Mrs. Harper stated further that her husband's dying statement that he had not left the house for months was true; that she had even asked him to attend lodge and that he was generally too tired and stayed at home; and that he had not left the house for many weeks; all of which disproved the likelihood of his having associated with the Kyle woman. She also said that he would believe his dams people in the city last evening. dying statement against any evidence In the way of letters written by an insane woman that could be found.

She also stated that she had talked with Undertaker Hale of Milton and he had denied the stories reintive to the letters found on the person of Mrs. Kyle.

She wished to thank their many friends on behalf of her husband's brother and sister and father and mother, for their beautiful floral gifts and sympathy extended in their bereavement and expressed the earnest wish that the publicity should now be dropped, as it did no good and she knew her husband to be true and the crime the result of the decision of an insane woman
