Davenport, Wash.—A peculiar gun firing occurred a few days ago when Frank Airey went out to do some grubbing taking with him his shotgun, which he laid in the sun near by. production. When Ellen Barker, the pretty school teacher of the Pumpkinville district school, elopes with one of the village swains, a meeting of the school board is called, at which drastic measures are outlined. Cupid is to be given a real run for his money. The next day, in answer to the board's advertisement, there are a half dozen or more applicants ready and willing to take the position. Despite the suggestion of Mrs. Jenkins, president who desires to select the homeliest one, pretty Lily Brown gets the job. The junior member of the board, Jim Read, falls in love with Lily but the pretty teacher has a rival in the daughter of Mrs. Jenkins, a girl of fifteen, who sends Lily an anonymous note informing her that Jim selected her because he thought her the homeliest applicant. This results in the estrangement of the two lovers, until Willie Jenkins tells Jim it was his sister who wrote the note. Next day the teacher's chair at the school is again vacant, for Jim and Lily have run off to be married.

gers the young lady's escort, who challenges him to a duel, the outcome of which is worth seeing.

"The Broken Cross." Biograph. A country boy on leaving his little sweetheart on his departure for the city to seek his fortune plights his troth. The experience of this boy is told in this story.

The Cosy.
For Wednesday and Thursday, a "Thamhouser Kid" feature, a western drama and three comedies, including one great western laugh maker.

"The Court's Decree." Thamhouser. A delightful child drama with the little Thamhouser kid in the title role, showing how the parents who were drifting apart were reunited by the love of a child. The Blake's were divorced and the child given to the father. The mother by a clever ruse got possession of the girl, but was found by a detective. The father agreed to allow the mother to keep the child, but little Marie wanted both her parents and her pleadings were the means of uniting them. Beautifully colored.

"Only the Master Shall Judge." Powers. Strong western drama of Montana. Bill and Joe try to trim a stranger but lose. In anger they hold him up and he is killed. Evidence points to Joe and he is hung, while Bill who is guilty, sees him hanged. In after years his conscience forces him to confess.

"Summer Madness." Powers. Some awful mixups occur in this story which create plenty of laughter and after every one was good and mad they found out that their supposed rivals were only brother and sister.

"Generous Cowboys." Bison. Rattling western comedy. Two stranded actresses started a dramatic school for cowboys. Later they receive a fake telegram that their mother must have $100 at once. Their tears melt the cowboys' hearts, who each give the bunco pair $100. The girls skip and are seen on the train waving to the angry cowboys who arrive too late to catch them.

"Groucho's Quiet Fourth." Yankee. Poor Groucho can't stand the awful noise and hies to the country and finds a sham battle in progress. He jumps from a pleasure boat and in the cemetery volleys over soldiers' graves disturb him. Groucho falls exhausted in front of a lunatic asylum, where the patients are celebrating, and as he starts to run away, is captured, pronounced insane and is put in a padded cell, where he listens in despair to the infernal racket the keeps are making. This is some comedy and is beautifully tinted.

The Orpheum.
Very interesting program for Tuesday's change:

1. "A Geranium." Vitagraph. One touch of nature makes all hearts akin. The bright and sweet influence of a little flower will very often arouse hope and the dormant qualities which transform our natures and bring about most beneficial results.

2. "A Sacrifice to Civilization." Selig. Too little attention is paid in literature and the drama to the very human and beautiful attributes of the Indian nature, his love and kindness to his children, the closeness of the ties that bind him to his kindred and his observance, avage though he may be, of the Christian precept, "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother."

3. "Ancient and Modern London." Eclipse. A trip down the Thames from Westminster Abbey to the Greenwich Hospital. Excellent views of the Thames Embankment Tower Bridge, Cleopatra's Needle, Tower of London, London Bridge and Lower River.

4. "Boys Will Be Boys." Eclipse. The two who play pranks in this film are typical mischief-makers who know no law but the ability to avoid punishment.

5. "Oh, You Teacher!" Essanay. A novel rural farce comedy with many laughs. There is an air of reality in the scenes of this comedy of rural life which makes it a most noteworthy

DOUBT CANNOT EXIST.
Investigation Will Only Strengthen the Proof We Give in Pendleton.

How can doubt exist in the face of such evidence? Read here the endorsement of a representative citizen of Pendleton.

