HE HOLDS BRIDE'S TRUNK.

Imported Sweetheart Falls in Love With Another Man.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carpenter of Hollywood successfully prosecuted a claim and delivery action before Justice Reeve yesterday and A. F. Eads was forced to give up Mrs. Carpenter's trunk, which he had detained.

The hearing brought out the fact that Eads and the woman had known each other slightly in Kansas City and that they kept up a correspondence after he moved to Los Angeles, which resulted in an engagement of marriage.

The girl had been in unfortunate circumstances financially, and Eads sent her money for a ticket to come to this city, where the wedding was to take place at once. She arrived and the trunk, stuffed with female gear, was sent to the house in which Eads was living.

The girl said yesterday that something strange in Eads' conduct made her repent of her bargain, so she went immediately to friends in Hollywood. After a while she met Carpenter and here is where Cupid seems to have worked well at close range. Carpenter wooed and won. But his wife was short on clothes, because Eads still kept the trunk.

Justice Reeve gave the bride her trunk, and Eads, out of the price of her ticket, has the experience.

WASHINGTON POLICE BAR COWBOYS AND INDIANS

Youth of Capital Must Come West if They Wish to See Real Life.

Washington.—The westward course of empire has been checked by the ruthless police of Washington. The bewhiskered cowboy and the befeathered Indian mounted on the mettlesome broncho and carrying large revolvers in each hand will no longer be allowed to decorate the walls and fences of the capital in poster pictures. From now on the police pictures will efface all such daredevil portrayals of life in the West.

The young men of the city, says the chief of police, must be protected from the lure of the poster cowboy and stirring ambition to slay countless Indians must be quelled in the bud.

Last week the police mutilated many yards of posters on the walls of Washington and to the rising generation of the city of statesmen the cowboy and Indian will be no more.

Lardo, Idaho.—Joe Lucas, a herder, was badly torn up by a bear and is reported to have small chance of recovery. He was attending one of Harry Price's sheep camps near Rock flat and at 11 o'clock was awakened by a disturbance among the sheep. Rushing out of the tent into the darkness he was attacked by a bear, thought to have been a grizzly. The flesh from his right thigh and limb was nearly all torn away. His right side was cut open and his body otherwise horribly mangled. The scalp from his forehead to the back of his head was broken loose, and his left wrist broken and left arm chewed up. Mr. Lucas was found 18 hours afterwards. He says the bear left him when his dog treed two cubs.

Ellensburg, Wash.—"Train stopped 25 minutes in Yakima canyon hunting for monkey" was the report turned in by the engineer on Northern Pacific train No. 5. No. 5 carried a theatrical troupe from Spokane to Seattle and among the baggage was a performing monkey. Just as the train passed the station at Roza, in the canyon, the monkey leaped through the open door and scampered up the mountainside. The train was stopped and messengers, trainmen and theatrical people joined in the search for the elusive Simian. The animal's trainer finally induced the runaway to return to captivity and the train proceeded.

BOYS UNCOVER TREASURE: REVEAL HERMIT'S LIFE

Search for Other Possessions of Heskia Thomas, Wilderness Recluse, Begins.
Morey, Mich.—A romance of the days when much of the state of Michigan was a wilderness was brought to light when boys of the South Bend (Ind.) Y. M. C. A. summer camp while digging a hole for a flagstaff, brought up a rusty iron box containing pistols, books and several documents.

The lock could not be opened, so the bottom of the chest was broken. First the discoverers found two rusty pistols of an ancient pattern, resting in a bed of wax. Then followed a money collection, including a plain gold ring, apparently the wedding pledge of some pioneer bride; a silver-cased watch of Swiss manufacture; a small dagger and a rust-stained hunting knife; leather-bound books dating from 1757 to 1819, among them a Bible, "Children of the Abbey," and "Book of Passion." There were several school books and a number of pemmican-bearing dates from 1751 to 1814; samples of silver, lead and copper ore, arrow heads, and a collection of pebbles. Deeds dating back as far as 1723 related to property at Plymouth, Conn.

An explanation of the mystery was found in a letter left by the owner of the chest, in part as follows: "This chest is the property of Heskia Thomas, formerly of New England, later of the Michigan wilderness. A spiritualist of God, believing that my spirit still roams over these shores in the full moon, I have gathered all my valuable departed possessions, for they are many and varied, and gave me many wonderful secrets, but because of the great sin he took them all away but one—the least of them—the turning of table stones into gold. I have buried this secret by the body of old Duckwing in the big swamp. God rest my soul. God has filled the earth with gold. Devils do not believe it, but has He not promised, 'Seek and find?' The blue heron is wise, and the night owl, but man is an ass, for he walked not in the ways of the most high."

A little of the story of the peculiar old hermit is known here. George Knevels, who lives in a portion of a house built by Thomas, says that as a boy he recollects finding carefully secreted collections of pebbles in the house. It is said that Thomas' wife deserted him, and that his queerness became noticeable about the same time. He roamed the woods, talking to the trees and animals, and believed that he could transmute certain stones into gold.

According to another letter found in the box, there is another chest buried on the island. A map, which was among the contents, gives directions for finding this chest. The whole neighborhood is excited over a search immediately begun, for the remaining chests.

I began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and in three days I was able to be up and get better right along. I am the proudest girl in Lincoln to find such a good medicine." Usually the Way.
Willis—I see Mr. Higbupp has died. I wonder what his family will do.
Gills—As usual, I suppose. The wife will raise a monument and the nurse will raise the children.—Judge.
