No Danger in Alaska.
Utica, N. Y., June 29.—W. B. Hoggart, former Governor of Alaska, who is spending the summer near here, in discussing the decision of the matter of the Cunningham land claims last night said:

"There is not now and never has been anything to fear from the Alaska syndicate or any other syndicate that is willing to invest its money in railroad construction in Alaska, in development of mines or any other of its resources. Under the railroad laws, railroad monopoly is already impossible."

PROMINENT YOUNG COUPLE MARRY

(Special Correspondence.)

Echo, Ore., June 29.—The wedding of Miss Quintilla Matthews and Mr. Charles Despain took place last evening at the residence of the bride's parents on Butter creek at 8:30 o'clock.

Rev. Nathan Evans, pastor of the M. E. church at Pendleton, performed the wedding ceremony. Only relatives of the two families were present. The bride, who is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Matthews, is an accomplished young lady and a general favorite of a large circle of friends. Mr. Despain is a prominent young business man of Pendleton, being one of the proprietors of the Wonder Store. The happy couple left this morning for Pendleton where they will be at home to their many friends.

anyway. From an old teapot she got the necessary railroad fare and made the trip in her old clothes. John received her with joy and she was again reinstated as mistress of his house and heart.

The Pastime.
The house of quality. Good program for Friday's change:

"The Flag Didn't Rise." American Pathé. This war-time story has a lieutenant's jealousy of a private soldier for its theme. As a consequence of this the private is wrongly accused and condemned to be shot, but the heroine arrives at the place of execution in time to save his life. The story is full of interest and well acted.

"The Inheritance." Edison. This is a well acted farce. There is an old saying that fortune is a fickle jade, and the plot of this film fully bears it out. The characterization in this story is exceptional, and is good for innumerable laughs before the unexpectedness of the final outcome.

"It Served Her Right." The climax is mirth-awakening. It is a real comedy.

"Science Versus Quackery." Gaumont. This educational subject is full of interest. The views we get of the interior of the factory are interesting and the turning of the plot upon the illness of the manufacturer's son gives it a touch that emphasizes the manufacturer's moral responsibility.

"Dobbs the Lauber." Lubin. Comedy. Alas, the world does not appreciate this strenuous artist.

Cosy.
Another excellent program for Wednesday and Thursday.

"The Poet of the People." Thanhouser. This is a feature film and the story depicts a poet in rags reading a poem to the people in which the king is severely criticized, and for this he is hurried away to summary execution. But a girl, a ward of the king feels sorry for the poet who is seeking to right the wrong of the people and she pleads for him. The noose has been placed about the poet's neck when the king arrives with a pardon. The ending is happy. Finely acted and beautifully colored.

"Second Sight." Imp. A splendid story. Tom and Owen both love Gertrude, and Owen steals a photo and shows Tom, who in jealous anger joins a party going to the wilds of South America. The party is captured by savages, but Tom's life is spared. In the newspaper account all hands are reported lost. But Gertrude, in a vision sees Tom alive in the wilds. She persuades Owen to go search for Tom, and to please her he goes, and finds Tom. Gertrude promises to marry Owen if he finds Tom, but Owen refuses to hold her to the promise and gives her to Tom.

"Chief Crow's Defeat." Bison. This is an Indian picture without any pulefaced in it. It shows the bitter hatred that existed between the tribes in olden times and the battles between the Crow Indians and the Sioux are very exciting. It is all grim Indian life and warfare.

"An Exception to the Rule." Rex. A girl was going to prove to her married friend that all men are fickle and can be led astray so she wrote a note asking him to meet her in the park and to wear a white rose so she would know him. But a drummer got the note and here the mixup begins. Meanwhile the innocent husband comes home wearing a white rose and wife decides he is guilty. But the end is full of surprises for all hands. A high class comedy, beautifully colored.

Orpheum.
Pendleton's favorite picture theater. Fine program for Friday and Saturday.

1. "Tim Mahoney, the Scab." Vitagraph feature film. Tim is a member of a labor union and joins the strike, but stands by his wife and children when it comes to a question of labor union and family union. Those who revile him alive seek to do him honor when he is dead. The most intensely impressive and the most deviously absorbing picture ever shown in Pendleton.

2. "A Game of Deception." Lubin. Comedy. John Howe, a minister's son, was supposed to be studying hard in New York to enter the ministry. In reality he was "seeing life." Don't miss this good comedy.

3. "Mistrust." Gaumont. This is a very dramatic and well made picture of a gamekeeper's family on a beautiful French estate. A gamekeeper's duty forces him to disarm a hunter whom he finds trespassing. The picture is extremely well acted.

4. "Vanity and Its Cure." Lubin. John Hart and his wife, Effie, were a fairly happy young couple. However, Effie was somewhat peevish and extravagant. These qualities finally led to a quarrel and Effie went home to her mother, Mrs. Jenkins, to whom she told her troubles. Mrs. Jenkins called on her son-in-law and asked to hear his side of the question. After hearing it she decided to cure her daughter. She discharged the hired girl and told Effie to do the work to pay for her board. Effie soon grew tired of this and telegraphed to her husband to come and take her home, but John wanted the cure to be complete and wired back that he was "too busy." Effie's mother had concealed her good clothing, but she determined to return to her husband
