By winning twice from St. Louis Wednesday while Chicago was splitting even with Philadelphia, the New York team acquired what seems like a sure grip on the National league pennant. At this stage of the race, with the season's close only three weeks away a lead such as theirs, of 58 points, or about seven full games is generally conceded to be an assurance of ultimate success. Pittsburg won from Boston and pulled up within 22 points of Chicago, in second place. The standing:

PETTYCOAT SIGNAL SAVES TWO LIVES.

Girl and Escort Drift Three Days When Squall Dismasts Catboat.

Portsmouth, N. H.—Three days adrift at sea, during every hour of which they were face to face with death, Miss Elsie Henderson, 21 years old, lying unconscious in the cockpit, and Thomas Denison of Dover, raging in delirium, were picked up six miles off the coast by the yacht Rob Roy of Lynn.

Commodore Strong, who discovered the helpless craft, said that he sighted the catboat with its petcock signal at dawn. Only the flying skirt caught his eye, and that was what saved the young people.

Denison is a member of a well-known family in Dover. Miss Henderson is a charming society girl.

Miss Henderson said: "When we were going down the harbor a squall struck us. Almost at the first gust our sail was carried away. We fought desperately to keep the craft straight.

"All the time we kept drifting out to sea, in desperation I took off my undershirt. Tom rigged up an oar and we put that up as a signal. The vessel we hoped to attract kept on its course. We kept getting weaker and weaker, until finally we had to give up and just sit there and hope.

"We had some sandwiches and when we seemed nearly starved we ate them. But they were soon gone. Then to add to our terror, it grew dark. We were too weak to make any further efforts, but we were too frightened to sleep and we lay awake all night.

"Day dawned, and there we were, out of sight of land, drifting into the sea. Tom seemed to have fallen into

Chicago.—A man, apparently 80 years old, decrepit and ragged, who had been wandering around the street for several days, was taken to the Chicago avenue police station, where $7000 was found on his person.

While walking past the prisoner's cell, a deputy noticed the old man of mysteriously shuffling a roll of bills that he could not reach round with both hands.

After a while he began throwing the money out through the bars, as though he were dealing a pack of cards.

A search of the old man's clothing brought forth more than $3000 in
