BRITISH-GERMAN WAR SEEMS SURE

London, July 22.—The statement of Chancellor Exchequer Lloyd George, at the lord mayor's banquet last night is pointed to as a sign today that Great Britain intends to stand firm and resist any aggressions in Morocco by Germany. The chancellor said he favored peace, "But not at the price of sacrificing the great place, and prestige that England has won by centuries of heroism. Political and business circles are pessimistic over the outlook and predict the long expected war is near.

AMERICAN MIDDLES CAUSE JEALOUSY IN NORWAY

Bergen, Norway, July 22.—The six hundred American middlemen from Annapolis naval academy who have been here for the last week had their share today and gave the Norwegians an exhibition of the American national game of baseball. There has been some criticism of the "middles" here on the part of the Mother Grundis, and no little jealousy on the part of the young men whose fickle sweethearts have temporarily lost their hearts to the gallant and dashing embryo officers of Uncle Sam's navy. The press and public generally, however, praise the visitors as a fine, upstanding body of youngsters somewhat given to innocent merriment, but with every indication of being as ready to fight as they have shown themselves willing to enjoy a frolic.

The battleships on which the "middles" are touring European waters, including the Massachusetts, Iowa and Indiana, have attracted much attention and people have come from all over Norway to inspect them. The squadron leaves tomorrow for Gibraltar, where they are due August 2, to sail for home six days later.

BLOOD IS SPILLED IN ATHENA COURT

POSTMASTER ACCUSED OF THEFT FIGHTS WITNESS After Pummeling Each Other Into Mass of Bruises, Cuts, Etc., Belligerents Pay Fine of Ten Dollars Each—Defendant Dismissed.

The passing of the lie in the Athena court room yesterday afternoon occasioned a scene which was somewhat at variance with the order and dignity which usually mark the modern hall of justice. H. O. Worthington, the postmaster, and defendant in the case being tried, and young Forrest, one of the complaining witnesses, losing their tempers in the passage of words, resorted to methods employed since the days of their barbaric ancestors and proceeded to pummel each other with their clenched fists. It cost them just ten dollars apiece for this belligerent manifestation after Deputy District Attorney Pruitt and Constable Taylor succeeded in saving them from each other.

Worthington, who is a respected citizen of Athena, was charged with stealing a pitchfork of hay from the barn of Joe Forrest the reservation farmer, which larceny it was alleged was committed last April.

The case came up yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace B. B. Richards. Worthington was on the stand and Deputy District Attorney Pruitt was attempting to have him impeach himself. He asked him a question relative to an alleged conversation between the witness on the stand and young Forrest. Without replying, Worthington wheeled upon Forrest who was sitting nearby and declared with such fire, "If you said I told you that, you're a liar." "You're another," promptly retorted the farmer's son, and then there was bloodshed.

Both men rushed at each other like enraged bulls and the dull thud of fist on head was heard frequently. The crowd in the court room relished the scene too much to interfere and it fell to the lot of Pruitt and Taylor to separate the batters. This they did only after long and labored efforts and when they did their own hands and clothes were bespattered with the gore of the combats.

Judge Richards at the conclusion of hostilities, fined each man ten dollars for contempt of court.

Incidentally, the jury soon after retired and brought in a verdict of not guilty.

TRAGEDY IN BEAUTY.

Mrs. Ida Darling Tells All About It. Chicago, July 22.—There is a tragedy in the heart of almost every beautiful woman.

A man tires of beauty as he does of a pretty vest. A plain woman has more strong cards to play in the love game than has a beautiful woman. A man's wooing is "Here" while it lasts, but he soon recovers and the permanent "there" which comes to him is of the kind that "passeth understanding."

Mrs. Ida Darling, one of America's most beautiful women, after eighteen years of married life which ended with her divorce from James J. Darling, thus expressed her views on love and matrimony: "My advice to pretty girls is to consider carefully the wooing of sweethearts—find out whether they can see anything they really like besides beauty. Now and then blow a cooling breath on their ardent lust to see what effect it has. It may save you the sadness of watching it cool after the wedding and your wafers widens."

SMYTHE URGES RESIDENTS TO HELP CARE FOR ROUND-UP CROWDS; BUY COTS HIS PLEA

Urging the loyal support and cooperation of every resident of the city in meeting the problem of accommodating the thousands of visitors who will be here for the Round-Up this fall, Dan P. Smythe, president of the Commercial association and chairman of the Round-Up accommodation committee, today issues a statement to the public. In it he tells what is expected of the People, declaring confidently that if each one does his part there will be no difficulty in securing sleeping places for the big crowd.

A large number of folding beds have been ordered by the Baker Furniture Co. and the Round-Up management will assist in disposing of these to private families and churches at actual cost. Once these beds are purchased Mr. Smythe and his committee will see that they are filled every night during the show with respectable people. A list of the rooms will be taken immediately and later during each day of the show other canvasses will be made.

His Statement. The following is Mr. Smythe's statement to the public. It is fully realized that one of the big problems confronting the people of Pendleton during the "Round-Up" is that of accommodations for the thousands of guests who will be here probably two or three days before the exhibition is scheduled to start and who will remain until the last stunt is pulled off. We must meet this problem squarely and honestly and must successfully solve the accommodation question.

The only possible way to do this is for every person in the city of Pendleton to come to the front and take an active and leading part in caring for our guests during "Round-Up" week. If all come to the front and actively help; do what they reasonably can in taking care of our "Round-Up" visitors, we can provide ample accommodations for all who may attend.

Plans Under Way. The officers and directors of the "Round-Up" have given the matter of accommodations special attention.

London, July 22.—At a conference of church dignitaries here today the recently proposed reforms in the wording of the marriage service of the Church of England, frequently objected to as being "coarse and vulgar," were taken up for consideration. The most important change proposed is in the clause of the exhortation to newlyweds, which now stands as follows: "And therefore marriage is not by any to be enterprised nor taken in hand unadvisedly, lightly or wantonly to satisfy man's carnal lusts and appetites like brute beasts that have no understanding, but reverently, discreetly, advisedly, soberly and in the fear of God."

New York, July 22.—Denunciation of "big business," for retarding development in Alaska, is the burden of an article just published here by former President Roosevelt in the Outlook.

Roosevelt declares the territory has been strangled "by great capitalists wishing to develop Alaska by making enormous fortunes outside of and in defiance of the law," and by members of congress, "either under their influence or afraid of the hostility of the corporations, decline to permit the passage of legislation, enabling the people to work honestly and develop the coal fields with a fair profit to themselves while doing justice to others."

Richmond, Va., July 22.—Stolidly puffing cigarettes and apparently indifferent to the charge that he murdered his young wife, in order to be free, to resume his relations with pretty Beulah Binford, Henry C. Four weeks ago, however, she met him accidentally at Norfolk and their old longing for each other was renewed and she returned to Richmond. Since then Beulah said, she had been meeting her old sweetheart at various hotels.

It developed that Beattie gave her money with which to furnish up a home where they were to meet. The whole secret of the girl's life was told, when she, replied to the question: "Do you love Henry Beattie?" "Rather than see him go to the electric chair," she replied, "I would confess that I killed his wife myself." The girl concealed nothing of her relations with the banker.

The chief witness this afternoon will be Paul Beattie, a cousin of the alleged husband-slayer, with whom the police say, Beattie went to purchase the shot gun, with which he killed his wife while driving in her automobile. It is said that Paul Beattie has confessed his part in the affair.
