WILD WEST SHOW ATTRACTS CROWDS

Today is a wild west day in Pendleton and faint memories of the Round-up are brought to life in the minds of a good many of Umatilla county citizens. Kit Carson's Buffalo Ranch Wild West show is this afternoon entertaining some hundreds of spectators with an exhibition of frontier life with a few foreign features thrown in.

The show arrived in the city in its special train this morning and pitched tents on West Webb street. The parade was announced for 12:30 but it was an hour later before it made its appearance on Main street and the crowd was not over-paid for its long wait. It was stretched out to cover several blocks but there was nothing particularly striking about its composition. There were some real Indians, bedecked with feathers and war paint and their number was augmented by a few Umatilla braves borrowed for the occasion. A number of cowboys were in line and several Cossacks with their high saddles. Two ancient elephants, three gaudy bands with a blare of brass for music and a few women completed the "brilliant pageant." Interspersed here and there along the line was a "speller" announcing the grand free show immediately following this parade.

The much-heralded aeroplane, which was to swoop and wheel through Pendleton heavens, failed to materialize and if the show lives up to all of its promises as it did this one, it is little better than a fake and not deserving of any patronage.

There will be no performance by the show this evening.

Many New Savings Banks. Washington, June 27.—One hundred and twenty four new postal savings banks, scattered throughout every state of the union, were opened for business today. All are second class offices, but it is understood that after this week first class offices will be included in the designations of postal savings depositories by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

AT THE PICTURE SHOWS

Orpheum. Pendleton's favorite picture theater. Program of interest for Tuesday's change.

1. "Fires of Fate." Vitagraph feature film. A classic drama. Magnificently staged, with spectacular effects that reach the paramount pinnacles of dramatic art. The most beautiful of all the beautiful Vestal Virgins loves a Roman youth, both are condemned to be burned to death. They escape the infuriated pursuers through a subterranean tunnel to life and liberty.

2. "Love Proved Stronger Than Duty." Pathe, drama. This picture is well acted and interesting.

3. "Bob's Microscope." Pathe. This is an educational film full of good instruction, though not a very good advertisement for cheese nor vinegar. The film shows a good many interesting things.

4. "Bertie's Reformation." Kalem. Here is a lively comedy. It tells the story of a young man who is dazzled by the lure of the city and how he is outwitted by his father. It is a good comedy, well played.

5. "The Man from the East." Selig. Jack Manning is a young man one year out of college. His father, recently died, leaving him a fortune. And as the father was a retired banker, Jack has nothing to keep him in New York, with the exception of Elsie Dean, a rich banker's daughter. Jack is desperately in love with Elsie. He is a trained athlete—was captain of the football team at college. When he was 17 years old his father took him to spend his vacation on a cattle ranch in the west. One of the cowboys took a liking to him and taught him how to shoot, ride and throw the lariat. So at the first tiff with Elsie Jack Hikes for the west, heralded as a tenderfoot. He is given a royal reception by the cowboys, but proves that a man's courage and daring can not always be judged from the clothes he wears. Elsie and her father visit the ranch. Jack saves her from insult, culminating in a revival of their childhood love.

fool who plays sleuth to find the trunk thieves.

The Cosy. Very fine program for Monday and Tuesday, with lots of laughs: "The Boss of Lucky Ranch." American. How the tenderfoot made good is the theme of this great western story. Some novel scenes of ranch work are shown, such as branding, dipping cattle and rounding up strays. The cowboys didn't like Tom when he came out from the east and tried to belittle him in every way and one jealous rival was particularly bitter, even turning cattle rustler to get a bang at Tom. And though he had Tom "going" for awhile, yet in the end he was captured by the despised Tom in an exciting struggle. The ranch owner announced that Tom was his future son-in-law and the new boss of "Lucky Ranch." If you like genuine, exciting cowboy pictures don't fail to see this one. Full of life and hustle all the time.

"A Man of Honor." Bison. A splendid western story. Dick is lost in the wilderness and nearly dead when rescued by an Indian girl. He loves her and they are married. Five years later he is left a fortune and a white girl comes west to try and induce Dick to leave his Indian wife and marry her. But Dick spurns her, remaining loyal to Ogalala and his child.

"The Bachelor's Old Maid." Champion. A great comedy told in the refreshing "Champ" style. A pair of young lovers tricked the girl's uncle into giving his consent to their marriage, and entangled him in a net of Cupid's weaving from which he could not escape. It is plainly evident that there will be a double wedding in the future. A lively story, well told and well photographed. "It is to laugh."

"Susceptible Dad." Silax. Hilarious comedy. Marie wants to marry Harry, but pa says "no," so Marie has Harry don girls' clothes and visit her. Dad falls violently in love with the supposed girl and makes himself generally foolish till he finds out "where he is at," the laugh is on dad, so he surrenders.

"Their First Baby." Silax. Pa is angry at his daughter's marriage, so they decide to tell him they have a baby named for him. He is glad and decides to visit them. Jack steals a kid and an awful mixup occurs, but finally Jack confesses and all ends happily. It is all laugh.
