London, June 9.—With the coronation but thirteen days away, London is beginning to fill up suddenly. Practically everyone who has engaged a house for the season is comfortably settled, while those who have taken special apartments along the line of the coronation procession are waiting for the last touches to be put on their rooms. One unusual thing there will be about the coronation crowds that will make Americans feel at home, and that will be the street fakirs. Many of them are Americans who have come over especially for the season. They have miniature busts of the king and queen, their pets, the Prince of Wales and, occasionally, one sees a bust of some of the most prominent of the monarchs of other countries expected to be present. Their way of disposing of their wares is something of a novelty to the English fakir, and the latter has already realized that he will have to look to his laurels in the competition of trade.

The precautions that have been taken by the police to protest important personages is complete in every detail. Not only will private detectives be scattered thickly through the watching crowds, but in many instances they will serve as coachmen and footmen on the equipages in which royalty and others will ride. Despite the fact that King George will hold a durbur at Delhi next year there will be a number of important Indian princes at the coronation. These have already arrived and make a striking contrast to the visitors from other countries with their picturesque headdress and ornaments of jewelery. Some of them have the most wonderful collections of pearls and turquoises, gems that would turn the head of even a multi-millionaire.

King George has had new coronation liveries made for the Buckingham Palace footmen. There are twenty-four footmen and each of them has three sets of livery. There is the ordinary scarlet and black for indoor duty and scarlet and gold epaulette uniform and the full state uniform. The last is a very resplendent affair. Scarlet cloth is used for the uniform but it is trimmed with real gold lace. Black velvet undergarments are used to throw the gold lace into better relief, and they are to wear badges marked "G. R." in gold. Each of the state livery coats weighs 12 1/2 pounds.

Determined not to be outdone by the encouragement given to airmen by France and Italy, and endeavoring to counteract many of the complaints made against its alleged indifference to the craft, the British government, through the war office, has placed in the hands of a special scientific staff at the National Physical Laboratory a series of important tests in the development of military aeroplanes. It is considered that scientific research on definite lines will do much toward evolving an aeroplane adapted to military requirements. War office experts do not regard the present type of machines as approaching the ideal for war purposes. It is held that the human factor has to be relied on too much in the use of all existing aeroplanes. Experiments will now be directed toward the production of a war aeroplane more automatically stable in flight than in any biplane or monoplane at present in military use. M. Kasso, minister of education, who does not like the ways of Russian college professors, has set out to secure a new supply. He has sent two agents abroad to prepare for the establishment of foreign seats of learning of Russian seminaries where young men will be trained in a suitable academic atmosphere in the arts of teaching. They are to furnish the new corps of Russian professors in the universities to take the place of the political ideologues whom M. Kasso has turned out. The first Russian seminary is to be established at Leipzig and each seminarist will be allowed 2000 marks yearly for his expenses.

Queen Mary has frowned upon the hobble skirt, and expressed her extreme disgust at some of the fashionable forms of hairdressing yet she has never really created a new mode of any kind. Fashions have been named for her as have been colors, but they were not of her creation. On the other hand King George has already made gray hats the rage. Since the king was first seen wearing a gray derby a few weeks ago the demand for hats of this kind has increased daily. Then the Kaiser and Prince Christian of Denmark appeared in gray hats, so Englishmen have felt themselves compelled to take up the fashion. The gray derby hat even promises to oust the straw hat from favor.

TWENTY THOUSAND HOMELESS IN CHICAGO

PREMATURE SUMMER FINDS MANY WITHOUT WORK

Hundreds of Men Are Sleeping on the Docks Along the River and in Parks Since Warm Weather Came.

Chicago, June 10.—Premature summer in Chicago has found 20,000 homeless men, most of them young men from the country, who have failed to find a "city job," in the cheap lodging houses which the recent investigations have shown to be fire-traps and penitentiaries, many being damp cellars, where the "sleeping accommodations" are bare boards, between which the water rises when stepped upon.

Hundreds of these homeless ones have been sleeping on the docks along the river and in the parks since warm weather came, each one lying on a newspaper.

Chicago has three types of lodging house. Most common is the cell or stallhouse. Three or four floors of a store building are divided into about 90 stalls, each about four by six feet in size. Partitions are of wood or corrugated iron, up to within three feet of the ceiling. Over the top is mesh wire to keep out intruders. Rates for this accommodation run from 10 cents to 35 cents.

