. Jerry St. Dennis and Breden declare that they have never taken but one drink with the attorney in question, while Joe St. Dennis asserts he has never on any occasion drunk with Mr. Perry.

Attorney Dan P. Smythe of this city, president of the local Commercial association and secretary of the Oregon Wool Growers' association, has added another jewel to his crown of offices, having been appointed as a member of the state board of forestry, according to Salem dispatches. The woolgrowers' organization is entitled to a representative on this board and Mr. Smythe has been named to act.

This board has just finished a session at Salem at which F. A. Elliot was elected state forester. The board at this meeting also decided upon a campaign of publicity, the purpose of which is to show the people of Oregon that the preservation of forests is of vital importance to every man, woman and child in the state and that no one will derive class benefit.

The other members of the board are A. T. Buxton of Forest Grove, recommended by the state senate; George H. Cecil, of the United States forest service, recommended by that department to Governor West; L. S. Hill, of Junction City, recommended by the Oregon & Washington Lumbermen's association; A. P. ONCE POOR LAD IS WEALTHY FARMER

What has been done and can be done in Umatilla county is exemplified by Lars Hansen, the well known Cold Springs farmer. Thirty years ago he came to this county a poor Swedish lad just from his native land and hired out as a farm hand. By hard and persevering labor he has raised himself by successive steps until now he is numbered among the largest and most successful wheat growers in this section of the state. He owns and farms nine quarter sections of rich grain land and his equipment is among the best in the county.

But Larsen is not only a successful and money making farmer, but he believes in keeping abreast of the times. Unlike many of the men who have made their fortune in the wheat lands of Umatilla, he has no intention of selling or renting his acres and moving to the city, but instead is making his country home a place where life can be enjoyed with modern conveniences. He has built a large white house with a wide veranda running about it which gives it the appearance of a suburban dwelling. Both his house and barn are lighted with acetylene gas and yesterday he was in the city to secure bath and toilet fixtures to install in his house. When he makes all of the improvements which he contemplates, he hopes to be able to refute the contention that there are no fine country homes in Umatilla county.

JODO, THE JOBBER, WAS SURELY JOBBED

It is especially funny when a jobber gets jobbed and this is what happened at 1 a. m. this morning, a time when few realized that April Fool's day had arrived. The victim of the plot was George "Jodo" Strand, assistant sheriff, who sleeps close to the telephone at the court house so as to be in readiness in the event the peace and quietude of Umatilla county should be disturbed during the hours of the night. So well known is Strand that it is needless to say he himself is a jobber of the first degree. There are many who have fallen victims to his pranks and they have long been laying for him. This morning they took him in and took him strong.

Ting-a-ling, ting-a-ling, ting-a-ling, went the phone in the sheriff's office early this morning and it roused the sleeping deputy from his slumbers. With visions of another jewelry store robbery in his mind Strand rushed to the phone and took down the receiver.

"Please come down quick," said a seemingly frightened feminine voice, "someone is trying to rob Dr. Henderson's house and the doctor is away."

Like a fire horse getting into harness when the fire bell rings Strand jumped into his clothes and a moment later, duly armed, he was dashing down Alta street. Never in his high school days, when he played quarter back for P. H. S. and used to run with the ball for touchdowns did Jodo split the wind so briskly.

Arriving at the Henderson home, at the corner of Alta and Johnson streets the speeding deputy noted with surprise that all seemed peaceful and still. Like a careful sleuth he looked about him and he noticed two figures half a block away. He bore down upon them. They were two old ladies and they showed fear as he drew near. "Don't be afraid ladies," said the deputy and he then returned to the corner. He then looked through the Henderson barn and woodshed but could find no burglar. Proceeding to the front door Strand rang the bell. A moment later Dr. Henderson, sleepy eyed, appeared in response to the ring. "Where's the burglar," inquired the deputy. But the doctor had seen no burglar and could throw no light upon the subject. The joke became apparent.

"Mackschauffes the fun," said Strand as he turned his steps back towards the court house and his bed. No sooner had he entered the sheriff's office again than the phone rang once more and this time a sweet voice said: "You are a good sprinter. Ha, Ha."

FRANK MANSFIELD HAS PASSED AWAY

Still another of the old pioneer residents of the Athena country has joined the "innumerable caravan." Frank Mansfield, who has made his home in this county for the past half century, died suddenly of heart failure at his home in Athena, last night at the age of 77 years. He went to bed feeling as well as usual but about midnight awoke complaining of pains in his chest. His wife hurriedly dressed and called Dr. Sharp, who lived but a block away, but the aged man expired shortly after the physician reached his bedside.

Frank Mansfield came to Oregon from Illinois in 1852 in company with his twin brother, Doc Mansfield who died last year. He settled on a ranch near Athena and for many years tilled the soil, but several years ago retired from active labor and moved to Athena, where he owned a fine home. He took a prominent part in the Indian wars and was a pensioner by reason of this service. He leaves one son, Hardy Mansfield, who is engaged in the stock business in the Walla Walla country and a widow, and by his will he leaves all of his estate to these two.

The deceased man had an extensive acquaintance throughout this section of the state and was most highly respected by all who knew him. For years he was a prominent democratic warhorse of the county and was actively identified with the Christian church.
