TRIED TO TAKE IT ALL.

"Life is what you make it," he said from spring to fall; "World is as you take it," and he tried to take it all!

Winter—May
"Twas just that way—
He tried to take it all—

The only thing on earth he saw was Fortune's flag unfurled
And evermore he tried to build a fence around the world!

Spring and fall
Wealth had the call—
He tried to take it all!
—Frank L. Stanton.

TIME FOR ACTION.

Prior to the paving of Main and Court streets several years ago the East Oregonian urged that the electric and telephone companies be required to place their wires underground or else remove them to the side streets.

However no action to this effect was taken despite the fact that the city doubtless has complete authority under its police powers to order the poles removed, the overhead wires being a nuisance and a menace to human life in times of fire.

As a result of the city's slothfulness several years ago the poles are still in existence on Main and Court streets and neither company shows any disposition to remove them.

Now that further paving is to be done soon it is a very favorable time to order the removal of the poles. The city council should pass an ordinance calling for the removal of the poles and overhead wires. It is an improvement that has long been deferred and the subject is one that deserves the earnest and immediate attention of the council. To postpone matters longer will but mean to invite the use of the initiative at the city election next fall and the initiative is a weapon the people should not have to use when they have a council to represent them.

NOT A POLITICAL JOB.

There is quite a squabble over the question as to who shall be deputy game warden for this county. Whether Boone Watson has resigned or not there are some politicians who would like to see him resign or be ousted. Then they would like to have his post filled by a political worker from their own gang.

All of this is wrong. It is not a political job at all and should not be made one. If the game warden and the fish and game commission do right they will not give the post to a political worker of any sort.

For deputy warden there should be a man who is a sportsman and is interested in the protection of fish and game. He should enforce the laws in accordance with the spirit of those laws and do so without fear and without favoritism.

When the state fish and game commission was created it was characterized as a move to take the fish and game department out of politics. The action of the board with reference to the local deputyship will indicate whether or not this idea is to be followed.

ON THE RIGHT LINE.

In arranging for alterations and improvements in the fair pavilion the fair board is working along a line that will bring good results. A big arch is to be provided at the entrance and this will not only add to the appearance of the pavilion but will greatly facilitate the handling of the crowds. It is too much to expect thousands of people to pass single file through a narrow entrance-way. The band stand is also to be moved and enlarged and the seating capacity of the pavilion greatly increased.

It seems entirely safe for the fair board to count upon an enormous attendance at the fair this fall, especially during the last three days of the show. The throng that will be here for the Round-up will demand entertainment of evenings and nothing finer could be provided for them than a good program at the fair pavilion. The visitors enjoyed the fair last year and they will do so again.

NOT AMERICANISH.

Pictures are being published showing John Hays Hammond, representative of America at the coronation, attired in what is given as his court costume. He wears knee breeches and the outfit in general is very similar to the costumes worn at the recent Elks minstrels. For theatrical purposes such tailoring does very well and at times people will pay $1 per to see such a show. But if John Hays Hammond wore such a costume at the coronation he did not represent this republic at all for knee breeches are no longer part of the native dress in America.

Did all the foreign representatives wear such costumes? If so it would be interesting to see a photograph showing the Chinese representative decked out in such toggery.

BELONGS TO THE PUBLIC.

The department of the interior has ruled against the Cunningham claimants for Alaska coal and the anti-conservationists are raising a howl as was to be expected. Yet how much better for the Alaska coal to remain in the hands of the government for the time being than for it to go to the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate to be held in cold storage by that concern. The great natural resources of the country should not be allowed to go to monopolists. The resources belong to all the people and they should be held by the federal government until a plan can be adopted under which the resources may be developed for the benefit of the people, not for the benefit of men already reeling in wealth secured through the enjoyment of unfair privileges.

Western Oregon is a pretty well civilized country yet the frequency of train robberies down there smacks of the olden days when such events were common occurrences.

On good authority it is predicted that the extension of the Umatilla project will be made. However, we have had many good predictions in the past. What is needed is work.

There should be excitement of some sort in connection with that wild mule race on the fourth.

The Boy Scout movement is in bad in Pendleton because of their pie eating propensities.

JUNE 30 IN HISTORY.

1815—Allied army from the heights of Belleville commenced their attacks on Paris.

1817—Prussian government prohibited the further use of the term "protestant," as being obsolete and unmeaning, since the protestants no longer protested. "Evangelical" was substituted.

1832—Silistria, in Bulgaria, surrendered to the Russians.

1862—Seven days' battle; three divisions under General Jackson, overtook the Federal rear guard under General French, near the White Oak Swamps and an artillery duel followed which cost the Federals some guns.

1864—A mine was exploded under the Confederate defenses in front of Petersburg, Va., and an attempt was made by the Federals to carry the entrenchments during the confusion that ensued. The Confederates repulsed the attempt, with heavy loss to the Federals. Generals Grant and Lee were present during the action.

The money many men "fool away" in one year would start them on the road to true independence. When one has once begun to travel this road by banking his money he never turns back. It's a comfortable feeling.
