CHIEF TALKS TO THE MINISTER ON VICE

The vice question was up in the ministers' meeting yesterday morning with Chief Hamilton on hand to assist in the investigation, says the Salem Statesman. No organized step is to be taken by the ministers as yet, the discussion being more in the nature of a vantage of the situation.

Chief Hamilton was questioned closely upon all points and upon them all he readily gave the information he possessed. The city preachers held to their orthodox view of the matter and still believe that there should be in no town a restricted district. They find strength in their belief, according to Dr. Ewert, in the report of the Chicago vice commission recently made.

This commission investigated cities all over the land where the restricted district is observed and where it is not, and declared for no district in any town that wants any moral rating.

The chief of police does not favor that view of the problem. Personally he believes that conditions would be better in Salem if a district where the denizens of the underworld could be herded was established. They could be better watched, he says, while doing his best to keep the moral standard up, there are many cases requiring his attention under the present arrangement, which he does not hear of until it is too late. Whereas, otherwise he feels they might be prevented.

"However," the chief stated, "whatever the laws are, these I shall do my best to uphold."

The ministers state that Chief Hamilton is making good in carrying out the wishes of the people and seeing that the laws on the matter are obeyed.

EUROPEAN NEWS-VIEWS.

London, May 19.—Children are to play an important part in the coronation festivities. There will be hundreds of thousands of little Britishers in parade in honor of King George and then his majesty has decided that 100,000 children shall attend the coronation fete at the Crystal Palace on June 30 as his guests. They will be chosen by ballot. The children to be invited will be taken in equal proportion from all the public elementary schools in the administrative area of the London county council.

Of the $200,000,000 spent by Americans in Europe last year only $25,000,000 is estimated to fall to the share of Germany. Wherefore the Germans are complaining bitterly that the wealthy Americans persist in visiting England and France and seldom go to Germany. For three years past Berliners have been doing their utmost to attract tourists, but no success has resulted. It is complained that even Americans who patronize the two great German transatlantic lines—nearly all disembark at a French or an English port and do not even go as far as Hamburg or Bremen. This year, with the coronation as a huge attraction Germans have given up hopes of holding their own, but next year effort will be made to secure a fair share of the globe trotters' dollars.

King Peter of Serbia finds it hard to make friends. His ambition has for years been to make a tour of the European courts, but there have always been obstacles in the way. Either the situation in Serbia did not permit him to leave the country, or it was not convenient for the foreign courts to receive him. The fact is, the murder of King Alexander and Queen Draga has not yet been lived down. King Peter has done his best to cultivate friendship with his powerful neighbor, Austria, and has from time to time sent out feelers concerning a visit to the Emperor Francis Joseph. The czar has several times put King Peter off when he suggested visiting St. Petersburg. The only country where he will receive any kind of a cordial welcome will be France where he was educated and for which he fought in the war of 1870.

Andrew Carnegie has given ten million to promote peace. Most of us would feel at peace with all the world on less than that.

FLIES 50 MILES IN WIND.

Former Motorcyclist in the Air for 52 Minutes.

New York.—Earle L. Ovington, with an enviable record for intrepid work on a motorcycle, proved that he was in line to rank with America's foremost aviators when he flew from Belmont Park over the Hempstead Plains beyond Garden City and back to the starting point.

It was a demonstration of marked skill, with the wind blowing at the rate of about twenty miles an hour. Mr. Ovington was in the air fifty-two minutes, at altitudes of from 1,900 to 3,000 feet and traveled approximately fifty miles, although at times it was estimated the aviator was flying at the rate of eighty miles an hour when going with the wind.

He flew a 1911 Bleriot of 79 horsepower, the first of the type to be imported to America. Mr. Ovington received a four-foot trophy, presented by Timothy L. Woodruff, president of the New York Aero club, recently incorporated, and of the real estate company over whose building sites a great deal of the aviator's flying was done.

Orpheum.
Pendleton's favorite picture theater. Biograph feature film for Friday and Saturday. Four full reels each performance.

1. "Madam Rex." A story of a mother's sacrifice. The Biograph with this production presents a subject most unique in story and type. The story is original and exquisitely played by some of the most popular of the Biograph players.

2. "Turned to the Wall" from "Put Yourself in His Place," by Charles Reade. Another adaptation from a standard work of fiction. Only part of the original is used, making an exciting story, clearly told and splendidly acted by the Edison players. Some of the settings are unusually effective.

3. "An Unwilling Cowboy." Melles. This is a comedy built around western characters and scenes. Papa didn't exactly like to have his daughter marry a cowboy, still less did he like being one himself. But through the persuasions of the boys he consents to both and discovers that the experience on the ranch helps his rheumatism. So all ends happily and everybody has fun.

4. "The Cattleman's Daughter." A western domestic drama told in the Essanay way.

The Pastime.

The house of quality. Always a good feature to offer you. Program for Friday:

"Slim Jim's Last Chance." Kalem. The prison doors open and Tom Benton, a first timer and Slim Jim alias Red Davis of the underworld are liberated. The several thrilling scenes that follow shows Tom's genuine manhood and gives Slim Jim an opportunity to prove that even an under dog has at least a spark of good lying dormant under the rough exterior. Where love and bravery are united the result is always pleasing.

"What Happened to Auntie." Essanay. This comedy is filled with surprises for Auntie, and likewise for a poor wandering tramp. Auntie didn't want the lovers to marry. An elopement is proposed. Auntie finds it out, dresses up as the niece and goes to keep the trust. Auntie is willing to get married. Niece sends a tramp to her lover with a note: "Auntie is coming to marry you." The lover dresses up the tramp to impersonate him. What the tramp gets after the ceremony makes him prefer a watery grave.

"Robert, the Silent." American Pathé. Robert, Duke of Normandy, has so long tired of the mundane things of this life that he has earned the sobriquet of the Silent. His fool no longer pleases him, his wife fails in her efforts to win his smile of happiness and he loses interest in everything until he meets a beautiful gypsy maid and engages her to dance for him, and then the startling end of it all soon comes.

"The Curse of the Red Man." Selig. There is plenty of action in this picture and is a subject that will hold the interest to the finish.

"Catching the Deep Sea Turtle." Educational.

Cosy.

Friday and Saturday.

"So Shall Ye Reap." Imp. This is a story that will linger long in memory, telling as it does consequences of a woman's sin and the penalty she paid for her folly. After many years the mother is reunited with her daughter, but a priest intervenes and prevents the mother from making herself known, and she goes to the nuns for consolation. It presents a true view of the consequences of sinning and the sympathy of the audience will be aroud for the unfortunate woman.

"Five Hours." Rex. A finely colored film, telling a novel story with plenty of action, and well acted. A young man bets that it is easy to enter a house and steal something. The complication with the girl adds interest, as well as what comes after. But, however, he wins the bet.

"The Tallman." American. The story of a young man, who when about to commit suicide, is given a lucky talisman by a stranger. It surely brings good luck, but on opening the box at the end of the year he gets a great surprise. A splendid dramatic story finely told.

"Venice, the Queen of the Sea." Itala. Views of beautiful Venice, the wonder city.

"Toto Wants to Get Thin." Itala. A good comedy presenting in lively fashion a fat man's frantic attempts to reduce his weight, and how he was nicely fooled by a clever fakir.

Illustrated song, "Your picture says remember, though your letter says forget."

Special feature for Sunday.
