FINEST SADDLE IN WORLD FOR ROUND-UP

LOCAL MANUFACTURER HAS FINISHED PRODUCT ON DISPLAY

Silver Buttons, Held by Gold Rivets and Handsomely Engraved, Represent Work of Artist and Outlay of Neat Sum of Money.

What is declared the most handsome and expensive saddle made in the west has just been completed by the firm of E. L. Power & Son of this city, as first prize for the Round-up broncho busting contest this fall and is now on exhibition at their store on Main street. The actual cost of the saddle was $350, which was the limit placed by the Round-up association.

The leather work from horn to tapaderos is beautifully worked in flowers, wild west scenes and other designs, all of which was done by hand and the whole is mounted with plate silver and gold, the two metals alone on the saddle costing $265. The work on the saddle proper was done by L. C. Campbell, foreman of the Power shop, and an expert workman, while the engraving of the silver and gold was done by Aagie Rosenberg, engraver at the Sawtelle Jewelry store.

Gold and Silver Everywhere.
Every part of the saddle is embellished with these costly metals. The horn is capped with a 2 1-4 silver button fastened with seven 14-carat gold rivets. The front of the pommel and the cantel are both mounted with engraved silver, that on the former being fastened by 17 gold buttons and on the latter by 57 of the same metal. On the back of the cantel is a solid gold plate held by six silver buttons and engraved upon the plate is the following inscription: First Prize "Broncho Busting Contest" Northwest Championship.
Made by E. L. Power & Son, Pendleton, Ore. The Round-up, Pendleton, Sept. 14, 15, 16, 1911.

The front jockeys are cornered with a silver plate fastened on with four gold buttons, the plate containing the

Fine program for Sunday's change: 1. "The Trapper's Daughter." Vitagraph. A Klondike drama. An unconventional portrayal of pioneer life, intent with thrill and throb, among the snow clad mountains, on skies and dog sleds amid the northern forests, the haunt of furry game and the treacherous Chilcot Indians.

2. "The Society Girl and the Gypsy." American Pathé. This is an excellent picture. The scenes are picturesque and very beautiful.

3. "Duke De Ribbon Counter." Lubin. A roaring comedy of Deah Harold's attempt to butt into matrimony and wealth, cleverly acted. Don't fail to see it.

4. "The Department Store." Edison. It is said that one touch of nature makes the whole world akin, and in this comedy, as in many of the recent Edison productions, the same is splendidly exemplified. The action concerns itself with the younger employees of a large department store and with their youthful love affairs.

5. "Baby's Fall." Comedy. Edison. While a fond mother is preparing to take her little child out for the usual daily airing, she is called to another part of the house by the maid. The baby being left alone, finds amusement by throwing her toys out of the open window. The whole film goes with a dash and while a comedy keeps one at high tension throughout.

The Pastime.
No. 1. "The Tribe's Penalty." Essanay, drama. Here is a thrilling picture, the feature of which is the penalty a young brave suffers for befriending a white girl captured by his tribe. The girl's heroic ride with the Indians in pursuit, is spectacular. The rattlesnake episode is well managed, but quite the strongest and most dramatic scene is where the young brave, discovering that his love for the white girl he has helped to escape is hopeless, goes stoically back to his tribe, submits to the humiliation by the squaws and explains his offense at the stake.

No. 2. "Heroes Three." Edison. Comedy. This is a rapid fire shot comedy in more ways than one. The "Heroes Three" are young society men who play their parts splendidly and the story moves on brilliantly and laughingly, while the scenes of the burning house, a real house, burns literally to the ground, making a very realistic picture. There is a large hit wrapped up in this story.

No. 3. "The Widow Visits Springtown." Vitagraph. This story illustrates the adventures of a stunning widow whose makeup is a dream, but whose every charm is artificial. Jealous maidens plan an exposure but are thwarted in their nefarious scheme and the widow disappeared with her admirer and rescuer, leaving a lock of her false hair for each of the young men as a memento of her brilliant visit.

No. 4. "The King's Daughter." American Pathé. A captured king of the Visigoths, with his beautiful daughter, is brought before the conqueror, where he is sentenced to work for his captor. The daughter finds favor in the victor's eye and they marry but to save the life of her father and her husband she sacrifices her life.

No. 5. "Mistakes Will Happen." A mirth-provoking comedy.

The Cosy.
Five full reels for Friday and Saturday. In addition to our regular strong program we give the extra special feature film, "The Coronation of King George V."

"The Coronation of King George V." Magnificent film showing for the first time in the world's history, pictures in natural colors of royalty in all the pomp, glitter and grandeur of the pageantry of the court. Taken by royal command. The only company in the world photographing the royal crown and jewels worn by King George V. All the scenes of the 40 days' festivities in brilliant natural colors. Showing the grand parades and ceremonies. English and foreign notables and other functions pertaining to this great event.

"The Regimental Ball." Thanhouser. A drama of army life. A young soldier loves his colonel's daughter, but hears she is engaged to a lieutenant. The lieutenant is stricken with smallpox and the private volunteers to nurse him. After curing the lieutenant he writes to the girl, telling her he is going away. The lieutenant, finding the note, delivers it and the girl tells the young private that she loves him for his bravery.

"The Birth Mark." Yankee. A stirring story of the royal northwest mounted police of Canada. Polly and her baby boys leaves her husband in England and goes to Canada. The husband also goes to Canada and joins the mounted police. Years after an Indian man and the boy now grown to manhood is accused. The father is assigned the task of making the arrest and by a birthmark finds he is arresting his son. The story has a fine ending for all concerned.

"Brave Swift Eagle's Peril." Bison. Swift Eagle, a Sioux, loves a Cheyenne maid. While calling on her he is captured and condemned to be burned at the stake. The girl rides to the Sioux camp and a war party rushes to the rescue and saves Swift Eagle as he is burning. On the battle the Sioux are defeated and the lovers are married.

"Independence Punished." Eclair. Comedy. A man boasts he can win the love of a certain married lady. The lady is informed and when the masquerade appears they are ready for him. A washerwoman heavily veiled, takes the lady's place that night. The end is very comical.

"Tommy at the Dentists." Eclair. Tommy has a terrible time trying to get his tooth extracted, the dentist being unable to loosen it. But finally he offends a man who hits him a crack on the jaw, which knocks out the tooth, for which Tommy thanks him.
