MANY ATHLETES GATHER IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, April 23.—Athletes from nearly all of the leading colleges and universities of the eastern and central states are arriving here today to take part in the seventh annual intercollegiate and interscholastic relay race meeting of the University of Pennsylvania, which will be held tomorrow on Franklin field. The program includes three races to determine the intercollegiate championship of America. One will be at a mile, each man to run a quarter of a mile. The second race will be at four miles, each member of each team to run a mile. The third will be a two mile race, each man to run half a mile.
For the first time in years Yale will not send a relay team to compete in the games here. The west is better represented than usual, for in addition to the University of Chicago teams the University of Minnesota is represented. Altogether more than three-score colleges and universities have entries in the various events. The high school and preparatory, grammar and parochial school teams bring the total of teams entered up to the unprecedented figure of 225.

Harvard, Cornell, Princeton, Chicago, Michigan, Notre Dame and Pennsylvania teams will compete in the mile relay. In the two mile the competing teams will represent Princeton, Cornell and Pennsylvania will be the principal contenders in the four-mile event.
Among the crack jumpers entered are Porter, formerly of Cornell, who now holds the Olympic running high jump title; Moffitt, who has a record of 6 feet, 3 1/2 inches; Burdick of Pennsylvania, French of Kansas university, Farrier and Land of Pennsylvania, and Lawrence, formerly of Harvard.

NEGLECT FINANCIAL SIDE.

College Expert on Business Management Says Few Farmers Know How Much Crops Cost.
Corvallis, Ore., April 23.—The financial side of farming, the world's greatest industry, is almost entirely neglected by both the farmer and the schools," says Dean J. A. Bexell of the Oregon Agricultural College, author of a volume on "Farm Accounting and Business Methods," now in its sixth thousand.
"Prof. Balloy of New York, said in discussing the matter of his own state, 'In visiting practically every farm in one of the counties of the state, we did not find one man who knows how much it cost him to produce milk or to raise any of his crops.'"
"The secretary of agriculture, in recent Year Books, points out the remarkable prosperity of the farmer; that the export of farm products is vastly in excess of all other exports combined; that a million agricultural debtors have been transformed during the last ten years into the same number of surplus depositors; that 'contrary to his reputation, the farmer is a great organizer, and he has achieved remarkable and enormous successes in many lines of economic cooperation in which the people of other occupations have either made no beginning or have nearly, if not completely, failed.' He points that most farmers live better than the average merchant or mechanic

WHOLE DAM FAMILY ARRIVES FROM ROTTERDAM

New York.—The whole Dam family came to town today. There were thirteen of them, including Father Dam and Mother Dam and Brother Dam and Sister Dam, not to speak of Baby Dam. Moreover, they all came from Rotterdam on the steamship Ryndam.

Conspicuous in the family are two sets of Dam twins. The proud father is Jacob Dam, 45 years old. He is a farmer from Sieff, Beyerland, Holland, and he is going to take his children to Pella, Iowa.

ON THE DEAR OLD FARM.

I dream and drone of the good old days
When I drank from the old tin cup,
Hung rusty and ripe from the chattering pump
When Hector was a pup

Though the poets sing of that nectar draft
In the most voluptuous terms,
I hate to believe that the blamed old well
Was full of typhoid germs.

We used to arise and don our clothes
With the temperature at zero,
And the way that dad
Would threaten the gad
Proved him a Nero.

We worked and ate, then we ate and worked
On cornbread, sausage and pie,
And the coffee brewed
To savor the food
Had the color and taste of lye.

I love to dream of the beauty of toil
As I sit in my office chair,
But the memory of groans
As I grubbed up stones
Dispels the vision fair.

The farm was poor and the work was hard
And the fields were rough and steep,
And the only vacation the year disclosed
Was the time we were asleep.

The good old farm
Wrought a certain charm
But I'd hate to rest at ease
'Neath the reeking roof
When the mercury proof
Showed ninety-eight degrees.

The summers grilled and the winters froze
And still the daily toll.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

MACCABEES IN SESSION AT DES MOINES

Des Moines, Ia., April 23.—Maccabees of Iowa convened their state convention here today and report the order to be in a flourishing condition.

MAN OF MYSTERY FINDS HIDDEN BOOK

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Willard, the Man of Mystery, made his drive about the city in search of a book which a committee had hidden and he not only found the book but turned to the page upon which the committee had picked out a word and found the word itself. A large crowd gathered to marvel at this feat and, if anyone had an explanation, it was not offered.

