The Sound Sleep of Good Health
 "Can not be overestimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southern, Esq. Chaire, Wis., says: "I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock, my general condition is greatly improved and I know that Foley Kidney Pills have cured me." Good results always follow the use of Foley Kidney Pills. They are a prompt corrective of urinary irregularities. Try them. A. C. Koepfen & Bros.

TOURISTS AVOID TUSSELE WITH LOEB

San Francisco.—The San Francisco customs office has, in a measure, spoiled the guns of the New York department and the Argus-eyed Loeb, who has proved himself no respecter of wealth or might as those assets are measured in San Francisco, finds himself outwitted by the sagacious woman of the west.

When she goes abroad this summer to see the coronation of King George and his plain, but royal, spouse, she will without dismay and without fear of subsequent unpleasant notoriety take with her all her sea-gaws, laces, furs and gowns. In fact, she has already gone London with more than $3,000,000 worth of trinkets.

How does the customs official know? Because she registered them all with Chief Boarding Officer Chas. C. Stephens before she started. She had him the value of everything down to gloves and stockings before she set a foot on the Overland train which took her to the New York point of embarkation. She received a certificate and an accompanying inventory, which, when she returns after all the shouting and the tumult in "Lunnon," will exempt her from paying duty on anything except gross packages purchased abroad.

If only Mrs. George McNear of Oakland, had thought of the simple precaution, she might have avoided an unpleasant incident this winter, or Mrs. Remi P. Schwerin, who also had a little tussle with the customs officials; or Mrs. J. Livingston Taylor, of Cleveland, O.

EXPLOSIVE SOCKS IS LATEST DANGER

New York.—That various citizens throughout the country maybe the unsuspecting wearers of gun cotton neckties and explosive socks liable to blow up at any moment, is the startling possibility just brought to light here. Nor is the feminine sex immune from the danger since petticoats may likewise be articles of destruction. This unsuspected condition of affairs has been discovered through a local protest recently filed against the manufacture of artificial silk from cellulose, in which it appears there is a possibility that almost any article made to represent real silk may be actually explosive.

There are several processes it appears according to protest by which artificial silk is produced from cellulose. One process employs nitro glycerine which is really nothing more than soluble gun cotton. From it the threads to be used in manufacture are drawn in either ether or alcohol. After the thread has been drawn and a ready for wearing it is supposed to be demonstrated. If it is, it is entirely safe. If it is not, it may be exceedingly dangerous for it then remains nothing less than gun cotton spun into a fabric.

So in the future it may be worth while to remain from stamping the "near silk" clad foot or yanking viciously at the cravat of the same material, even those casualties from explosive garments have not yet been reported.

AT THE THEATER

Travelogues.

The Johnson-Willard company, presenting by stereopticon views, Jack London's famous trip to the South Sea Islands in "The Snark," and also introducing Willard, the Man of Mystery, delighted a small but appreciative audience at the Oregon theater last night. As much or more was offered than had been previously advertised and it was the consensus of opinion of all present that it was one of the best performances of the kind that has ever been given in this city. The graphic descriptions shown by slides and the lecture given by Martin E. Johnson, companion to Jack London, of their trip to the South Sea Islands proved to be both interesting and instructive. Willard performed some marvelous feats in the way of card tricks and his imitating of a dog fight, railroad train, German band and many other things was a wonder to the audience. He performed the extraordinary feat of growing in height about eight inches, and then settling back to his normal size.

Another performance will be given tonight, at which time Mr. Willard will give some demonstrations in the art of hypnotism besides performing other difficult feats. A change of program will be presented in the views of the South Sea Island trip.

A New Fish Fad

New York, April 27.—As a result of the importation of 500 pounds of fogsah, a Hungarian fish dainty specially imported for President Taft to eat at the Hungarian dinner here tonight, society has started a fad and it is said will encourage the importation of the fish for its large smart affairs.

One of the secrets of success in advertising is to say something that will interest people.

FUNERAL PROCESSION MILE IN LENGTH

(Special Correspondence.)

Milton, Ore., April 28.—The funeral of Mrs. Fred Schrier, who died in this city last Friday, was held in the Presbyterian church at Freewater Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. Bleakney officiating. The funeral was one of the most largely attended ever held at Milton, the procession being fully a mile long. Mrs. Schrier was formerly Miss Lulu Baldwin and was well known here. She was born at Ukiah, Ore., 23 years ago, and a few years ago became the wife of Mr. Fred Schrier, a prominent rancher near Freewater. She left a babe a few days old. Interment was made in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Milton. Delegates to the grand lodge from Milton Encampment No. 62, are A. A. Mann, J. F. Craddock, E. Williams, E. M. Cockburn and J. W. Muir.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas McKenzie were Garden City visitors today.