Mrs. William McGregor, 711 Lillith street, Pendleton, Oregon, says: "I was troubled from childhood by kidney complaint. My hands and feet swelled, in fact my whole body bloated and I had a great deal of trouble from the kidney secretions. There was a dull pain in my back and sides and often after stooping, I found it difficult to straighten. Dizzy spells and headaches were frequent and my nerves were all unstrung. I rested poorly, and on arising in the morning was tired and devoid of ambition. As time passed, my condition became worse and it would be hard to fully describe the misery I endured. I spent many dollars for doctor's treatment and I also tried various remedies but to no avail until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. This preparation restored me to good health. I do not hesitate to tell of my experience and I trust that my statement will be the means of helping other kidney sufferers."

APOSTLE OF DIVERSIFIED FARMING.

DR. JAMES WITHYCOMBE
Who Says Eastern Oregon Farmers Should Raise Field Peas as Well as Wheat and Keep Hogs, Cattle and Horses.

Portland Oregonian.)

"Better farming methods, smaller and better cultivated farms and the production of wheat, field peas, hogs, draft horses and poultry will make the Columbia river basin one of the most prosperous sections of the state," said Dr. James Withycombe, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Corvallis, at the Imperial last night.

Dr. Withycombe has just returned from Moro, Sherman County, where he passed several days inspecting the work of the branch experiment station of 225 acres at that point. He is very enthusiastic over the agricultural possibilities of the country, provided the farmers apply improved methods to the cultivation of their crops. Sherman county, he declared will produce this year about 1,200,000 bushels of grain, or 60 per cent of a normal crop.

This year winter wheat (Turkish red), grown under field conditions, yielded 22.6 bushels an acre, although the season was one of the driest in the history of the country," said Dr. Withycombe, discussing the results of the experiment station demonstrations at Moro.

Methods Proved by Test.

"To show the difference in farming methods, the wheat crop in another field directly across the road from the experiment station field was so poor that it will not be harvested. The failure of this crop was due to the poor system of farming employed and failure to conserve the moisture. The wheat in the experiment station farm at Moro was the only wheat I saw in Sherman county that was looz enough to bind.

"The Moro station has 599 experimental plots used for various tests, in which are included 75 varieties of wheat, corn, sorghum, kaffir corn and emmer. The station has a field of black emmer that promises to yield 35 bushels an acre. This crop makes splendid feed for swine, cattle and horses. There are also 150 acres in connection with the station where crops are grown under strictly farming conditions.

"The most gratifying experiments of the year were with the field peas. While not yet threshed, a conservative estimate fixes the yield of this crop at between 15 and 20 bushels an acre. Taking the minimum estimate, this means a little more than 200 pounds of pork an acre, worth at the present market price, $14. This is acquired without the expense of harvesting, as the hogs attend to gathering the crop and will leave the land in better condition for wheat production than a bare summer fallow.

Revenues Could Be Doubled.
"There are splendid opportunities for farming in the Columbia River Basin along different lines from those heretofore followed. The farmers of that section should no longer depend wholly on wheat. While wheat should and always will be the dominant crop, yet hogs, draft horses and poultry should be important factors in the agriculture of the section. I am quite sure if the farmers of Sherman county will take up the line of farming I have suggested, their revenues will be double what they are now receiving from their land.

"For instance, the horses on the farm should be brood mares. Each mare could raise a first-class colt each year and still assist in the farm work virtually as well as a gelding. This would give the farmer young horses to sell all the time and provide an important revenue for the farm. By growing field peas in rotation with wheat, Sherman county can be made one of the greatest hog countries in the West. It is also an ideal country for poultry. The poultry on each farm should be made to supply the necessary revenue for both the house and the family.

"With the proper application of these farming methods, there is no reason why the farmers of Sherman county should not be exceptionally prosperous."

JUDICIARY COMMISSION IN SESSION AT SALEM

Salem, Or.—The judiciary commission, appointed by Governor West to prepare a revision of court procedure, is at the capitol. The commission will hold an informal discussion of the procedure during the 40-days' session. The member of the commission are: S. T. Richardson, chairman, Salem; Will M. Peterson, Pendleton; R. R. Butler, Condon; S. M. Garland, Lebanon; A. E. Reams, Jacksonville; A. E. Clark, Portland; Thomas O'Day, Portland; James E. Godfrey, secretary, Salem.

HENS KILL MENACING RATS. Save the Corn for Their Chicks and Get Extra Meals.

York, Pa.—A couple of Plymouth Rock hens in the poultry yards of William Belymore, at Dallastown, turned the tables upon a pair of rats which had played havoc with the broods of chickens hatched out by the fowls. A family of five young rats raised in a corner under the coop, gradually ventured out to steal the corn scattered for the chickens. The hens fiercely gave battle, killing and eating their enemies.
