SCIENTISTS TO LOOK FOR LOST CITIES

EXPLORATION EXPEDITION TO SEARCH PERUVIAN WILDS

Party Organized by Yale University Sails from New York to Hunt Lost Incas Cities Swallowed up in Tropical Jungles.

New York, June 8.—To risk their lives in the Peruvian wilds in a search for lost cities of the Incas, six men, composing a scientific exploration expedition recently authorized by Yale University, sailed from New York today for Panama, whence they will proceed on their journey to South America. Dr. Hiram Bingham, assistant professor of Latin American history at Yale, heads the party. He has spent years in traveling through obscure portions of the southern continent and recently published a book on the subject. In addition to Dr. Bingham, the party includes a geologist and geographer, a naturalist and collector, a surgeon, a topographer and engineer and an assistant archaeologist.

On a previous visit to Peru Dr. Bingham visited Choquequirra, one of the lost cities of the Incas—lost because the ruins of the ancient towns have been swallowed up in the tropical growth of the jungles. The expedition sailing today expects to find other vanished cities and thereby add much to the knowledge of the ancient history of South America, before the ruthless Spanish adventurers crushed and strangled the old civilizations.

"The cities built by the Incas on the plains have long been known," said Dr. Bingham before sailing on his dangerous quest, "but their fortified capitals were located in all but inaccessible spots among the mountains, and only lately has it been possible for white men to approach them. I expect to find other cities in the country north of Cuzco, to which place we will go by rail from Mollendo. At Cuzco or Arequipa, where Harvard has an observatory, we expect to get mules to carry us on a part of our journey, but we shall probably have to proceed on foot much of the way. Rumors have long been circulated by the Indians of a great ancient city hidden away on the mountain above the Urubamba. We shall try to reach this spot. We shall also visit Mount Coropuna, which is supposed to be about 23,000 feet high and which Prof. Bandelier, the distinguished geologist, believes is the highest mountain of the New World.

"Stories of fabulous treasures hidden away among the ruins of the lost cities of the Incas have long been in circulation, and many are the adventurers who have gone in search of them. Some of these men have returned disappointed, a few are reported to have found fortunes, but the majority have never come back. Of course, we shall not search for treasure, and should any be found it will become the property of the Peruvian government."

Since the expedition was announced, Dr. Bingham and the Yale authorities have been besieged with requests from persons who wished to go along, but all these applications were turned down. The party expects to spend about six months in South America.

KISSES ALWAYS PRECEDED "TOUCH," SAYS FARMER

Chicago.—After expending $11,312 in real money in an effort to win the love of Miss Lodavine Miller, Thomas Foulkes, a farmer from Danbury, Iowa, yesterday blushing and sadly admitted that the kisses, hugs and loving glances she occasionally gave him were only bestowed on him prior to a "touch."

Foulkes concluded his tale of unrequited and expensive love-making during the afternoon in Judge Dever's court, where Miss Miller, the bride-to-be, and her brother, Attorney J. Marion Miller, are on trial charged with operating a confidence game.

Chastened in spirit as well as pocketbook Foulkes announced his determination never to marry, but to return to Danbury and remain a bachelor.

"Never again will I love any woman," said Foulkes sadly, as he left the witness stand after four days of examination. "I wouldn't marry the sexman living. I've had my last love in a woman. It's the coin you've got which makes them pretend to love you."

The important part kissing played in the melting away of Foulkes' $11,312 was told by the farmer. He blushing admitted that he had often indulged in osculatory exercises with the fair Lodavine, but never on his own initiative.

"She always started it," he said. "Whenever she wanted some money she kissed me. Of course I had to submit both to the kisses and to the 'touch' which always followed.

"Whenever she was short of cash or had been spending money too freely and I chided her, she would put her arms around my neck, hug me tight and give me one of those soul kisses.

"Now, Tommy," she would say, 'you know I want to make you happy. I have no one to live for but you and you'll give me the money, won't you, dear?' And then she would push me away from her a little bit and look into my eyes. That was enough, those eyes. I came across."

"Nope, I wouldn't marry the best woman living now. Every man has his chance and I got mine, but it was a bad one and cost me lots of money."

"When I got through with this case I guess I'll go back to Danbury and be a bachelor, just as I was intended," said Foulkes. "The city folks are a little too sharp for us country people and, besides, no one would want me now, I guess, because I haven't got any more money. It's funny what a difference money can make."