The Walla Walla "Bears" seem to have a grouch because the Athena "Millers" beat them in a good game of baseball Sunday. Hurrah for Athena!

Mrs. Flem Berry of Walla Walla is the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Henry.

Pearson's academy and the Milton high school will have a track meet on the college diamond Thursday afternoon.

GOTHAM GOSSIP.

New York.—If there is such a bug as the love microbe—and Sunday supplement scientists affirm that there is—it has certainly been busy in the family of George Jay Gould, Miss Marjorie, who is now Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., was the first victim of the affection-inspiring bacillus. Next came Miss Vivien, who was scarcely out of short dresses before she became engaged to Lord Decies, and her matrimonial alliance with the titled Britisher speedily followed. Jay Gould, at the tender age of twenty-two, is soon to be the head of a house, his marriage with Miss Annie D. Graham being set for Saturday next. And now Dame Rumor is whispering that Kingdon Gould is smitten with the charms of a certain fair Philadelphia girl, to whom he has offered his hand and heart and such a few millions as he will inherit from the goodly estate founded by the first Jay Gould, wrecker of railroads and financial pirate.

Miss Graham, who becomes Mrs. Jay Gould next Saturday, is a charming maiden of twenty. More, she is a princess of the blood royal, although at present her family is not working at the trade our ruling. Queen Lydia Kamekeha Liliuokalani of Hawaii—commonly called Queen "Lili" for short—is her grandmother. Her father was John Graham, an American, and her stepfather is Hubert Vos, the famous portrait painter. Miss Graham shows traces of her Hawaiian ancestry in her face, which is elegant rather than beautiful.

Another wedding in high life is expected before long, when Miss Catherine L. Hamersley, an heiress to millions, will become the bride of Vincent Astor, only beloved son of Col. John Jacob Astor. The word "heiress" is not used in any facetious spirit, since Damon and Pythias "had nothing on" Col. Astor and his handsome offspring in the way of insurance. Young Astor is by no means a society fop, but a sensible, studious and fatherly young man who at times appears rather weighed-down with the responsibility of the hundred or two million dollar estate that he will some day be required to take charge of.

Miss Catherine Hamersley, Vincent Astor's "intended," is one of the two children of the late J. Hooker Hamersley, who died some ten years ago. The Hamersley children, L. Gordon and Miss Catherine, share an estate valued at between forty and fifty millions. Until they reached maturity the youngsters were kept in ignorance of the great fortune that awaited them. The courts gave them a very moderate allowance and they lived plainly and dressed simply, thus avoiding the development of the instinct of snobbishness that is so often in evidence among the children of the very rich.

President Taft will spend a busy two days in New York next week. On Wednesday he will open the "Blind Workers' Exhibit" at the Metropolitan opera house, review the Seventy-first regiment on the fiftieth anniversary of its starting for the front, and dine with the Hungarian Republican club. On Thursday he will attend the annual dinner of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' association and has also promised, if possible, to look in at the banquet of the Aeronautical society.

Clean Bread for New York

New York, April 27.—Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, who has been making an examination of the bakeries of the city has about completed his task and the result of his work reveals the fact that present measures for the protection of the public health through insistence on sanitary conditions where food is prepared are a farce.

Mr. Fosdick will, within a day or so, make an effort to have several hundred smaller cellar bakeries cleaned up or put out of existence, claiming that their conditions are intolerable. The thought of eating food prepared in such places is shocking, declares the commissioner, while the danger from the spread of disease is sufficient in itself to justify the city in taking rigorous measures.

Only about one in every hundred cablegrams is a personal message, the other 99 being official, commercial or journalistic.

Taft to Speak.
 New York, April 27.—President Taft will address the members of the Associated Press and American Newspaper Publishers' association at their joint annual banquet tonight.

THE NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

(Minneapolis Tribune.)
 The new college president has come to stay. Bewall the passing of the scholar as we may, he cannot compete with the business man. The graces of culture and the nice refinements of conduct must be learned from deans or department heads or taken on the mere personal authority of classroom teachers.
 So secretly fond are the young of bowing to supreme authority or none in these high matters that they incline to learn them badly from comrades. The new president may have them but he has no time or opportunity for their exhibition except on the public platform and boys and girls do not learn vital things there.
 He has no time to stay with his charges even at that long range much of the year, so busy is he promoting it in the sentimental investment world, advertising it to parents, and tooting for its issues, divorating it with all-letic fame and filling the ears of the groundlings with its achievements, and above all haunting places where sudden wealth is gained and where the possessors of it are about to die.

Perhaps the deans of the university colleges may develop into something like the Oxford and Cambridge masters and diffuse the penetrating influence that has made some of them more immortal than their scholarship. That is on the knees of the gods.