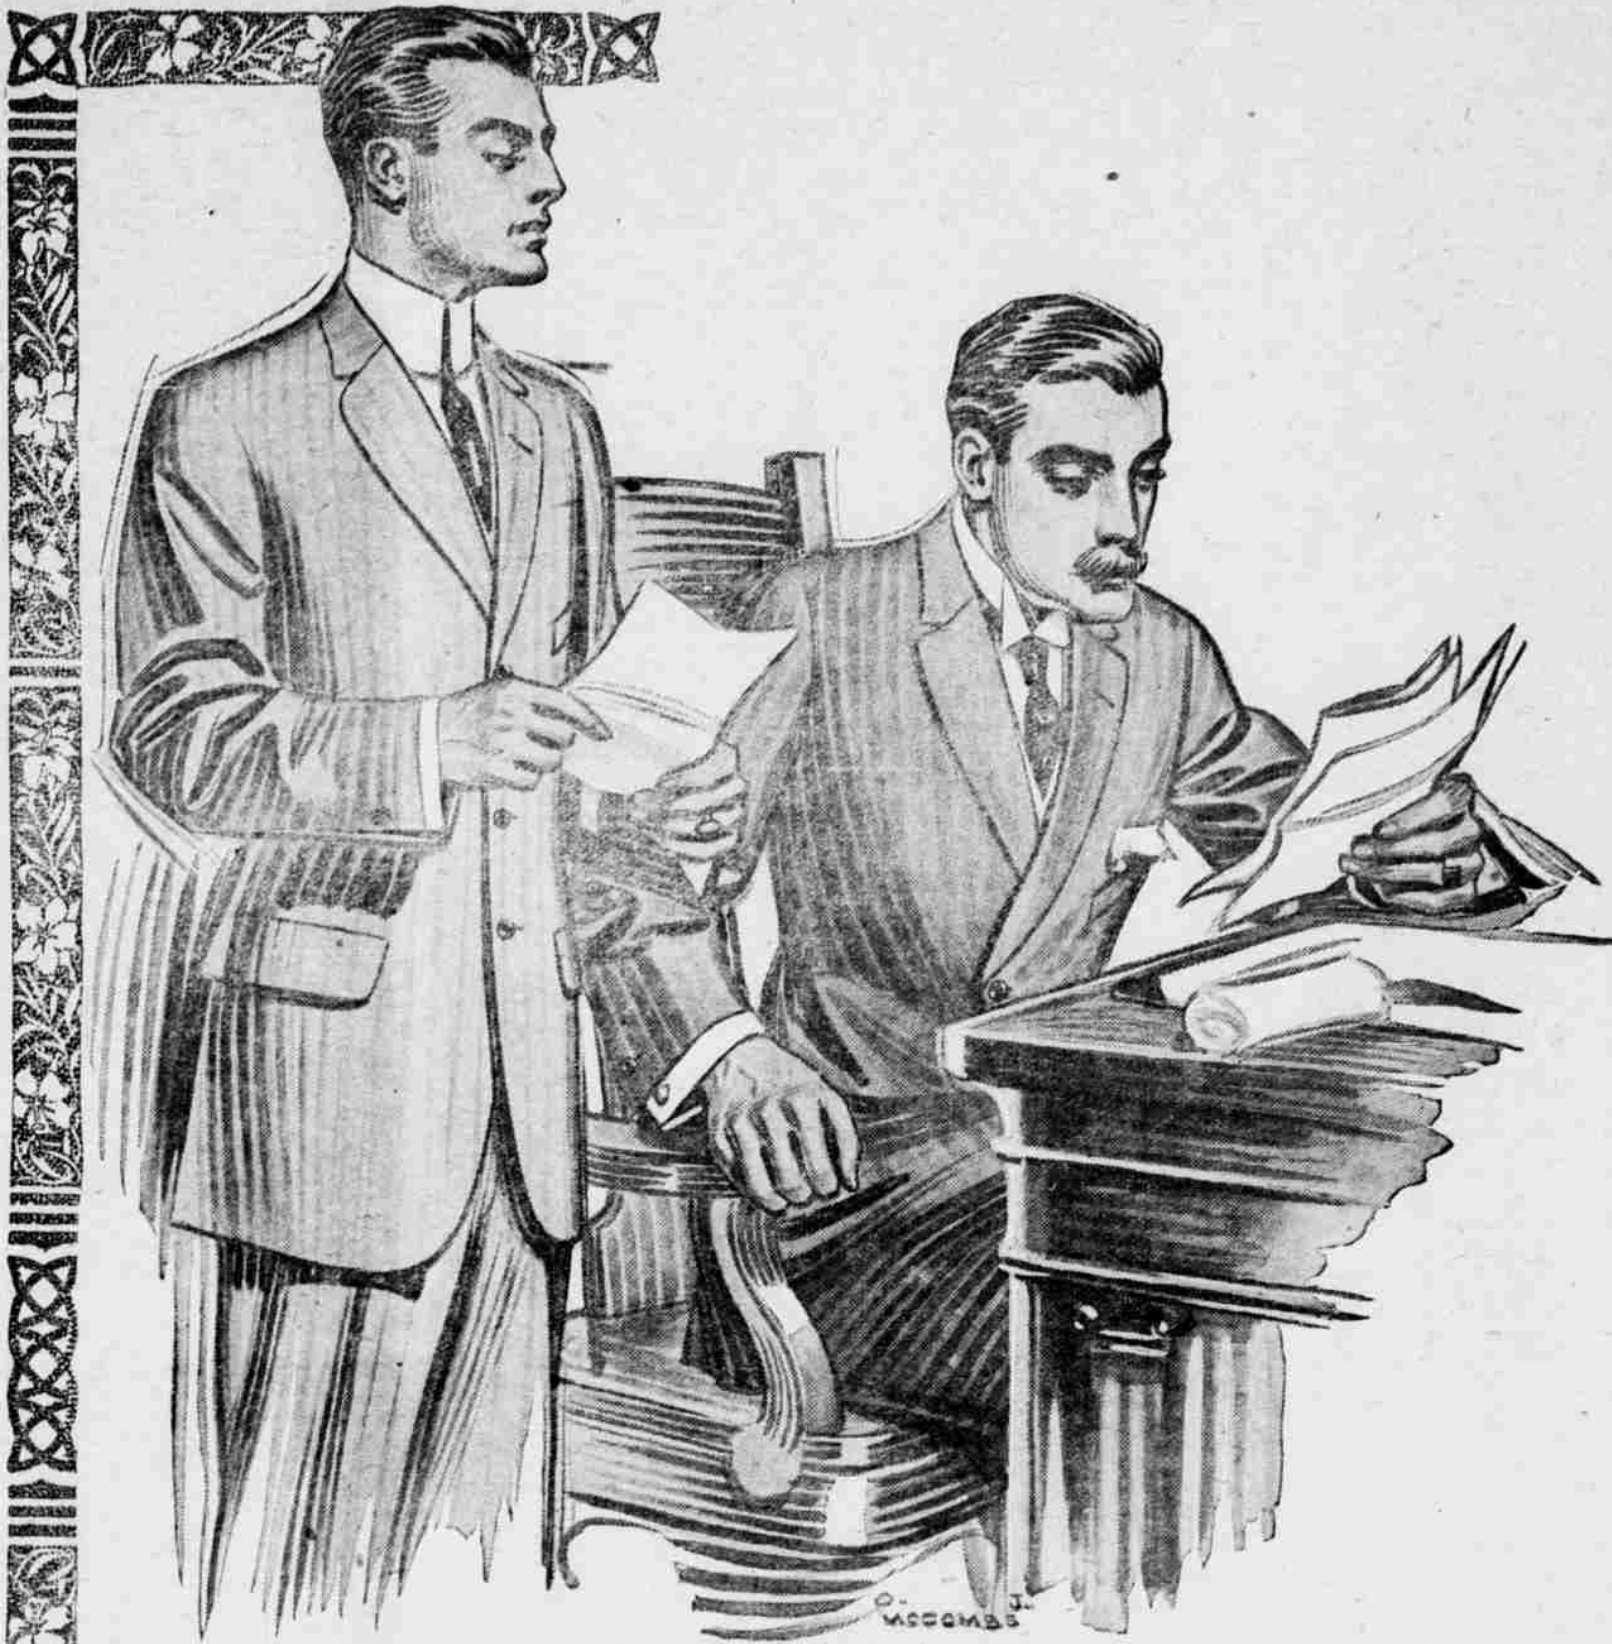

A second class is the "flop." Chicago has three flops. Two of these are dark, unventilated basements. The lodger flops on the floor for 5 cents. There are no beds. He sleeps on a newspaper, and is expected to furnish his own paper.

A third class is the bed lodging house. The floor is open, with beds in close rows without partitions. There are lockers for the lodgers' clothes. Lodging house rates read "15 cents and up." Soap, when found at all, is chained fast. As many as 100 men are sometimes expected to use a single washbowl and a single towel.

AUTO CHEMICAL ENGINE RUNS AMUCK
Savannah, Ga. — Savannah's auto chemical engine ran amuck today in answering an alarm, and did considerable damage. While going at high speed something went wrong with the steering gear. The auto crashed through the iron railing in front of the home of Abram Minis. The machine did not stop until it had torn an opening in the fence wide enough to admit a team of horses, hurled aside two large blocks of brown stone, which were the base of the fence, and came in contact with the brick wall of the house, after crushing a tree in the yard.

Throughout the performance every member of the crew clung to the hand rails until with a broken front wheel and broken spring the auto came to a halt against the side of the house. None of the firemen were seriously injured.

President Ackerman of the Menominee normal school has decided not to institute a course in domestic science at the school because it would duplicate the course at the Oregon agricultural college.

TO DIG BIG DIKE AT PROVO, UTAH

WORK WILL INVOLVE AN EXPENDITURE OF $200,000

Will Be Under Supervision of United States Reclamation Service—Eighty Thousand Cubic Yards of Earth to Be Removed

Provo, Utah, June 10.—The United States Reclamation Service has announced that it will dig a big dike at Provo, Utah, to protect the city from flooding.

The dike will be 1,000 feet long and 10 feet high. It will cost $200,000 to dig.

The dike will be dug by the Provo Reclamation District.

is to spend $48,000,000 in reclamation work during the coming four years. The expenditures in years past have amounted to approximately $70,000,000. In time it is expected that 30,000,000 acres of arid lands will be reclaimed in the west, while it is not improbable that within a few years the government may be similarly employing its funds for the reclamation of swamp and overflowed lands in the east, of which there are 80,000,000 acres. The furthering of this latter movement is to be one of the undertakings of the National Reclamation Congress this year.