Michigan Anglers Plan to Drive Snakes From Trout Streams.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—One of the biggest snake hunts ever pulled off in Michigan is going to take place soon in this county.

Local trout fishermen are now busy organizing a party to go to Campbell's creek and exterminate, if possible, the snakes that infest that section of the county.

Campbell's creek is one of the best trout streams in this part of the state but this year the rattlesnakes, blue racers and black snakes are so thick along the stream that practically no one dares to fish there.

To recapture the stream, if possible from the reptiles is the plan of the trout fishermen.

MANY BARNARD COLLEGE GIRLS WILL WED

New York, June 8.—That at least eighty of the 115 young women who were graduated today from Barnard college, the feminine annex of Columbia University, will go to the altar within a few years is the estimate of members of the senior class who have investigated the subject. About half of the young ladies who received sheepskins at today's senior class exercises expect to teach or do investigation work, but that most of them admit, will not debar Cupid from coming around.

Seven girls of the 1911 class at Barnard married in their sophomore year, and at least twenty-five are known to be engaged. Three or four will be married this month. This makes nearly 30 per cent either married or expecting to become brides before the year is out. This compares with only 2 per cent who are married or engaged among the graduates of the University of Chicago, according to statistics recently supplied by the dean of the women's department of that institution and causes the Barnard girls to look down upon their western sisters.

"President Judson of Chicago needn't worry for the future of the race," said a pretty member of today's graduating class. "If he bases his statistics upon Barnard instead of his own institution. It is disgusting to think that so many people consider college girls as being large, masculine-minded women, devoid of capacity for love or domestic inclinations. If you'll look them over, I believe you will agree with me that the members of this year's class are in reality more feminine and better capable of domesticity than the average woman who has never been inside of a college."

The reporter lamped them over and hastily agreed.

LIGHTHOUSE LIFE ATTRACTS.

Assistant Keeper Advertises for a Wife, and Finds Many Willing.

Islip, N. Y.—Hans Anderson has added to his manifold duties as first assistant keeper of the lighthouse station on Fire Island the perplexing task of climbing a wife by the process of elimination. Mr. Anderson has reduced the number of candidates from twenty-five to two, but he refused to make any prediction as to what the number will be after he receives his next mail.

Mr. Anderson, feeling the pressing need for a helpmate, hurried to New York and inserted an advertisement for a wife in a German newspaper. When Mr. Anderson scanned the postmarks on the envelopes which were handed to him today he found that at least one had been sent from Buffalo.

New York was well in the lead, however, for no fewer than eight of the twenty-five women who would like to spend the rest of their lives listening to the swish of the waves live there.

The woman of today who has good health, good temper, good sense, bright eyes and a lovely complexion, the result of correct living and good digestion, wins the admiration of the world. If your digestion is faulty Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will correct it. For sale by all dealers.

WOOL PRICES BETTER AT SHANIKO SALE

MARKET IS CENT TO TWO CENTS HIGHER

Prices Range from 10 3-4 to 16 Cents a Pound—Portland Interests are Offering from 9 to 15 Cents a Pound.

A firmer tone is showing in the wool market and prices show a further advance of from 1 to 2c a pound, says the Portland Journal. The sale at Shaniko late yesterday afternoon was at the highest price of the season, although the purchases were made on a new basis, which would cut down the value somewhat. Instead of paying for their wools at Shaniko weight, the buyers decided that they would pay only 50 per cent on the Shaniko weight and an additional 10 per cent if the weights were correct when the purchases reached the mills. This is equivalent to a reduction of fully 5 per cent as there is considerable shrinkage in the wools by the time they reach their eastern destination.

While prices did not fall at Shaniko yesterday ranged from 10 3-4 to 16c a pound, local interests here are not offering over 9c to 15c a pound. This is practically the same price as the Shaniko sales when the shrinkage is taken into consideration.

Valley wools are beginning to arrive in small lots in the local market and the shearing season is well advanced. Buyers are bidding from 14 to 16c a pound for the Willamette valley, quality making the difference in price.

PITTSBURG MAN HAS TWO WIVES ALIVE

Pittsburg, Kan.—Peter C. Sharp of this city and his two wives, Ann Catherine and Louisa, settled in the Sharp cottage in the suburbs today, told of their plans to live together as a happy family. Ann Catherine, the first Mrs. Sharp, returned to her husband yesterday after forty years of separation, during which each had searched the country for the other.

