

RECLAMATION REPORT SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

(Special Correspondence.)
Hermiston, Ore., June 20.—The reclamation report for June is as follows:

Weather conditions were favorable. The maximum temperature was 80 and the minimum 30 degrees F. A small force was engaged in building turnouts and placing lining where leaks had developed in the distributaries. The feed canal was operated throughout the month, a maximum of 350 second feet being diverted from the river. The total quantity of water diverted from the river during the month was 12,600 acre feet. Seven thousand four hundred acre feet of water were turned out from the reservoir to the distribution system and 1500 acre feet was diverted through the Maxwell ditch to the reservoir. The available storage in the reservoir at the end of the month was 49,500 acre feet of water. Topographical surveys of irrigable lands for the proposed western extension of the Umatilla project were completed. Three wash boring outfits and one diamond drill were in operation at the proposed dam site.

Mr. William J. Brown, formerly of Chicago, has purchased 10 acres of land of the Maxwell Land & Irrigation company through Al E. Robb, this being 10 acres in section 21, township 4 north, range 25. Mr. Brown expects to make the Umatilla project his future home and to make his residence on the land.

Fred Hendley, of the reclamation service at Hermiston, is spending a few days at the office of the Water Users' association, checking up water right applications with the books of the association.

A sheep farmer near San Angelo, Tex., has during the past two or three years brought over several carloads of fine French Merino sheep. He is using them to raise the standard of his own flock and to improve the breeds in his part of the state.

RAILROAD NOTES.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is said to be in the market for 10,000 freight cars, to be ordered in 1,000 share lots.

The Illinois Central will begin work in a few days on the new union station at Memphis, Tenn., which will be modeled after that of the Pennsylvania in New York.

Coal mined in the lignite fields near Tono, Wash., is to be used for fuel in place of oil on nearly all freight engines of the Southern Pacific and the Oregon-Washington.

The latest innovation in passenger travel is the use of compressed air whisk brooms by Pullman porters, to prevent the raising of dust, when they manipulate the passenger for a tip.

Another circular showing how to save a nickel a day and what it means to the company has been issued to employees of the Rock Island and points out other ways besides those before mentioned in which this can be done.

An order for 8,000,000 feet of lumber has been placed by the Grand Trunk at Seattle for railroad building in British Columbia. It is said to be the largest individual order ever received by a single firm in the Puget Sound country.

An appeal has been made to the Public Service Commission of New York to make some of the railroads in the state provide better station facilities for their passengers at the small villages and towns of the state. One complaint states that the only depot for freight at an up-state town is a discarded box car.

Under a new trackage contract with the Chicago & Northwestern, travelers going to Portland on the North Coast Limited of the Northern Pacific will soon be able to make the journey without changing at St. Paul. This will be a saving of time as well as a great convenience to the passengers traveling over that system, many of whom objected seriously to the change.

H. U. Mudge, president of the Rock Island railroad has appointed a committee whose investigations and reports will be watched with interest by railroad officials throughout the country. It is called an efficiency committee, being composed of four officers of the company, with authority to inquire into all the affairs of all departments and to suggest methods of efficiency and economy.

ELEVEN YEAR OLD BOY ROBS CHICAGO HOTEL

Chicago.—After climbing the fire escape to the fifth floor of the Palmer house, entering two rooms and procuring $30 cash, a watch and various articles of feminine jewelry, while the occupants slept, Frank Stopke, 11 years old, known as "Young Raffles" among his dry goods box companions of South Halsted street, was caught by James Wood, night bell boy of the hotel, just as he was emerging from the doorway of room 595 at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

Stopke squirmed past the bell boy and made a dash for the stairs, but before he reached the landing Wood overtook him, grasped him around the legs and, throwing him to the floor, yelled for help. The noise aroused nearly all of the guests on the fifth floor, and many of them hurried into the hall in their "nighties" and pajamas to discover the cause of so much commotion.

Their surprise was great when they discovered that the desperado was a mere boy, very dirty and very ragged, with a valuable gold watch dangling from his pocket. Meantime the night house detective arrived and the roomers scurried back to their apartments.

Young Stopke had been noticed hanging around the hotel for several days previous to his "clean up." Remaining in a secluded spot in the alley at the rear of the hotel he waited until all the lights were out and then proceeded on his night raid.

The first room entered was occupied by Mrs. A. H. Wilkins. The window was open and the glittering jewelry lying on the dresser looked inviting. Trinkets worth $75 were taken.

Stopke then ascended the fire escape to the room of Charles H. Anderson, a traveling man. The second floor was not quite so easy, as the window was only partly raised. Reassured by his first victory, "Young Raffles" cautiously raised the sash and climbed in. He hastily divested Anderson's pockets of $20 cash and a gold watch.

So far everything had gone well. But the young lad's next step was fatal. He started to go into the hall, and just as he opened the door the bell boy, with a pitcher of water faced him. Wood nabbed Stopke and called for help, which he needed as the juvenile criminal put up a tough fight to make his "get-a-way."

Stopke was held at the Palmer house until the police called for him. The money and valuables were restored to their owners and he was then turned over to the juvenile home.

