CHICAGO WILL FURNISH MONEY TO NORTHWEST
Windy City Bankers Invite Financial Relation With This Section.

Spokane, Wash.—Banks in Chicago as a whole are ready to offer the northwest an almost unlimited amount of capital each year for the movement of crops or at any time when capital is needed for commercial and industrial undertakings, according to F. A. Crandall, vice president of the National City bank, and Wilber Hattery, assistant cashier of the Continental and Commercial bank of Chicago, who are completing a tour of the Inland Empire and other parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

"We have never placed money in this part of the country to help move the enormous crops, although we are lending assistance to other parts of the United States," Mr. Crandall said. "The seasons are so fortunately arranged that our loans to the south and southwest are being turning due and being paid about the time that the west and northwest ought to need money for harvest. Chicago has awakened to the bigness of the northwest and we want to do a bigger volume of your business out here and that is why I am spending so much time in the northwest."

"I do not want to presume to say that Chicago will ever become a greater financial center in the United States than New York," Mr. Crandall continued, "but I do desire to say that the Chicago banks are making much progress in that way. It used to be that the middle west and western firms carried big accounts in New York and small checking or accommodation accounts in Chicago. Now it is being reversed, as these banks are carrying big accounts in Chicago and checking accounts in New York. We look with a lot of pride upon this situation, as it means that the bankers realize it is as easy and perhaps quicker to deal through Chicago."

Chicago is willing to accept the northwest accounts on a borrowing basis and we are simply starting to tell the northwest bankers that Chicago is more than ready to send out the necessary millions to care for your crops of fruit and grain and for whatever other legitimate business needs you have out here.

PAT CROWE IN JAIL FOR "BAD MANNERS."

Man Who Became Notorious for Alleged Connection With Cudahy Kidnaping Is Arrested for Insulting Woman.

Chicago, Ill.—A blackened right eye and face covered with cuts and bruises procured Pat Crowe, kidnaper of Edie Cudahy, a continuance on the charge of insulting a woman when he appeared before Municipal Judge Fred Shea, 750 North Clark street, who made the charge against Crowe and beat him up at the same time. Crowe was disposed of then and there, but Judge Caverly took pity on him and continued the case.

Crowe was a pitiful looking object, and said he had no intention of insulting any woman. He had been drinking, he stated, and was never responsible when in that condition. "I have no money to pay a fine now, Judge," he said, brokenly, "I want to see my brother. I think he will help me out of this trouble."

"I don't believe this man is in any condition to stand trial now," said the judge sharply. "His face is in awful shape. The case is continued."

Crowe was arrested on the complaint of Shea, who stated he had given him a good drubbing for frightening a woman with indecent remarks. The woman fled when Shea appeared on the scene and he proceeded to give Crowe his forcible opinion of such conduct. He introduced no testimony at the hearing but eyed Crowe with frank dislike.

Crowe achieved notoriety some years ago concerning the sensational kidnaping of the son of Edward Cudahy, the Omaha packer.

A Dreadful Slight
to H. J. Barnum of Freeville, N. Y., was the fever sore that had plagued his life for years in spite of many remedies he tried. At last he used Bucklen's Arnica Salve and wrote: "It has entirely healed with scarcely a scar left." Heals, burns, boils, corns, cuts, bruises, swellings, eczema and piles like magic. Only 25c at Keop-pens.

Orpheum.
Excellent program for Tuesday's change:

1. "Then You'll Remember Me." Edlston. Cast: John Graygood afterwards known as Henry Waters, Sydney Booth; his wife, Mervam Nesbitt. This is a story of unusual strength, superbly played.

2. "The Stuff Heroes Are Made Of." Biograph. A young author spends the summer at the homestead and becomes quite impressed by Alice and Jennie, the two daughters of his hostess. On the evening of his departure, mamma and papa go for a visit to be away over night. Several girl friends come to spend the night. An ugly looking tramp breaks in, frightening the girls, with the exception of Alice, out of their wits. Her sister's locket is down stairs and she braves the danger to get it, by pretending to be sleepwalking. Her scheme worked well until she tries to overpower the burglar. She put up a stubborn fight, but the burglar returned for a forgotten suit case. He is not long in realizing who is the real one of the sisters and they are happily married.

3. "Proving His Love." Vitagraph. This is one of the most beautiful pictures that has ever been shown. A clever ruse, a young actress tests the sincerity of her many admirers and accepts the man who proved equal to it. Florence Turner plays the parts of the actress and Maurice Costello is the lucky man.

4. "A Question of Modesty." Lubin. Mrs. Earle, a hypochondriac, is perfectly willing that the family doctor should "dope" her up to his heart's content. But when it comes to setting a nether limit—"No, no, modesty forbids" and thus the charming Doctor Jane Joyce gets into the good graces of his future mother in law. It is excruciatingly funny.

5. "Pardon Me." Lubkin. Mr. Booth, an elderly gentleman and very polite, runs into the brush of a bill poster and gets paste in his eyes. He "begs pardon" most effusively. He continues to get into all kinds of scrapes and each time asks to be pardoned. It's a side splitter.

