APPLES CURE HORSE OF FEAR.

Skittish Beast Will Face Auto Calmly If It Has Fruit to Munch.

Bangor, Maine.—James Lyons of Skowhegan has succeeded by the use of apples, in so training his horse that the animal is no longer afraid of automobiles. The animal's fear of motor cars had resulted in four broken wagons and nearly scared the female members of the household to death.

Lyons was out driving recently when he saw an automobile coming along a narrow place in the road. He had been eating an apple and as he jumped out of the wagon he went to the horse's head and gave the animal the apple.

As the machine whizzed by the horse hardly noticed it. Lyons then got his idea, went home and perfected an arrangement in the shape of a basket attachment to the saddle large enough to hold several apples. By pulling a string from the wagon the basket is lowered in front of the horse's head so that when an automobile approaches the basket drops, the horse begins eating the apple and fails to notice the machine.

PASTOR LAYS A SIDEWALK.

Provides Parsonage With Pavement Without Asking Assistance.

Milton, Del.—Believing that Christianity should be muscular as well as spiritual, the Rev. W. D. Hurst of the Milton Methodist church did not bother to ask the church when the pavement in front of the parsonage needed attention, but went out with a level, a rule, square and other tools and with the help of an extra man, proceeded to lay a cement sidewalk. Many of his parishioners came to laugh, but remained to admire, for the preacher proved that he was as good a mason as a preacher and laid one of the finest pavements in town. He also is a carpenter and generally attends to any alterations that are needed about the parsonage.

RUDE POLICE SHATTER SWEET LOVE DREAM

Chicago.—Rude Chicago policemen shattered the romance of a pretty, rosy-cheeked country girl and her tanned and weather-beaten sweetheart last night when, on the telegraphic advice from the girl's father, the couple were arrested at the Dearborn street station. They are being held pending the arrival of papa accompanied by a sheriff.

Peter Andreas Peterson, 28 years old, and Miss Josephine Spelter, 16 years old, were the participants in the little comedy drama which began with a moonlight elopement via the ladder route and which came to an abrupt conclusion in unromantic police station cells.

the narrative. According to their story, Dan Cupid appeared on the scene the first day Peter caught a glimpse of Josephine. Peter had just arrived from Denmark and had obtained work with Christian Spelter, a wealthy farmer at Manawa, Wis. As soon as he discovered that his affection was reciprocated, an elopement was planned.

At 3 o'clock Monday night Peter raised a ladder to the window of Josephine's room. He carried her to the ground and they drove to New London where they boarded a train for Chicago. They spent the day seeing the city sights and at night started to take the train for St. Louis, where, they said, they intended to get married.

Meanwhile Papa Spelter had discovered the open window and ladder and got busy with the telegraph. The result was that when Josephine, attired in a loose blue gingham dress and with her brown straw hat trimmed with fresh flowers, came into the station holding tightly to the hand of proud Peter, they were promptly arrested. Papa Spelter was notified of the capture and is on his way to Chicago.

GOOD TOWN FOR TWINS.

Mohawk Claims Championship of Wolverine State.

Mohawk, Mich.—This town of Keweenaw county believes it holds the championship of Michigan when it comes to producing twin babies, the size of the population considered. Mohawk is the home of some hundreds of people only, yet since March 17 five sets of twins have been born. Arrivals which have come singly have run up the birth rate to imposing figures. The year is record breaker in that respect, in fact.