We will get but two chances to see the biggest show of its kind in the world. This is on June 27, when Kit Carson's Buffalo Ranch Wild West arrives for two performances.

MONKEY INVADERS BATHROOM AND BITES WOMAN

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was standing in the bathroom, just about to dress, when I felt a sharp pain in my ankle. I looked down and there clinging to my leg was that horrid monkey. He got into the room and bit me before I knew it."
This is part of an interesting state-

HOW ONE WOMAN WON

Her Health and Strength Back Again by The Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was all weakened and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui as a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help."

I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it."

Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health.

It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical. Fifty years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.

In every community, there live some who have been benefited by Cardui. The beneficial effects of this time tested woman's remedy, soon show themselves in many different ways. Try it.

ment made by Mrs. Elizabeth S. Snowden, in explanation of her damage suit, brought against her neighbor, Dr. Morton F. Dickenson of Meria.

Mrs. Snowden is the wife of Henry C. Snowden, one of the richest men of Meria, and member of the local school board. The amount of money she demands is not known, since the statement of claim is not to be filed until tomorrow by her counsel, Henry L. Broomall.

The plaintiff in the action, who is one of the leading matrons of upper Meria circle, declared that recently she was taking a bath and had just left the tub.

As she was dressing, "Timmy" the pet monkey of her neighbor, climbed up the side of the house and pulled open the blinds. Before Mrs. Snowden knew the monkey was there, it sneaked up to her and bit a piece out of her ankle.

She kicked, she says, when she saw the beast. It jumped away and out of the window. Mrs. Snowden ran screaming into the hall and there fainted. She was found unconscious by her maid.

Efforts were made by the Snowdens to induce the Dickensons to get rid of their pet. Mrs. Dickenson, a prominent member of the Meria Woman's club and a stickler for rights, refused to part with "Timmy." She picked up the monkey during a recent trip to South America and regards his visit to the Snowden home as just one of his innocent pranks.

TICKLES ANKLE TO LEARN IF SKULL IS FRACTURED

St. Louis, Mo.—If you tickle your ankle and your big toe turns upward and the other toes spread outward, your skull is fractured. Dr. C. G. Chaddock, a member of the visiting staff at the city hospital has tried his discovery in 275 cases, and has not failed once.

If your skull is intact the tickling of the ankle will cause your toes to turn downward and draw close together.

There's an exact spot on the ankle where you must tickle yourself to see if there's a hole in your head. This spot, Dr. Chaddock says, is a half inch above the sole of the foot on the inside portion of the ankle.

Before Dr. Chaddock made his discovery, which is startling the medical world, it was the custom to rub the hands over the man's head in an effort to discover possible fractures. But when patients are taken into the city hospitals Dr. Chaddock tickles their ankle with a little instrument that resembles a pencil.

The spot on the ankle is closely connected with brain through a central motor track. Dr. Chaddock says. This connection is a reflexion. But when the skull is fractured the brain is exposed, causing a reflexion. Toes draw upward and spread outward denote reflexion and, primarily, the broken skull.

Medical journals have written Dr. Chaddock to send them a detailed report on his discovery. Babinsky was the first to approach the present successful method. He tickled the sole of the foot, but his plan failed in many cases. Gordon compressed the thighs and failed. Oppenheim tickled the back of the calf of the legs and failed.

Concerning Your Business

THE horse will finally drink even though it won't always do so when led to water—it's a case of must in time. So it is with producers and marketers of wares, they will finally advertise, even though they may not concede this necessity when invited—it's a choice of intelligent advertising as a means of economy or dropping behind those who skillfully practice this most effective of all sales economies.

There are most excellent reasons for the annual expenditure of several hundred millions of dollars for advertising space in newspapers, magazines and other channels of publicity.

Those who advertise are, as a rule, far more successful, and their success is of a more permanent character than that of any equal number of non-advertisers.

It isn't the firm with surplus wealth that needs intelligent advertising most—many of the world's largest and most prosperous concerns have speedily grown from obscurity and scant capital chiefly through intelligent advertising of good goods. Their advertising has been responsible for quickly gaining popularity with the public, and by the rapid turning over of money soon provided the desired and enlarged capital.

Advertising is an economy—it makes sales quickly, thus saving storage and shelf room, besides keeping your help busy all the time.

It multiplies the selling power of your salesmen and insures "the trade" handling your product. Dealers always show a preference for goods well advertised. They know a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling and so do you.

Advertising is the one powerful channel uncontrolled by a monopoly, through which any firm, large or small, can effectively reach the public eye and purse, and upon the same equal basis.

It is the open door through which success can be gained quickly and economically. It is Business Insurance.

To build a lighthouse and never put oil in the lamps would be as foolish as to prepare to do business and not advertise the public of the nature of your service or the superior points in its favor. How many merchants can tell off-hand, all the articles they carry in stock? If they do not know, how do they expect the public at large to know? Its easy—advertise in the East Oregonian, the paper that reaches more homes in Umatilla county than any other 2 papers combined.

Think this over carefully; see if there is not some article or department in your store that can be made a greater "earner" by the application of a little well placed advertising.
