ABSOLUTE TEST FOR HUMAN BLOOD FOUND
London.—Until quite recently the with the forensic medicine, involved very important subject in connection with the forensic medicine, involving methods which were at best clumsy and often very inconclusive.
Science had to own itself at fault until the serological test for blood was discovered. It was adapted to its present purpose by Dr. Eihlenhuth, a distinguished German scientist, and has now been acknowledged by the highest legal authorities in Germany, France and Austria as infallible evidence of human bloodstains.
Dr. Rajchman, who is in charge of the Royal Institute of Public Health, demonstrated the method of identifying human blood yesterday. The explanation necessarily involved much scientific and technical details, but this, briefly, is what is done:
A rabbit is inoculated with human blood. The rabbit does not suffer, but after a certain time the serum taken from the rabbit—a slight incision on the ear is sufficient—supplies the material for the test. When the material with the suspected blood-stain arrives at the laboratory the blood is scraped off, or if on linen, the threads are separated. Then it is deposited in a saline solution, so as to get the requisite density. The serum from the rabbit is then added, and if there are any traces of human blood a milky ring forms almost immediately in the test tube. This test is so sensitive that the blood of an Egyptian mummy thousands of years old has responded to it.

HIS ACT WON BARONETCY.
Assheton-Smith Rewarded for Enabling 50,000 to See Young Wales.
London.—A very rich man who has changed his name once and married three interesting wives, has received a baronetcy because he bought a large piece of ground in Carnarvon covered with buildings which interfered with the view of many thousands of Welsh people who wished to see the investiture of the Prince of Wales at the castle.
The buildings were demolished, 50,000 persons saw the show free of charge and the ground was presented to the community as a park.
The name of this man was Charles Assheton-Smith. He is now Sir Charles Garden Assheton-Smith. The new baronet began life as Charles Duff, but when he inherited from a relative a vast estate known as Vayl nol, and great slate quarries in North Wales he was obliged to change his name to Assheton-Smith.

"WILL YOU MARRY ME?" HE WROTE ON MENU CARD
Latest Manner of Proposing to a Girl is Seen in a London Restaurant.
London.—Fashions are constantly changing in clothes for women, veering from the primly severe to the lavishly decorative. So, too, the fashions in love and proposal making change.
After a revival of the old fashioned courteous styles of proposal youth has now gone back again to the curt, off-hand form of love-making.
An actor with a large number of social acquaintances voiced this interesting opinion.
He gave the following rough list, showing the "see-saw" fashions of real life proposals since 1850.
1850.—Proposing a most difficult game. Girl hedged in by strict mother and father. Lovers had then to wait long for an opportunity to propose. Usually did so on bended knee, with many graceful and flowing sentences.
1880.—First signs of matter-of-fact proposal make their appearance. A well known bishop proposed to the lady of his choice over a chess table.
1900.—Romantic proposals practically dead. Etiquette proposals of this time gave lover every opportunity to propose. Consequently made light of the event. The table and tonia proposals popular.

1910.—Revival of on-the-knee proposals, prompted, it is thought, by the large number of romantic plays running at the time.
Present Day.—Proposals curter and more matter-of-fact than ever.
"I know a young man who proposed a few days ago on the back of a menu card," said the actor interviewed.
"He was seated at a restaurant with the young woman he apparently loved, and during the course of the dinner nonchalantly reached out for a menu card and scribbled something on the back.
"He wrote, 'Will you marry me?' and passed it across the table to the girl, and went on with his dinner."

EMPERESS AND A QUEEN IN THE KAISER PARADE

Events This Year Will Be Notable for the Number of Lady Colonels.
Berlin.—The three "Kaiser parades" of the Eleventh and Second Corps of Guards this year will be remarkable for the large number of "lady" colonels who will appear in full uniform at the head of their regiments.
The empress will ride at the head of her regiment of fusiliers before her husband and commander-in-chief at Altona, and at Stettin she will again lead the Eighty-second cuirassiers, of both of which regiments she is honorary colonel.
Queen Victoria of Sweden will probably appear in her uniform as colonel of the Thirty-fourth fusiliers, and at the same parade Princess Eitel Friederich will ride at the head of the Twelfth Dragons before her imperial father-in-law. The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin will also appear in uniform as chief of the Frankfurt Grenadier regiment.
It is hardly to be expected that the Queen of Holland will appear at the head of her hussars, but an interchange of dispatches between the imperial commander-in-chief and the honorary colonel of his Fifteenth Hussars is almost sure to take place.
Other royal and ducal ladies who will probably be seen in uniform during the parades are the Grand Duchess Louise of Baden, the Crown Princess of Greece and Princess Auguste Wilhelm of Prussia.

SHIP BRINGS BIG SNAKE.

Python Made Matters Unpleasant on Board.
New York.—Lieutenant Tom Donohue, R. N. R., chief officer on the Muncaster Castle, was glad to make port and get rid of a thirty foot python he brought from the far east. The python got loose several times, but Donohue did not mind it much until one day when five days out of Gibraltar, Ah Sing, his chief helper, showed up with a toe gone and blamed it on the snake.
"We found the python an unwilling captive in the monkey house," said Donohue. "We found he had crawled through a large iron ring that was attached to the deck and on either side of the ring he was bulged out to such an extent that he could neither get in nor out. I looked around, counted the monkeys and found two of them missing.
"Evidently the reptile had swallowed one of the monkeys and in his frolicking joy had gone through the ring until the bulging monkey inside of him would let him go no further. I suppose he was mad and swallowed another monkey. That put him in an awful fix, because the iron ring was between the two monkeys he had devoured. Ah Sing and I jammed his head down with a forked stick, and when we had him tight Ah Sing removed the other monkeys to a safe distance. Then we built a sort of cage around Mr. Python and left him there to digest his food.
"We stopped further trouble, however, by giving him some dope, and after that I had some sleep and less worry."

killed, the body being terribly mutilated.
A 5-year-old brother, Steve, running just behind the older boy, escaped death by a hairbreadth.
The father was but a few feet behind his son and was an eyewitness of the tragedy, but was not near enough to save him. The man was prostrated, being almost insane from grief.

RELIGIOUS SECT STRANDED.

Party of Revised Spiritualists on Way to California Faces Starvation.
Toledo, O.—Members of the Revised Spiritualists who left Findlay, O., last spring for California, where they were to seek the banks of a sacred stream or spring, are stranded, according to word received here from those in the party. Twenty-six men, women and children are said to be facing starvation.
To finance the trip, valuable homes and farm lands were sold and other holdings turned into cash. It is estimated that the party had nearly $10,000 when they left Findlay. The money was disbursed by a leader of the party, who, it is said, is now in Pennsylvania.
A second party has been organized to follow the first, but the money so far acquired will be used in assisting the stranded ones in California.

INSPECT PANAMA SHIPS.

Washington.—President Taft has issued an executive order providing a strict inspection of all steamships navigating the waters of the Panama canal zone, except public vessels of the United States or other countries. The order, designed to protect life, compels the inspection of the seaworthiness of such vessels and stipulates that they must be equipped with adequate life boats and preservers.
