WHERE DREAMS COME TRUE.

I.
 Roses in life's winter—blossoms in the dew
 In that brighter country "where the dreams come true."

II.
 Angels from high windows wavin' hands to you,
 In that far, fair country "where the dreams come true."

III.
 And sorrow fades forever, with stormless stars in view,
 In that living country "where the dreams come true!"
 —Frank L. Stanton.

AN IMPORTANT SUBJECT.

At the Commercial club rooms a meeting will be held this evening for the purpose of considering the proposition of having the people vote this winter upon the commission form of government for Pendleton.

It is a live question and one that is now being discussed in almost every city, large or small, in the country. Scores of municipalities have already adopted the plan and it is found to work well in every town where it has been adopted.

This is but natural because the commission plan is a real improvement over the old system. The commission plan of government places city government upon a businesslike basis. It concentrates responsibility, it eliminates ward politics and it provides for paying public servants reasonable salaries for the work they do. It looks to bringing more capable men out for office and in a general way is a move for efficiency.

How the commission plan of government will appeal to Pendleton remains to be seen. It is apparent however that there is a strong sentiment among prominent men in favor of the commission idea. This sentiment is especially prevalent among those who have had opportunity to observe the shortcomings and the weaknesses of the plan now in use.

It is the prediction of this paper that if a commission charter is adopted with proper care and with a view to meeting local conditions as they actually exist that the plan will be adopted by the people.

Pendleton is a progressive little city and the people are not afraid to take a forward step when they see that the way is clear and safe.

WOULD BE GOOD RIDDANCE.

To grant independence to the Philippines is the object of a resolution fathered by Judge Cyrus Cline of Indiana and which Speaker Champ Clark says will very likely pass the house this winter.

Under the plan proposed by the resolution the Philippines will be allowed to elect the upper branch of their legislature in 1912 and to adopt a constitution in 1917—the same to be approved by the United States. By July 1920 the United States will formally withdraw sovereignty over the islands and permit the people to establish an independent representative government.

Whether or not the Cline resolution will succeed in passing the senate remains to be seen. It seems doubtful of passage as long as there is a republican majority in the senate. Nor is it likely President Taft would approve of a bill granting independence to the Philippines. But in the event of the election of a democratic president it would not be surprising should such action be taken.

Beyond question there is a powerful sentiment throughout the country in favor of Philippine independence. Many favor granting independence to the islands—not because American sovereignty is unjust to the Philippines but because it is expensive and dangerous from an American standpoint.

AN UNJUST KNOCK.

Some one in Walla Walla is either ignorant of conditions in Pendleton during the Round-Up or else has taken an envious knock at this city. In a story concerning accommodations in Walla Walla during the fair that is now on the Morning Union said "No such conditions as prevailed in Pendleton at the Round-Up where hundreds walked the streets or slept in improvised beds are desired here."

It is not true that hundreds of people walked the streets of Pendleton because they could not secure accommodations. Through the city handled over 10,000 outside guests so elaborate were the preparations for their accommodation that there were beds left each night. No one had to go without sleep from necessity. The accommodation headquarters, with available rooms, was in plain sight of all visitors. If strangers failed to go to headquarters to secure accommodations the fault was with them, not with the city.

Pendleton is well able to care for enormous crowds and this fact has been proven on many occasions. Pendleton has more hotels and restaurants than has Walla Walla—a town larger in population—and at times like the Round-Up the people are ready to throw their homes open to the visitors and do so.

Don't boost yourselves, gentlemen, by knocking Pendleton.

RAISE THEM HERE.

A cartoon in the Journal of September 18 illustrates a condition that exists in Oregon but which should not exist. It represents the people of Oregon handing $6,000,000 each year to the farmers of Nebraska for hogs while the Oregon hog growing industry languishes for lack of proper attention.

There are good possibilities open to the farmers of eastern Oregon along this line. It is not necessary for farmers to sell their wheat as a cereal and often sell it at unsatisfactory prices. Wheat may be fed to hogs at a profit. It is also declared by men who should know that field peas may be raised on the summer fallow lands in Umatilla county and the crop hogged off early in the summer in sufficient time to permit of summer fallowing the land. In other words a crop of field peas may be raised and fed to hogs without diminishing the chances for a successful wheat crop the following summer.

Why not raise more hogs in this state? Why spend $6,000,000 annually with Nebraska farmers for hogs?

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY SKETCH.

George Woodward Wickersham, of New York City, Attorney General of the United States, is fifty-three years old today. He was born September 19, 1858, and graduated from the law department of the University of Pennsylvania in 1880, receiving the degree of LL. B. In 1901 that university conferred upon him the honorary degree of master of arts. Previous to graduation he had been admitted to the Philadelphia bar and practised there until 1882, when he moved to New York City, and in 1882, entered the old-established law firm of Strong & Cadwalader. He was admitted four years later, to a partnership in the firm, which connection he terminated upon becoming Attorney General, to which position he was appointed, March 5, 1909.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS.

"What is the secret of success?" asked the sphinx.
 "Push," said the button.
 "Take pains," said the window.
 "Never be lead," said the pencil.
 "Always keep cool," said the ice.
 "Be up to date," said the calendar.
 "Never lose your head said the barrel.
 "Do a driving business," said the hammer.
 "Aspire to greater things," said the nutmeg.
 "Make light of everything," said the fire.
 "Make much of small things," said the microscope.
 "Never do anything off-hand," said the glove.
 "Spend much time in reflection," said the mirror.
 "Do the work you are suited for," said the flue.
 "Be sharp in all your dealing," said the knife.
 "Find a good thing and stick to it," said glue.
 "Strive to make a good impression," said the seal.—Christain Standard.

MY BROTHER ED.

My brother Ed is deaf and dumb; but goodness! he is bright. Why, he can figure any sum when he is feeling right. And quick of thought. Why, honestly, he thinks before he speaks. And oftentimes he thinks ahead for half a dozen weeks.

One day while it was raining Edward ambled down the street; Each man he saw had turned his trousers up above his feet. Now Edward's pants were much too short—his pants were number three—

And should he turn 'em up why, they would come above his knees. And so, while he could not contrive to double up his clothes, He laughed at his predicament, and then turned up his nose.

WELL SUPPLIED.

A young woman of Baltimore who recently entered upon the happy state knows so little about housekeeping that she shudders lest the butcher and baker and the rest of the tradesmen discover her ignorance. She orders only articles with which she has some acquaintance, and ends her business interviews as quickly as possible.

On one occasion this young wife was feeling rather puffed up by reason of some newly acquired knowledge of things domestic, when the ashman came through the street, uttering his usual cry:

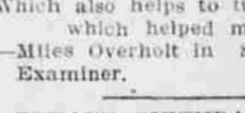

"Ash-ees! Ash-ees!"

As the man neared her window she grew more and more perplexed. "What or earth is he saying?" she asked herself. At last he appeared at the back door, and there she confronted him.

"Ash-ees?" came in a husky guttural voice.

For a moment she looked at him hesitatingly. Then, drawing herself up with great dignity, she replied: "No, I do not care for any today."
