The Pastime.
The house of quality. A big feature film for Tuesday's change. "Her Son." A thrilling western drama with Carlyle Blackwell as "Her Son." Synopsis of story follows. Mrs. Dryden's son Ned leaves home to begin life's struggles. One year of the battle proves the boy worthless and he drifts into Calico Camp. The honest miners resent the presence of the lazy young loafer and make it uncomfortable for him. He, however, writes to his mother: "I am making a great success here. The boys like me so much they propose making me mayor of the town." Mrs. Dryden, believing his letter true, decides to visit him. The mother arrives in camp just as they are driving him out. That night Ned attempts flight and falls into a deserted tunnel shaft. Respecting the mother's sacred grief, the boys continue the deception and the mother believes that the son died at the height of his success and popularity. It is a very human picture and one worth while and it is well acted.

"The Drawn Curtain." Kosmik. In this love story the heroine is overcome with joy when reunited with her lover. It is a strong dramatic story. The impress it leaves cannot be denied.
"The Insubordinate Soldier." American drama. Weatherby is court-martialed and dishonorably discharged from the army, and feeling disgraced joins a party of bandits and they prepare to rob the United States money bag. There is a thrilling fight, the lieutenant is rescued from the bandits and Weatherby gets the just punishment for his crime.
"Their Mother." Pathe. A well told story of two brothers, their love for the same girl and other incidents which befell them in their lives.
"Fred Sato and His Dog." A vaudeville stunt.

The Cosy.
Strong Western program for Wednesday and Thursday.
"A Cowboy's Sacrifice." American. Jack, a cowboy of "The Circle X Ranch" is in love with the ranch owner's daughter, Edith. Her brother George comes home drunk and Jack takes care of him. But George goes back to town and has a fight with "Texas Jim," getting licked. George waits for Texas and shoots him, dropping his gun in his haste to get away. A posse capture him and are to hang him, when Jack assumes the blame for the crime. But the girl saves him from making the sacrifice by telling the facts. Jack, man-like, wonders why she saved him; later he finds out.
"An Indian Brave's Conversion." Yankee. Splendid Western story full of cowboys and Indians. The minister of "Poker Gulch" can't do much with the cowboys till his daughter

2. "A Lesson Learned." Edison. This is a short film of unusual strength and good situations, played with the full value for dramatic action for which the Edison players are noted and welcomed.
3. "Father's Dress Suit." Edison. This is a good comedy, true to life and pleasingly acted.
4. "The Young Internist." Edison. Frank, a young medical student, falls in love with Ruth, a flower girl from whom he often buys bouquets. He declares but is rejected. He is appointed house surgeon in a great hospital. During his service there Ruth, who is in want and has fainted on the street, is brought to him for care. Frank proves his love and is accepted.
5. "Hellgoland, an Isle of the North Sea." Eclipse. Wild, weird and wonderful scenes of the island from the sea and interior views of great interest.
6. "The Money Lender." Eclipse. The fishing fleet departs and its return is anxiously awaited by the woman folks on the quay. Alas, the its wandering. It is a triumph of fisher folk are seriously impoverished to meet the demands of the village skylock. One little household, that of Jean and his wife and son, is broken up, but the money-lender in his house is counting his gains. Careless of the human suffering they have cost. Suddenly he sees a vision of Jean gazing at him with accusing face. He rushes from the house, turning his steps towards the cliffs. To his disordered imagination the villagers seem to be pursuing him with menace. He steps back aghast, falls over the cliff and meets his doom.
