Escapes from Truck and Creates Furore of Confusion Before Extemporaneous Cowboys Lasso Him.
New York.—Leaping from a truck belonging to Swift & Co., a brown bull turned into East Fourteenth street between First and Second avenues and ran into a wild west show, or an arena Del Toro, with hundreds of excited pedestrians stampeding before his horns and red faced policemen vainly endeavoring to be extemporaneously cowboys.

MADDENED BULL STAMPEDES SQUAD OF POLICEMEN

After dashing up and down the steps of dwelling houses, whetting his horns on ornamental iron grill work and chasing a few red necked toradores the bull was lassoed by the driver of a packing wagon and in a moment ten men had hurled the animal to the pavement and tied him.

Everybody on the block promptly retreated out of reach while the bull, with a loud snort, dashed up the first flight of steep steps he came to. After prodding at the door he wheeled and clattered down the steps. He then tried several other stoops, becoming more dazed and excited at each attempt.

Policemen ran gingerly toward the bull, waving hastily noosed ropes or flourishing clubs. When the bovine squared around and set himself for a charge the policemen strategically withdrew.

POLICEMAN'S MARRIAGE LICENSE IS STOLEN

Precious Paper Disappears at Farewell Dinner Given in Undertaker's Shop.
New York.—It was bad enough to give a prospective bride-groom a "farewell dinner" in an undertaker's establishment, but on top of that to steal his marriage license was a black shame.

Policeman William Patrick Aloysius Rooney of the West Sixty-eighth street station, is to wed Miss Anna McGee, of No. 210 West Sixty-ninth street, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. His comrades fixed up a really sumptuous dinner on Friday night. Senor's undertaking parlor was the most convenient and beautiful place accessible, and they held it there. All the policemen and detectives who could get away attended the feast. They toasted Rooney and he arose to respond.

In the midst of the address Rooney happened to reach into his pocket and missed the license which he had obtained the day before. A look of consternation took the place of his blushes. He turned and eyed Policeman John Dermody, who sat next to him. But if ever a face bespoke innocence it was Dermody's. He denied the charge of robbery with emphasis.

Rooney thought over his troubles all night, and when he got back to the station yesterday he was worked up to a fine frenzy. He went out on post with wrath and alarm filling the heart that should have been overflowing with love and joy.

The policemen at the station denied all knowledge of the crime. They said the best detectives had failed to locate the license. But it will doubtless be presented to Rooney at the last moment before the ceremony the last moment before the ceremony.

RUN TO KANSAS BEER SIGN.

Relief of Wet Days Deceives Thirsty Travelers.
Sallina, Kan.—In going through Kansas over the Union Pacific railroad, a distance of four hundred miles, one will see just one large sign which did service in days before prohibition. It is a large beer sign at Sallina. Although in view from the car windows it has been useless for more than a quarter of a century. The sign is on the side of a building occupied by a restaurant, which in former years was a saloon.

A beer sign has been a curiosity in Kansas for many years, in fact there are men with families in that state who never saw a beer sign. The one at Sallina probably is the only remaining relic of the days before prohibition became a state law. It is a so large and in such plain view that it attracts the attention of nearly every one passing through the town on the Union Pacific.

Sallina is just about half way between Kansas City and the Colorado line and all trains stop there from ten to fifteen minutes. This gives men time to rush over to the restaurant for a few bottles. There is disappointment in store for every man who follows the sign. Some of them get angry. Hardly a day passes but the restaurant man has calls from the passengers for beer. During the vacation season, when travel to and from Colorado is heavy, he is kept busy refusing to furnish visitors. He was asked a few days ago why he did not have the sign taken off his building.

That sign brings more persons to this restaurant than any sign that could be put in its place," he replied. "Time and the weather have made the old sign dim but everybody sees it. If it wasn't for obliterating that one word I would have the building repainted."

Accused of Stealing.
E. E. Chamberlain of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at Koepfens.