The Pastime.
Another good program for Tuesday's change:

"Jealousy." Vitagraph. This reaches the height of supreme art and is one of the grandest exhibitions of all the emotions ever displayed. The favorite Miss Florence E. Turner performs the entire portrayal in this picture the Vitagraph actors have rendered an adequate idea of the deep jealousy which may sometimes possess the soul of a woman. The alternate flashes of uncontrollable anger and the equally dark depths of despair are played with power by the leading actress. She carries her audience with her, so strong is her action. Then comes the final scene, the passing of the wine of death, the flash of the dagger, the clasp of the dead hand and oblivion. When the last scene disappears from the screen the audience feels as if it had looked upon something besides a silent drama.

"How Algy Captured a Wild Man." Selig. A brozy comedy based on the historic legend of Santa Cruz Island, where this was produced. Algy is a character who will furnish good sport. That is a very exciting race were the wild man appears suddenly in the midst of the surprised party and Algy makes hurried tracks towards his friends, leaving the girls to whatever fate might befall them. The escape and kidnaping of Algy, the second capture and the following recital of Algy's prowess will be enjoyed by any audience.

"Her Brother's Photograph." Edlston. A love story of much interest. Cast of characters: The girl, Mary Fuller; her brother, Edward Boudin; rival for her hand, Guy Coombs and Mark McDermott.

"Clever Beyond Her Years." Eclipse. A child drama introducing excellent views of French rural life and it is very interesting.

"Lake Thun Switzerland." Scenic. An excursion of this famous lake in the mountains.

The Cosy.
Fine program for Wednesday and Thursday:

"The Broken Vows." Reliance. Rejected by the girl he loves, a young man tours the world. Coming upon a monastery he carries for awhile and tells the young monk of the over-world. The latter, fired with ambition, leaves the monastery and achieves success in the big city. Meeting the girl and marrying her, the traveler returns and in a sensational

The grand lodge declared against a Rebekah National Assembly by a vote of 133 to 69.

S.S.S. FOR SUMMER SKIN DISEASES

During the summer most persons are annoyed with pimples, boils, rashes or eruptions, while others suffer more severely with Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some kindred skin disease. All skin affections come from humors and acids in the circulation. The blood, as it circulates through the system, deposits these humors and acids in the sensitive membranous flesh which lies just beneath the outer skin. This acrid matter causes inflammation and a discharge which breaks through the delicate cuticle, and skin diseases are the result. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be freed from all acids and humors, and for this purpose nothing equals S.S.S. This great blood purifier completely removes every particle of the impurity, enriches the blood, and in this way permanently cures skin diseases. S. S. S. cures because it purifies the blood and thus does away with the cause. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice you may desire sent free. S. S. S. is for sale at drug stores.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

scene denounces the monk and the girl learns for the first time of his broken vows. In a terrific conflict of emotions she prays for guidance, and commands him to go back to the monastery. A pathetic parting takes place and the final scenes show her, four years later, with her baby girl, saying her evening prayers, and the monk praying to heaven in his cell, his face illumined by the soft moonbeams falling through the tiny windows. A most beautiful tableau.

"Little Girl." Powers. A picturesque romance dealing with the gay life of the artist studio intermingled with the prosaic and practical transactions of a business man. It is the life drama of one who never forgets, who is always faithful, his character being in decided contrast to the care free Bohemians. It is a strong though simple story that will appeal to all.

"The Parting Trails." American. That the environment has much to do with changing character is clearly shown in this subject. Two boys, Edward and Arthur Halstead, have been raised in the same surroundings and subjected to the same influence from their early youths, arrived in the west. There their paths divide, one seeking his fortune in the mountains, the other determined to learn the cattle industry; one finding he is unsuccessful in mining, he goes wrong. He plans to hold up the stage and get the express box. All the tonic of the west is in this American masterpiece and it will hold up spell-bound from the first scene to the last.

"The Engagement Ring." Great Northern. A father and his lass are seen walking along the beach washed by the incoming tide. They have quarreled, as lovers sometimes do, and to give force to her decision to end all between them, she takes the ring from her finger and throws it in the sea. The young lady is meanwhile racked with remorse and is lovesick. The rival meanwhile goes fishing and finds the ring. A very dramatic story with many thrilling scenes.

zons' committee has raised a fund to defray the expense of the carnival, and no charge will be made for entries or display space. It is announced that awards will be made by competent judges for the best display by a single grower, for the largest number of varieties, for the largest acre yield, for the potato best adapted to the elevation of Waterville, which is 2,600 feet above sea level, and for the potato best adapted to the Columbia river level. One of the interesting features in connection with the exposition will be the choosing of a queen for the carnival.

Take Northern Pacific Ry. to Spokane. Leaves 1:30 p. m. arrive 9:55 p. m. Tickets from W. Adams, Agent, Pendleton.