Mr. Sharp lost his wife in the confusion which followed the Chicago fire in 1871. Through the pension roles of the war department she found him and came here from Oakland, Cal. Nine years ago Sharp gave up the search and married again.

"If I thought my coming would displace Louisa, I would go back to nursing the sick in Oakland," said Ann Catherine, as the three sat together in the garden today. "She has been a good wife and married my husband in good faith. This is her home and I shall bring her no sorrow."

Louisa held Mr. Sharp's wrinkled hand in hers. She is 59 years old. He is 82 and Ann Catherine is 72. Louisa leaned across her husband's knees and patted Ann Catherine on the cheek.

"You will bring me no sorrow, my dear," she said tearfully. There is room in this house and garden for us both. I understand it all."

Their common husband nodded toward a vacant field across the street and said:

"If the women folks can't get along together, I'll build another house for one of them yonder."

Sharp married his first wife in Johnsville, N. Y., in 1870. They decided to move to California. She with her daughter went ahead to visit her mother in Chicago.

The fire destroyed her brother's house. She and her daughter escaped with only the clothes they wore. The husband started on after them, but for forty years found no trace.

FATHER OF UMATILLA MAN DEAD IN OHIO

WAS INVENTOR OF END DOOR PASSENGER COACH

Samuel J. Catherman Dies at Sandusky at the Age of 94 Years—Catholic Chapel Car Closes Mission at Umatilla.

Special Correspondence.) Umatilla, June 8.—Mrs. Turner of Heppner, is visiting here this week.

Mr. W. H. Catherman, our esteemed townsman, received the sad news a few days ago of the death of his father, Samuel J. Catherman, at Sandusky, Ohio, at the age of 94 years. It will be interesting to know that Mr. Catherman was the inventor of the present end door passenger coach with reversible seats, used all over the world with two exceptions, these being a part of England and Spain. In 1855 Mr. Catherman entered the car shops of the Mad River road and while in their employ the idea of a more convenient and up to date car came to him. In those days the cars were like our present day box car with the door in the middle. The idea was presented to the company and the results of the invention was a success. Mrs. Catherman predeceased him at the age of 84 years.

Mission Closed.

The chapel car St. Anthony of the Catholic church, exception society closed a successful mission here on Sunday last. The mission, or rather the coming of the car will be an event long to be remembered by the many people of all creeds who attended the talks given by Rev. Fr. Fleming. The first services were held in the car at 8 a. m., while the evening service was held in St. Patrick's church and every evening the church was well filled by those eager to hear the word of God. Father Fleming is a remarkably forcible talker and his advice to the young and old in his many sermons to lead the better life will do much good in any community this learned preacher visits. The services were very simple and very expressive and with the congregation singing, led by the superintendent of the car, Mr. Geo. C. Hennessy, who commands a magnificent tenor voice, added much to the success of the mission. Father Fleming left on Monday for Hermiston and Rev. Father O'Brien of Chicago preached on Saturday and concluded the mission on Sunday evening, preaching masterly sermons at each service. Both Rev. Father Fleming and Father O'Brien are eloquent preachers and all the people will long remember the visit of the chapel car to our little city.

After Chung's River Property.

Representatives of a Portland wholesale house were here this week looking at J. H. Chung's estate on the river front. It is not known as to whether any agreement as to the purchase of the property was made, yet the Portland man was well pleased with the location and will report to his house. This is one of the best business purposes on the river front.

Baptist Chapel Car Here.

The chapel car of the Baptist church arrived here on the closing day of the Catholic mission and is in charge of the Rev. Mr. Hermiston, who is accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Hermiston. They will open services here on Thursday evening at 7:30 and as there is no church in which to hold the services Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, they will be held in the school house. The car will remain here several days.

FED CHICKEN A DIAMOND RECOVERED IT IN GIZZARD

Montezuma, Ga.—Three weeks ago Mrs. W. L. Castain, of this city, was feeding chickens in her backyard and lost a half-carat diamond out of a ring she was wearing at the time. She missed the setting about dark when she tried with lights to locate the missing stone. All next day she looked diligently, sifted all the sand in the backyard without success. She finally gave up ever regaining the diamond.

It was believed a chicken picked up the diamond for grit, and needless to say, price of chickens went up in that backyard. Mr. Castain has lost about a dozen chickens since that day, and on each an autopsy was performed.

One morning another chicken died, and the diamond was found in the
