AT THE PICTURE SHOWS
Orpheum.
Pendleton's favorite picture theater. Fine program for Friday and Saturday.
1. "Tim Mahoney, the Scab." Vitagraph feature film. Tim is a member of a labor union and joins the strike, but stands by his wife and children when it comes to a question of labor union and family union. Those who revile him alive seek to do him honor when he is dead. The most intensely impressive and the most delectably absorbing picture ever shown in Pendleton.
2. "A Game of Deception." Lubin.

SYRIAN SERVES SENTENCE AND STARTS SUIT
was contemplating such a suit several months ago but was suddenly arrested on a charge of having stolen the suit case from the company. The case was threshed out in the local court and the jury brought in a verdict of simple larceny. However, as by the verdict he was adjudged guilty of stealing property of the value of $20, he holds that the jury could not have found him guilty of stealing the suit case in question. Therefore, he thinks he has a case.
He has retained a Walla Walla attorney as counsel and the express company is being represented by Frederick Steiwer of this city.

Those who revile him alive seek to do him honor when he is dead. The most intensely impressive and the most delectably absorbing picture ever shown in Pendleton.
2. "A Game of Deception." Lubin.

comedy. John Howe, a minister's son, was supposed to be studying hard in New York to enter the ministry. In reality he was "seeing life." Don't miss this good comedy.
3. "Mistrust." Gaumont. This is a very dramatic and well made picture of a gamekeeper's family on a beautiful French estate. A gamekeeper's duty forces him to disarm a hunter whom he finds trespassing. The picture is extremely well acted.
4. "Vanity and Its Cure." Lubin. John Hart and his wife, Effie, were a fairly happy young couple. However, Effie was somewhat peevish and ever, these qualities finally led to a quarrel and Effie went home to her mother, Mrs. Jenkins, to whom she told her troubles. Mrs. Jenkins called on her son-in-law and asked to hear his side of the question. After hearing it she decided to cure her daughter. She discharged the hired girl and told Effie to do the work to pay for her board. Effie soon grew tired of this and telegraphed to her husband to come and take her home, but John wanted the cure to be complete and wired back that he was "too busy." Effie's mother had concealed her good clothing, but she determined to return to her husband anyway. From an old teapot she got the necessary railroad fare and made the trip in her old clothes. John received her with joy and she was again reinstated as mistress of his house and heart.
The Pastime.
The house of quality. Good program for Friday's change:
"The Flag Didn't Rise." American Pathé. This war-time story has a lieutenant's jealousy of a private soldier for its theme. As a consequence of this the private is wrongly accused and condemned to be shot, but the heroine arrives at the place of execution in time to save his life. The story is full of interest and well acted.
"The Inheritance." Edison. This is a well acted farce. There is an old saying that fortune is a fickle jade, and the plot of this film fully bears it out. The characterization in this story is exceptional and is good for innumerable laughs before the unexpectedness of the final outcome.
"It Served Her Right." The climax is mirth-awakening. It is a real comedy.
"Science Versus Quackery." Gaumont. His educational subject is full of interest. The views we get of the interior views of the factory are interesting and the turning of the plot upon the illness of the manufacturer's son gives it a touch that emphasizes the manufacturer's moral responsibility.
"Dobbs, the Dobber." Lubin, comedy. Alas, the world does not appreciate this strenuous artist.

Cosy.
Extra strong program with a reel for every taste for Friday and Saturday:
"The Ranchman's Vengeance." American. An extra strong western story with some exciting situations. Pedro, a Mexican, owns a sheep ranch and lives happily with his wife, Marie, and child. Flint, while riding on the plains is overcome with the heat and Pedro takes him home. Flint and Marie fall in love and Pedro discovering them embracing, tells Flint to take her and go, but warns him against ill-treating her. Flint tires of Marie and abuses her. Word is brought to Pedro who goes to Flint's home, where he finds Flint beating Marie. He marches Flint to a high cliff and a terrible struggle ensues, Flint being thrown over the cliff, thus avenging Pedro's wrongs. A story full of human interest.
"The Sinner." Thanhouser. An extremely well told emotional story. A man is accused of murder and his son, a priest, receives the confession of the real murderer, but he cannot reveal what has been told him in the confessional, though it would clear his father. The innocent man is convicted, but the murderer makes a full confession and the priest's father is freed. The story deals with deep things and handles them well. The background is interesting, being a contest between employes and their employer.
"The Other Man." Nestor. In this film we have life, action, spirit and some of the lower traits of human nature dramatically set forth. A servant girl in a rage, the sudden appearance of a man she doesn't know, a telephone message to the husband and the mischief is done. After a wild dash to his home he found—his wife's father. All the witchery of the Nestor photography and art are displayed in this fine film.

"Nearly a Hero." Solax. Dad says his daughter must marry a man of mighty deeds—a hero. Jack's creditors gather in the hall prepared to beat him up, and just then a burly plumber comes to fix the pipes. Jack hires him to fix his creditors and he gets after them, licking them all. Dad thinks Jack was the one who did the strong armed deed and consents to his daughter's marriage with Jack. Very funny.
"Beneath the Moon." Solax. Another Solax comedy containing a hundred laughs and a thousand giggles. If you have ever seen a Solax comedy you know how funny they are. If you haven't seen one, come and see these two and laugh your cares away.
A MISTAKE THAT STUNG.
There was a determined look in the young lady's eye as she marched into the optician's shop.
"I want a pair of glasses immediately," she said. "Good strong ones. I won't be without them for another day."
"Good, strong ones?"
"Yes, please, I was out in the country yesterday, and I made a very painful blunder, which I have no wish to repeat."
"Indeed! Mistook an entire stranger for an old friend, perhaps?"
"No, nothing of that sort. I mistook a bumble bee for a blackberry."
—Idens.
