NEW ROUND-UP PRIZE SADDLE COMPLETED

WINNER OF WILD HORSE RACE GETS HANDSOME TROPHY

Article is Handiwork of Member of Pendleton Firm of Saddlers and Is Donated to Association of Amusement Promoters.

A thing of beauty is the saddle just finished by Hamley & Co. as first prize in the wild horse race at the Round-Up this fall and the man who wins it may well be filled with pride. Hand carved with wild west scenes and richly embellished with silver trimmings and inlaid gold, it has been pronounced by many experts as one of the best ever made in the west.

The saddle in its entirety is a product of the Hamley shops, all of the work being done there. The actual construction of the prize as well as the designing and the carving was done by F. J. McMonies, one of the members of the firm, while the metal work is a product of the workmanship of Miguel Morales, the bit and spur maker in the shops.

A Description.

The horn and stirrups are both of hand forged blue steel inlaid with silver and gold beautifully engraved. On each side of the horn is a silver shield engraved and fastened with silver nails while both the front and cantel bindings are of one piece of the same metal, the former being held with 48 silver nails and the latter with 144. In front of the seat are two rosettes and there are eight tie ornaments over the saddle all made of the silver of Mexican dollars. On the back of the cantel is a sterling plate with the inscription, "Hamley & Co., Pendleton, Ore., Makers," and a space for the name of the winner. The corner pieces of the skirts are also of silver plate set on black patent Oregon Corona colt.

The engravings on the silver work are in harmony with the carved designs on the leather which are the conventional scroll, the wild rose and tube rose, the latter of which is extremely difficult to make and hence very rare. On the left side jockey is the figure of an American eagle and on the right a bucking broncho, while below on each of the fenders are the words "The Round-Up, September 14, 15 and 16, 1911," followed by a buckaroo riding a wild horse underneath which is the famous slogan, "Let 'er buck." On the back of the cantel are carved the words, "Winner Wild Horse Race, Round-Up 1911."

Setting the saddle off by the sharp contrast of its appearance are the black patent Oregon Corona colt lappings with which the seat, jockeys, skirts and fenders are edged. The saddle is built upon the patent "never break" rig trees of the company and is designed for durability as well as beauty.

The handsome piece of workmanship will be placed upon exhibition at the Hamley store and later will be sent to Portland and other cities for the same purpose.

Hugh Kirkpatrick of the Working-Men's Clothing Store, has been enjoying a visit from his father, W. Kirkpatrick, of La Grande, who left last evening for Spokane and the east.

He declares he is having a fine time and is much improved in health but will be home in time for the Round-Up next month.

Cooks Fined and Bound Over.

Edward M. Cook and Josephine Cook alias Frankie Grover, the couple accused of selling liquor to Charles Comer, a minor, were this morning found guilty in police court and fined $50 apiece. They waived examination on the charge of having detained the boy of his pony and were bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $250 apiece which neither furnished. The fines were not paid either and the man is serving out his 25 days in the city bastille, while the woman is incarcerated in the county bastille.

With his wife and babies, Rev. Frank J. Several weeks later, after returning to his home in Indiana, he accepted the call and will preach his first regular sermon here Sept. 3. Sometime between the present date and then, he will enjoy a grouse hunt with Judge J. W. Maloney.

Hunters Bold Are Back.

With their game sacks laden with feathered denizens of the tall timber, the party of hunters led to the slaughter by Chief of Police Tom Gurdane returned to their homes last night. In all there were eight men in the party, Chief Gurdane, Teddy Houseworth, Sam Miller and R. W. Fletcher of Pendleton; F. J. Waters and Cy Sheekness of Meacham, James Preston and J. C. Zoller, residents along Meacham creek. Headquarters were made at the camps of the latter two men, the former of whom is a shepherd and the latter a government trapper, and hunts were made over Strawberry, Huckleberry and Black mountains with the best of success, owing to the vigilant patrol work done during the closed season by Mr. Zoller, who is also a deputy game warden. The chief of police was the distinction of being the only one of the party to have seen venison on foot. He encountered what he declares the biggest buck he ever saw one day in the woods but owing to his ingrained respect for the law and the nearby presence of the deputy game warden he allowed the prong horn to make faces at him with impunity and go on its way unmolested.

GRAND JURY AGAIN PROBES DYNAMITING

Reopens Investigation by Calling San Francisco Witnesses for State. Los Angeles.—The grand jury unexpectedly reopened its investigation of the McNamara dynamiting charges by calling before it Mrs. D. H. Ingersoll of San Francisco, one of the principal witnesses for the prosecution; her husband, D. H. Ingersoll, and John I. Harrington, a detective employed by the defense. It was announced that Eugene Clancy, a labor leader of San Francisco, who has been too ill lately to respond to a subpoena, was expected to appear here to testify next Monday.

John D. Fredericks, district attorney, made a telegram he received from Walter Drew, chief counsel of the National Erectors' association, dated at New York, August 10. Drew stated he had noted in the press the statement attributed to Detective W. J. Burns to the effect that the erectors' association would send lawyers here to help the prosecution of the McNamara case. Drew said Burns had no knowledge or information from the association to warrant such a statement, adding, "and, as you know, it is not true."

"I may come to Los Angeles to consult with you regarding the evidence you have which will help the cases here, and vice versa," he telegraphed. "Burns probably had this in mind or has been misquoted. The employment of attorneys to assist you has not even been considered by us. I do not understand you desire it and I should seriously question its advisability. My best judgment is that the prosecution should be represented by yourself and your own staff rather than by an array of high-priced counsel."

Commits Suicide.

Seattle, Aug. 18.—A man who registered at a First avenue hotel Tuesday night as B. F. Wilson of Milwaukee, was found dead in his room last night and a hole in his forehead made by a shot from a revolver, which was found under him, indicated that he had committed suicide. The man was well dressed and with the exception of a book found in his possession all marks of identification had been carefully removed. The name on the fly leaf of the book was the same as the one under which he registered, but the police are inclined to believe that this is not his real name. The coroner has communicated with the Milwaukee police.
