SIGNAL BELL FOR DANGEROUS CROSSING

That the O-W, R. & N. company will install a signal bell at the crossing just this side of the reservation boundary and between mile posts 222 and 223 is stated in a communication Major E. L. Swartzlander has just received, from Superintendent William Bollons.

The installation of the signal bell is to be made in response to combined requests from Major Swartzlander, the county court and the Pendleton commercial club. It is a subject that has been hanging fire for many months and action has been deferred owing to doubt as to the best manner of adequately protecting the crossing. It was finally decided that a signal bell will afford the best safeguard to parties crossing the track at that point.

The crossing in question is a dangerous one and a number of serious accidents have already occurred at that point. The crossing is just west of a cut and the track curves just beyond the cut. Consequently west-bound trains are invisible to parties going upon the crossing from the west. It has occurred in the past that the noise made by wagons has prevented drivers from hearing the on-rushing trains.

When the signal bell is installed it will give long notice of the approach of trains and in the view of men like Major Swartzlander who have been working upon the subject it will be a very timely improvement.

CHICAGO POLICE SEEK ARREST OF LABOR LEADERS

Chicago, Ill., July 12.—Following the secret indictment of the union leaders alleged to have been concerned in the murder, the police today are seeking the arrest of Simon O'Donnell, president of the Building Trades, and Thomas Kearney and James Gavin, business agents of the Plumbers' association.

Maurice Enright, an alleged slinger and gunman, is already under arrest, accused of the murder of a rival slinger. The other three men are accused of complicity.