The four men to respond to Willard's call were Dr. J. A. Best, Dr. L. U. Temple, Conrad Platsoeder and Will Hanscom. Dr. Best was plainly suspicious and attempted several times to trap the man of mystery by exposing a fraud. After the word had been selected, the committee drove about the city, finally stopping on Cottonwood street, from where they walked through the Walsh grocery to the Gitman cigar store, where the book was hidden in the stove.

Upon the return of the committee, Willard, blindfolded, took the lines and drove over the same route, finally ending up where the committee had hidden the book. Returning with it to the place of starting, he opened it and found the word "Sterling," which had been selected.

Dr. Best admits he thought he was mixed up in a fraud until toward the end when the man found the book without being near any one of the committee. He thinks it probable, however, that Hanscom was under hypnotic control.

Willard also appeared in another program at the Oregon last evening, together with Martin E. Johnson, who continued his illustrated lecture on his trip into the south sea islands with Jack London. The entire program was most excellent and was thoroughly enjoyed by the small audience present.

Four Prizes Awarded in "Cook With Gas" Advertising Essay Contest.
G. A. Robbins, R. M. Mayberry, Margaret Cooper and Mrs. S. L. Nichols are the winners in the "Cook With Gas" essay contest pulled off by the Pacific Light & Power company under the auspices of Manager F. W. Vincent and Salt, special solicitor for the gas department. Messrs. Robbins and Mayberry draw $5 each for their compositions, while the two ladies winning second prizes are given the sum of $2.50 each. Last evening marked the close of the "Cook With Gas" contest and while the number of manuscripts submitted did not quite equal the expectations of the management, the efforts submitted were of such merit as to make up for any shortcomings along that line. In judging the compositions main stress was laid upon the advertising value of the various papers. The judges were Principal A. C. Huxton, of the high school, and the editors of the two local newspapers.

SONG OF LONG AGO.

A song of long ago,
Sing it lightly, sing it low—
Sing it softly—like the lapping of the lips we used to know
When our baby laughter spilled
From the hearth forever filled
With a music sweet as a robin ever trilled!

Let the summer fragrant breeze
And the leaves of locust trees,
And the apple buds and blossoms,
and the wings of honey bees,
All palpitate with glee,
Till the happy harmony
Bring back each childish joy to you and me.

Let the eyes of fancy turn,
Where the tumbled pippins burn—
Like embers in the orchard's lap of tousled grass and fern;
And let the wayward wind,
Still singing, plod behind
The older press—the good old-fashioned kind!

Blend is the song the mean
Of the dove that grieves alone,
And the wild whir of the locust and
the bumble's drowsy drone;
And the low of the cows that call
Through the pasture bars when all
The landscape fades away at eventide.
Then, far away and clear,
Through the dusky atmosphere,
Let the wailing of the killedees be the only sound you hear.

Oh, sweet and sad and low
As the memory may know
Is the glad pathetic song of long ago.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Taking Away From the Subject.
When Frederick Robertson of Brighton, the great preacher who had written much about Tennyson's poems and for whom the poet had a high regard, first called upon him, "I felt," said Tennyson, "as if he had come to pluck out the heart of my mystery, so I talked to him about nothing but beer."

For the First Comer.
Young Man—So Miss Ethel is your oldest sister. Who comes after her? Small Brother—Nobody ain't come yet, but pa says the first fellow that comes 'an have her.—Boston Transcript.

Mucilage and Gum.
"I went into a stationer's shop in London one day," said an American, "and said to the shop assistant: 'Do you keep mucilage?'"
"No, sir," the young man answered. "We try to take in all the papers, but there are so many new ones coming out. Still, I can order mucilage for you, sir. Which number did you want?"

"I learned afterward that I should have asked for gum. They don't have the word 'mucilage' over there in England."
"But an Englishman traveling on one of our railways stopped a train box and said:
"Have you got any gum?"
"No, I don't use it, boss," the boy replied in friendly fashion, "but I can let you have a chew of this here plug!"—Washington Star.

An Accomplished Linguist.
"Did you learn any French while you were in Paris?" asked Biddad, meeting Sillthers shortly after his return from Europe.
"Oh, a little," said Sillthers. "Not so very much, though. I got so I could say cigarette in French."
"Good!" said Biddad. "What is cigarette in French?"
"Cigarette," said Sillthers.—Harper's Weekly.
