ALUMINUM IS A COMING METAL
Washington, D. C. — Perhaps no other metal has been used in so great a variety of ways during so comparatively brief a history as has aluminum. It is a question whether the automobile industry would have made such remarkable progress during the last decade without the accompanying development of metallic aluminum industry, for many of the castings used in the manufacture of motor cars are made from this light, rigid metal. The use of aluminum in the recently born art of aviation is also of great popular interest, and here again the same qualities of lightness and rigidity recommend it. Aluminum is the most abundant of all the metals. It is an essential constituent of all important rocks except sandstones and limestones. It is found chiefly in the silicates such as the feldspars, mica, clays, etc., and as the hydroxide in the mineral bauxite, from which it is now produced on a commercial scale. Its oxide makes up between 15 and 18 per cent of the earth's crust. In spite of this great abundance, the metal itself was, up to 1880, a chemical curiosity, and one of the early reports of the United States geological survey quotes it at $125 a Troy ounce—$15 a pound. The reason for its rarity and high price was the lack of a commercial method of extracting it easily and cheaply from its chemical combination with oxygen, for which it has a remarkable affinity. With the introduction of the electrolytic process the metal has now taken a high place among the commercial metals, and from a production of 83 pounds in 1883 its consumption amounted in 1909 to the enormous total of 34,210,000 pounds, valued at approximately 23 cents a pound for ingot metal. MAN LEADS DOUBLE LIFE. Aged Chicago Resident Who Has Passed Away Was Head of Two Families. Chicago, April 22.—Two men who met yesterday at the inquest of Michael H. Ahern, a former real estate dealer of Creston, Iowa, each claiming to be a son of the dead man, learned that Ahern for 50 years had been the father of two large families, one living in Creston and one in Chicago. John Ahern, a son of the Creston branch of the family, lives in Seattle. Neither family knew of the existence of the other. Ahern, who was 83 years old, died suddenly at a hotel yesterday. At the inquest William Ahern, 69 years old, who lives here, and Matthew Ahern of Creston, each identified the dead man as his father and gazed amazed at the other. William Ahern said his father had left a wife with four small children in Ireland 50 years ago and had come to America. The younger man, taking up the story, said his father had married in Galesburg, Ill., in 1865, and seven children had been born, all but one of whom are living in Illinois and Iowa. His mother, he said, had been dead for nine years. The elder man then told of coming to America with his mother after the four children had become of age and of finding the father in Chicago. William Ahern applied for letters of administration to his father's estate in the interests of himself and John Ahern, the Seattle brother. The aged first wife of the dead man is now in Chicago, according to her son, but was too feeble to attend the inquest. The dead man left property valued at several thousand dollars and the claims of the Chicago family may be contested by those in Iowa. In Germany there is a dog that can speak seven words. No woman is likely to have much respect for a dog that can't make use of a more extensive vocabulary than that. Do you read the East Oregonian?
