a Neme drama. It tells how a married couple almost lost their happiness through a mistake. It tells a story of the heart and is very interesting.

5. "The Privateer's Treasure." Gaumont. On the death of Daniel Hardy, Robert and Lillian, his son and his daughter face financial ruin, when a messenger arrives with a letter stating: "I, Thomas Wood, privateer, declare that I killed Daniel Hardy and sold his ship. I am stricken with remorse and hereby bequeath to his son and daughter the treasure buried by me in the Island of Loos. Read the document enclosed, which will direct you to the spot. Thomas Wood the Red Pirate." Robert borrows money with which he equips a yacht and starts in search of the treasure. During the voyage the captain, an adventurer, forms a plot to capture the riches. His plan is frustrated through the intervention of an honest sailor, who aids them in the thrilling adventures which came about because of the dishonest officer.

6. "Rocky Caves of France." A scenic film of unusual photographic quality. It offers a few moments' visit to the historic grotto of Lamoroux.

The Pastime.

The house of quality. Excellent program for Sunday and Monday.

"The Ends of the Earth." Vitagraph. From one end to the other it is a strong picture. The whole length and breadth of it covers the widest field of scenic splendor. Follow it from the populated city to the polar regions of Alaska. It is filled with striking episodes.

"The Niece and the Chorus Lady." Edison. Here is a lively and diverting light comedy. Marie Turner acts the part of the niece, Nancy Averill the chorus lady, and the married man about whom the difficulty centers, is Guy Coombs. The mother-in-law is somewhat disconcerted when she discovers that her precious son has married a chorus lady. But after Jones makes a clean breast of the thing everybody seems satisfied.

"His Baby Doll." American Film company. This is a finely acted story, showing how a man whose reason left him by the loss of his child and a few years later he is cured by being shown a little girl who is just like the girl who died.

"An Escape of Gas." Being a clever burlesque on the gas fitter, his assistant and the methods by which they do their work.

"Who Killed Max." Pathé. The police carefully inspect the scene. The film is a scream from start to finish.

Cosy.

Extra strong program with a reel for every taste for Friday and Saturday:

"The Ranchman's Vengeance." American. An extra strong western story with some exciting situations. Pedro, a Mexican, owns a sheep ranch and lives happily with his wife, Marie, and child. Flint, while riding on the plains is overcome with the heat and Pedro takes him home. Flint and Marie fall in love and Pedro discovering them embracing, tells Flint to take her and go, but warns him against ill-treating her. Flint tires of Marie and abuses her. Word is brought to Pedro who goes to Flint's home, where he finds Flint beating Marie. He marches Flint to a high cliff and a terrible struggle ensues, Flint being thrown over the cliff, thus avenging Pedro's wrongs. A story full of human interest.

"The Sinner." Thanhouser. An extremely well told emotional story. A man is accused of murder and his son, a priest, receives the confession of the real murderer, but he cannot reveal what has been told him in the EGG STORY IS VARIATED.

Oklahoma Reports Sun Hatched Half a Dozen Pheasants.
 Oklahoma City.—According to a report made to the state game and fish warden's department by E. H. Russell of Atoka, assistant game and fish warden, half a dozen pheasant eggs were hatched by the sun last week.
 A consignment of twelve eggs was sent to Mr. Russell who placed them under a barnyard hen. The hen deserted the nest after two days and then Mr. Russell put on another hen. The second one remained on the job for three days and followed the other, after which half the eggs disappeared. A third hen finished the work on the remaining eggs and brought out a number of pheasants. A few days later Mr. Russell found the brood increasing and discovered the missing egg-shells some distance from the nest and reports that they must have been hatched by the sun. The twelve eggs, Mr. Russell says, produced seven healthy pheasants.

Pope Displeased.
 London.—The separation law which goes into effect in Portugal tomorrow has attracted much attention here, as will all Portuguese enactments, as long as the deposed Manuel makes his home in England. It is expected that the pope, who strongly condemns the law, will, tomorrow, issue an official announcement in denunciation of the law, for his holiness has been making an exhaustive examination of the measure.

Birdmen Fly at Detroit.
 Detroit, Mich.—Some of the leading birdmen of the world, to whom "flying in the face of danger" is a literal commonplace, will compete for the handsome trophies and prizes offered by the management of the international aviation meet opened today at the Michigan state fair grounds. The tournament of the high-flyers will continue to July 4, inclusive, and during the intervening period every known type of aeroplane will be seen in action. In addition to the professionals, several amateur flyers of Detroit will try their wings. A race between an aeroplane and a motorcycle will also be a novel feature.

Hill Popular in London.
 London.—From Berlin there come rumors of genuine regret over the retirement of David Jayne Hill as United States ambassador at that post. It is admitted everywhere that Mr. Hill's tenure of the embassy has done much to further German-American friendship. Mr. Hill has been invited to many functions in London before his return to America, but it is doubtful if he will be able to accept them all.
 Richard Kerens, the American ambassador to Austria-Hungary and Mrs. Kerens, who have been here attending the coronation, sail for America tomorrow.

Birdmen at Grant Park.
 Chicago, June 30.—Eleven birdmen representing six nations have been engaged to participate in the International Aviation meet at Grant Park August 11 to 20. The United States, England, Canada, Ireland, Russia and France will be represented.

From Baltimore to Europe.
 Baltimore.—The North German Lloyd line inaugurated direct sailings from Baltimore to European ports with the sailing of the Frederick der Grosse from this port today. The steamer carries a bulk of freight and nearly a shipload of passengers.

A sporting writer of a certain New York paper rings Tulsa, Okla., into his hope nearly every day, and always spells it Tulsa. Somebody ought to put him hep.

confessional, though it would clear his father. The innocent man is convicted, but the murderer makes a full confession and the priest's father is freed. The story deals with deep things and handles them well. The contest between employes and their employer.

"The Other Man." Nestor. In background is interesting, being a this film we have life, action, spirit and some of the lower traits of human nature dramatically set forth. A servant girl in a rage, the sudden appearance of a man she doesn't know, a telephone message to the husband and the mischief is done. After a wild dash to his home he found—his wife's father. All the witchery of the Nestor photography and art are displayed in this fine film.

"Nearly a Hero." Solax. Dad says his daughter must marry a man of mighty deeds—a hero. Jack's creditors gather in the hall prepared to beat him up, and just then a burly plumber comes to fix the pipes. Jack hires him to fix his creditors and he gets after them, licking them all. Dad thinks Jack was the one who did the strong armed deed and consents to his daughter's marriage with Jack. Very funny.

"Beneath the Moon." Solax. Another Solax comedy containing a hundred laughs and a thousand giggles. If you have ever seen a Solax comedy you know how funny they are. If you haven't seen one, come and see these two and laugh your cares away.

LOCUST ENTRAPS AUTOIST.

Flies on His Shirt Front and Gets a Swipe That Wrecks Car.
 Bangor, Me.—George Albert of Bangor was the victim of a peculiar automobile accident at Scitota, Monroe county. He was driving at moderate speed when a 17-year locust alighted on his knee and Albert tried to brush it off.
 The locust then flew on his shirt front and Albert made another quick swipe at it. He forgot to look where he was going and the automobile ran into an embankment and threw him out. His nose was broken, he was severely bruised and he became unconscious.
 Joseph Bratt of Pen Argyl, who was driving near Albert, picked him up and took him home. Albert's car turned turtle and was badly damaged.
