AT THE PICTURE SHOWS

"ORPHEUM."

Excellent Program for Tuesday's Change.

1. "Bess of the Forest." Lubin. The story of a little girl who was lost while on an automobile tour of the west with her parents. She was found by a Mexican, who took her home to his wife. As Bess grew up, she developed into a beautiful young woman and Garcia's wife became jealous of her. A few months later, Harry Lansdale, a surveyor, came across Garcia's cabin and met Bess and by means of a locket containing her mother's picture, he knew who she was. With the assistance of a party of cowboys, he rescued her, at the same time gaining himself a beautiful bride. A most absorbing story, splendidly acted.

2. "Satan's Rival." Pathe. Satan looking for mischief sees two happy lovers, one a knight, the other a princess, and takes a fancy to marry the beautiful princess himself. The knight is warned by a fairy to frustrate Satan by his own strength. He has a very hard time till the good fairy and the holy hermit come to his aid. Then Satan is overcome and the princess and knight are happily married. The costumes are gorgeous. It is a very pleasing picture.

3. "Where There's a Will, There's a Way." Selig Comedy. Two judges are close friends, they have but one child each, an attractive daughter. Two young men pay court to them and are surprised in their lovemaking by the judges, who order them from their homes. The boys swear to get even. Of course they win, much to the chagrin of the two crusty old jurists.

4. "The Great Nitrate of Soda Industry of Chile." Selig. An excellent educational, illustrating the great nitrate of soda fields of Chile, showing in detail the modes of securing and preparing for market this valuable chemical, of which south America supplies the bulk of the world's output.

5. "The Professor and the New Hat." Edison. A charming little story of an absent minded professor, his daughter and her young man. A refreshing light comedy.

6. "The Question Mark." Edison. A comedy, full of laughs from beginning to end. The young hopeful succeeds in pretty well upsetting the whole household.

THE PASTIME.

Where You See the Best in Motion Pictures—Tuesday's Program.

"A Handsome Man." Vitagraph. "The Handsome Man" is a marvel of acting and a wonderfully novel portrayal. The whole play is performed by one man, Maurice Costello, uninterrupted in its continuity and perfectly clear in the telling of the story. This is something unprecedented in the point of fact, that it is a monoman only. Everybody laughs at this man and with him. Don't fail to see how he amuses.

"A Mexican Rose Garden." Kalem. Here is a love story that contains heart throbs and heart breaks a plenty. Indeed it is one of the most emotional films that the Kalem people have released in a long time. It tells of two Mexican lovers, each of whom believed love hopeless. So the man withdraws from the world and the woman lives a life of single blessedness. Long years after they see their experience about to be repeated and take measures to prevent it. In this they are successful and the lovers whom they throy away, or a comedy performed by help are fortunate.

"A Pal's Oath." Esanay. In this western story there is an oath sworn by one man to kill his traitorous friend, who proved false. After a sacrifice sufficient to have insured him a friendship as lasting as life itself, the time comes when he can fulfill his vow. He creeps cautiously up to the window; he draws his revolver and is just ready to fire but the man takes his little one from the cradle and unconsciously covers himself with the child's body. The murderer is undone and leaves without performing his mission and the family continue in peace.

"Through the Window." American Pathe. In a touching scene in this dramatic picture a child brings about a reconciliation between a father and daughter, whom he had disowned because she married against his will.

THE COSY.

Look! Mutt and Jeff are at The Cosy again Monday and Tuesday. A thousand laughs in this picture. Also another great comedy and two swell western dramas. Dell and Bertha Blaneett appear in today's Bison.

"Mutt and Jeff Make a Hit." Nestor. "Pay your room rent or get," said the landlady. Feeling a bill-board, our two friends decide to become actors and finally induce a manager to give them a trial. Their appearance on the stage will make a hit with you, although it failed to make a hit with the theater audience who listened to their attempt to sing "Git the Hook" is yelled and our unfortunate friends found themselves on the street badly battered up. They landed in the "cooler" and in the last scene we see them behind the bars. "Well, we made a hit, all right, all right," said Mutt.

"The Tables Turned." Bison. Mary's father was induced to steal some horses and Joe, seeing the theft, threatened to tell unless she married him. Her lover, Jim traced the horses, bought them and returned them to the shed they were stolen from. Joe, thinking Mary's father brought them back, took them away to hide them. He is caught by the sheriff and is allowed to get out after Mary's father confessed. All ends happily.

"The Last Crooked Deal." Champion. Four aces make a fine hand in a poker game, provided your opponent doesn't happen to hold an ace also. This is what happened in this great western story and you can bet that trouble started in big bunches when the boys found they had been fooled by a stacked deck. Love comedy and thrills of all kinds from start to finish make this a genuine western hammer.

"All Aboard for Reno." Solax. Four innocent people came mighty near divorce just because a messenger boy made a mistake in delivering some photos. In fact they were all at the station waiting for the train for Reno, when the boy rushed up and told them he had made a mistake. After learning the truth of the matter everything is merry. A good comedy throughout.

C. C. Jackson of Linn county, has Hubbard squashes that he has kept in a state of perfect preservation since last fall.

FORMER SHAH A FUGITIVE.

Washington Hears, Persian Is Seeking Asylum in Foreign Countries.

Washington.—Mohammed al Mirza, former Shah of Persia, who is in flight after a crushing defeat by the government forces, apparently has given up his attempt to regain the throne and now is probably endeavoring to find an asylum in some foreign country. This is indicated by advices to the State Department.

Al Mirza met his Waterloo at Savvad Koch, where he lost many of his followers. The former ruler fled in a rowboat to Gommesh Tepkeh and that was the last heard of him.
